his wife & children & raised & paid for that purpose some $2500. or more. He had succeeded in acquiring a good education, as well in the languages as in the common branches — appeared humble, docile & earnest to improve himself & others. He was taken under the care of Presbytery & finally ordained as a pastor with a view to his engaging in ministerial labor in Liberia. Whom he & his family proposed to go. He was sent out with great promise of usefulness as all thought who had known him or had entrusted themselves in him. He engaged in service there, partly I think in teaching — with good promise and favorable report. Subsequently, however, reports reached us representing his conduct in an unfavorable light; & upon these, charges were tabled against him (as it is termed) & proceedings were taken in Africa, upon which he was suspended by Presbytery. I was a member of Presbytery, & though some of the proceedings made pretty strongly against yet from my acquaintance with
