BEAUTIFUL KENT COUNTY

Tolchester, Betterton, Cliffs, Rock Hall, Georgetown, Chestertown and Other Pleasant Summer Resorts On The Water.

Nowhere can one find a more favored spot than Kent County, the veritable "Eden" of the Eastern Shore. It is in the summer season when the days are hot and the evening shadows bring but little relief, when one seeks the shady side of a street for a bit of comfort, and when that "all-gone" feeling overcomes one from the excessively sultry season, that our thoughts turn to the inviting shores of old Kent where the ozone from the Chesapeake or the Chester serves as an elixor of life and an antidote for the "blues."

SCENE ON CHESTER RIVER, NEAR CHESTERTOWN.

The Baltimorean turns his footsteps to the wharf where he takes his choice of splendid steamers royally equipped which will soon take him from the heated bricks and stifling streets across the broad and health-giving bay to green fields, shady groves, sylvan streams and pleasant paths of the country side.

On the upper deck the passengers note the sights and scenes that are familiar to Baltimoreans. To the right are the beehives of industry, shipyards where once the famous Baltimore clippers were launched, past huge elevators and coal piers, while on the left are miles of wharves and shipping, and among the latter a number of ocean-bound monsters of the deep. Then a glimpse of Fort McHenry, with its sea wall, its barracks, its guns, its soldiers, and above all the 'Star Spangled Banner,' which inspired Francis Scott Key to give a national hymn to the public. On the boat glides, its every movement presenting some charming picture of neighboring bluffs. Then past Sparrows Point, which gave to the world a stupendous work in the floating dock 'Dewey,' and it was here it was launched and started on its trip around the world—a most wonderful feat. Then past the old gray pile called 'Fort Carroll' and now the bay is reached. If one is a close observer he will soon discover that the listlessness of his fellow passengers has flown, the languid look has disappeared, and all are buoyant and happy while inhaling and drinking in the ozone of the breezes of the bay.

In less than two hours Tolchester is reached where innocent amusements are furnished by Col. W. A. Potts and everything kept in fine order by Supt. G. E. Noland.

A little further on and we arrive at Betterton where The Rigbie, The Chesapeake House, The Betterton House, Col. Supplee's and a host of others offer unexceptional facilities to spend the summer there.

It is here that the best bathing on the Chesapeake can be found—best because the bottom is sandy, and the surf is not strong. It is perfectfy safe. Here is where the guest sits down to a chicken and cornpone supper, served up by good cooks to the manner born, and it is prepared with that nicety and so appetizing that even if one is not hungry, he soon becomes so when viewing the delicious edibles placed before the patrons. After dining, the world is the writer's own, such is his feeling of satisfaction; and seated on the beautiful lawn surrounding the hotels, he feasts his eyes on the scenery around him. But a short distance away is the Chester and Sassafras rivers—a happy commingling of the waters of river and bay.

Rock Hall and Chestertown have advantages that appeal to the stranger and offer exceptional opportunities for spending a pleasant holiday. The rivers have not a successful rival in beautiful scenery and kaleidscopic views and is navigable for thirty miles.

This is the paradise of fisherman. All the varieties of the finny denizens of bay and river are found, but the gamey rockfish (or as some call them "the black bass") stands pre-eminent. It is his grounds—the strong current is his plaything, and as he starts up stream, he espies the tempting bait on the hook of some "Isak Walton" of these modern days, and he grabs it. Then the fun begins, for the fish with his athletic tendencies soon shows the angler that he is the fighter. Bait is plentiful, but not of the liquid sort—still those queer looking packages marked "one Gal," doesn't mean that they contain milk. Crabbers enjoy this sport also.

The bridge connecting Kent and Queen Anne's counties at Chestertown is the mecca for hundreds of young people who find it a rival to Atlantic city's board walk and which has been very fitly named "Lover's Retreat."

HIGH STREET SCENE IN CHESTERTOWN.

ROCK HALL ITEMS

Rock Hall was crowded with people Saturday evening. Many of them were city folks and quite a number were from various parts of the county. Our own residents seemed to be out en masse. Ice cream parlors, five of them, besides several street stands, were well patronized throughout the evening, and Ex-Treasurer W. H. Hadaway was remarkably busy serving his brand of cream to the homes of the people who were compelled to remain at home for miles around. The charming graphophone entertainments at Thompson's is exceedingly attractive and many are found there each evening while the weather is warm enjoying the selections.

