Mr. Stanley Downey, of Norfolk, Va., in making a business trip to Baltimore with his employer, took occasion to make a flying visit from the city Saturday to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. T. Downey, of this place. Stanley says money is plentiful in Norfolk. He also says that on the steamer on which he was a passenger from Norfolk were 500 carriers of new potatoes, and this is a daily occurrence, not only from Norfolk, but also from other Virginia points to Norfolk. And yet we have to pay about two cents apiece for cullings.

Mr. E. L. Mattice, who is connected with the Baltimore office of the Bell Telephone Co., which operates the Diamond State Telephone Co., is making a short stay in town. Since the Diamond State went under the control of the Bell system a campaign of progress has been inaugurated and as a result there is a good prospect of getting an Exchange located here, and this section of Kent county placed on a par with the most progressive sections of the State telephonically. When seen at the Chesapeake House by a reporter of the NEWS Mr. Mattice stated that the local management had done fine work toward securing subscriptions for the new Exchange, but he found a lack of realization upon the part of some of the people in regard to the great benefits to be derived by an up-to-date telephone improvement in a community, not only to the individual user, but the public at large, and it was the object of his trip to quicken this spirit of progressiveness and secure sufficient encouragement and support from the people of old Kent county to warrant his company in the expenditure of many thousands of dollars in this locality. Mr. Mattice is a man of pronounced personality and speaks with unhesitating frankness and a forcefulness that should carry conviction to every hearer. It is to be hoped that our people will not let this opportunity of securing an Exchange in our town slip through their fingers.
