Women as Well as Men are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers who found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

STEAMER GOES AGROUND IN BAY

The Ericsson Was Returning From Betterton—Three-Hundred And Forty Passengers on Board.

A great deal of interest was aroused when it was learned that about 300 excursionists on the steamer Ericsson spent all of Sunday night on the steamer, which grounded on Southwest Bar, which juts out from the southern extremity of Poole's Island, Upper Chesapeake Bay, Monday night.

Waiting on the pier and anxious to learn some news of the steamer and its passengers were groups of worried parents and relatives, who were fearful lest some terrible catastrophe had happened. Practically all night long the throng remained at the pier of the Ericsson Line, questioning the agents concerning the whereabouts of the steamers, but they could give no satisfactory answer.

The passengers on the Ericsson were equally alarmed, and when the steamer struck the sandbar there was a rush for the sides to get into the lifeboats. This was stopped by the officers, who allayed their fears and probably prevented loss of life. After several hours the excursionists became hungry, and what little bit of food could be secured from the steward's department the passengers ate, but it was not enough to allay their appetites during the long hours before daylight, when a rising tide assisted in getting the vessel afloat into deep water.

The Ericsson sailed from Baltimore at 2.30 o'clock Sunday afternoon for Betterton and had on 197 passengers. After arriving at the resort these were landed and at 8 o'clock that evening the whistle was blown for the steamer's departure for Baltimore. Heavy black clouds in the west indicated an impending storm, but this did not hinder the departure of the steamer.

Betterton is about three-and-a-half hours' run from Baltimore and all went well until 9.30 p. m., while the steamer was wending its way through the channels that pass Pooles Island, when there was a grounding sound as the steamer ran her bow on the sandbar which held her fast for the succeeding six hours. The passengers were typical excursionists, who for the most part had spent the day at Betterton and were avoiding the rain by crowding into the saloon of the steamer.

Groups about the piano stopped singing scarcely a moment before there was a jar, followed by a sharp wrench and a quick stop. Capt. J. W. Grace, the commander of the steamer, stepped from the wheelhouse after giving the signal to the engineer's department to stop the engines, while officers of the steamer hurried through the crowd of excursionists to obey the commands of the skipper.

After repeated attempts to get the steamer afloat it was abandoned until the return of the tide. In the meantime the Southern Transportation Company's tug, Brandywine, with a string of barges, hove in sight and was signaled, and after anchoring the barges, went alongside and prepared to aid the grounded steamer. With the appearance of the tug the passengers' fears became quieter and they concluded to make the best of a bad situation.

Anxiety of Officials

The steamer Lord Baltimore, which was tied up at the wharf, in Baltimore, utilized to send to the relief of the Ericsson, but several hours elapsed before the crew could be secured. The Lord Baltimore had not sufficient coal on board to leave on the trip, and several hours were consumed in loading coal from a scow which was hauled alongside by several members of the crew. It was not until after 5 o'clock Monday morning that the steamer left the wharf, and she had not gotten out of the harbor before the Ericsson was passed off Canton, bound in and heading for her wharf after being floated from the sand bar at 3.45 a. m., assisted by the tug Brandywine and the rising tide. Even the officials at the pier knew not what was the trouble until the steamer arrived.

Complaint of the treatment which he says was received by him from officers on the Ericsson was made by James H. Busick, 1735 North Caroline street, who, with his mother, sister and brother, were passengers on the steamer.

"We were all in our stateroom at the time the boat grounded," said Mr. Busick. "I was just opening the stateroom door, to see what was the matter, when someone gave me a push, which sent me sprawling in the room and then banged the door after me. A chair was placed against the door and we were made prisoners. I afterward learned that it was one of the officers. A little after 12 o'clock we were let out of our stateroom. We were able to procure bread at 5 cents a slice and coffee at 15 cents a cup. I was just about to buy a couple of slices of bread when I was told that the supply was exhausted. About 4 o'clock we were told that bread and coffee could be had again at the prices named.

"Several women and children who were unable to procure staterooms got life preservers and put them on the floor to lie on. As soon as the officers saw this they stated that if anyone wanted to sleep let them sleep in chairs. The preservers were taken away and put in their places.

"On the whole, I never saw such an uncivil lot of officers in my life. Their manners and answers were uncivil and extremely harsh in many instances."

IN MEMORIAM.

Sacred to the memory of Walter James Kendall whose sad death one year ago today, July 21, 1911, is deeply mourned.

When the clouds above my pathway
Seem to gather gloom,
And the future no bright prospects
Yields for me to rest upon.
When I feel alone, unaided,
I must journey on through life
And my tearful heart is trembling,
Oh unequal to the strife.
Sad it is to see life's changes,
Bearing hopes and joys away,
Changing gladness into sorrow,
Shading scenes as bright as day.
Oh, how bitter then does memory
Come to mock me with its rays
Bringing back my loved, my lost one
With the light of other Days.

"A LOVED ONE."
