distance from land. But it does not become us to complain but do the best we can with the means in our possession. Allow me however to suggest the propriety of the Society procuring and sending out as early as possible a good Strong Long Boat fitted out with a good suit of oars &c, (perhaps a sail too would not be amiss) to be used for the special purpose of landing emigrants and their effects. This I think really necessary for two reasons. 1st That our landing operations would thereby be materially expedited and facilitated; and secondly the expense attending it would be considerably diminished. At present all of this business is done by hiring Boats and large Canoes of other parties

Mr Seyes writes me from Cape Mount that there has been great mortality among the Emigrants on the passage. Some twenty one or two have died of whom no less than seven were from among the few intended for this place

The immigrants per Coralis last voyage are getting along pretty well Harper Young's house has been