The high temperature of Sunday had a depressing effect on many of us, if one may judge by the empty pews in our churches. Those who had the moral courage to shake off the lethargic feeling produced by the warmth, and the fatigue of the week's labor, and attend Divine service were well paid for their effort. Rev. Mr. Compher is attracting good congregations at the M. P. Church. He says his mission is to preach the Gospel and perform the functions of a faithful pastor, and this he is doing, hence the lively interest of the membars and friends of Wesleyan Chapel.

We hear more trolley line talk; is the long promised road to be a realization at last? Hope so, is the sentiment of this section.

Farmers here are threshing their crops and seem much pleased with the yield. Boats are in great demand to run the grain to market. Some of the boat captains are having difficulty in securing a crew to man their boats. Every body is full up with work and don't care to change their occupation.

Mrs. G. F. Sewell is on the sick list this week. The servant problem is responsible. The good lady has been hard pressed in her household duties and garden work and has succumbed to the strain. Better let up a bit, Mrs. Ellen, and take life a little easier. We don't know what is beyond, and this world is too good for us to abuse our privileges while tabernacling here.

Leary's factory is sending out large quantities of building material these days.

Farmers have made good use of the good weather in saving a splendid hay crop.

Late potatoes last year's crop, are bringing 50 cents the basket. This is good luck of some of our growers.

The explosion of a small lamp in the sitting room of Mr. C. M. Hurtt Sunday evening caused a little blaze and quite a little excitement for a time but did little damage, we are glad to state. Had it not been promptly extinguished we might have had another big fire.

Thieves entered the store of Mr. John Manning Sunday night and stole between $50 and $60 in money. We sympathize with Mr. Manning for his loss and hope the thief may soon be located and brought to justice before he tries his game in other stores.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving remembrance of our dear mother, Mrs. HENRIETTA VOSHELL, who departed this life one year ago, July 14th, 1906.

Through all pain at times shed
Smile a smile of Heavenly birth,
And when the angels called her home
She smiled farewell to earth.

Heaven retaineth now our treasure,
Earth the lonely casket keeps,
And the sunbeams love to linger
Where our sainted loved one sleeps.

Lord we know that thou has taken
Naught but that which was thine own,
So we, sobbing, meekly whisper
God of love, Thy will be done.

MISS MOLLIE VOSHELL.

Thou are sleeping, dear mother sleeping,
In thy cold and lonely grave,
Shadows o'er the past are creeping,
Death, the reaper, still is reaping,
Days have swept and days are sweeping,
But there is many a memory from my keeping.

Oh! never can another
In this cold world be found,
With this heart so warm and tender
And the voice of pleasing sound.
Forget thee! Oh, when life shall cease,
To think this heart of mine,
And not till then would I forget
One look or tone of thine.
Forget thee! Tis a bitter word,
I would it were unsaid;
Forgetfulness is not of life
But with the silent dead.

BALTIMORE'S BEST STORE

Hochschild, Kohn & Co.

Howard and Lexington Streets.

We Prepay Freight Charges to All Points Within 200 Miles of Baltimore on all Purchases Amounting to $5.00 or More.

Interesting Facts About the Store

The continual as well as rapid growth of this store is a conspicuous fact in the history of Baltimore's retail merchandising—the cause for which is plain to every patron of the store.

In every department—each a complete store in itself—we show at all times the newest, the best and most dependable merchandise, carrying complete assortments in each and every line—yet these goods are to be had for less than you can buy same styles and qualities elsewhere. That's part of our policy—to offer.

The Best For The Very Least Money

Then, again, you get the most efficient service, from the buying of the goods right through to the selling and delivering at your home.

To this is added the fact that every purchase made here is guaranteed satisfactory; we make it so if it is not, either by refunding your money or exchanging the goods, just as you prefer.

Then there is the additional advantage that whenever we secure goods below prevailing market prices (as we frequently do, because of our enormous outlet and our willingness to take the largest lots), we share the full benefit with our patrons, selling as we bought them.

Is there not reason enough, then, for the fact that we have become Maryland's economic center in the supplying of almost everything the family requires for wear and use?

Our Mail Order Department is equipped to give prompt and accurate service. Samples of Silks, Dress Goods, Wash Fabrics and so on will be cheerfully sent if you will write for them.
