Furthermore, Colored gentlemen Cabin passengers coming up from the Cabin who were costly dressed with massive chains & rings & whose demeanor was swart, aboard exposed, & intended to impress us of their quality & being Cabin passengers as well as Captain & Mate & Stewards. Their prompt disavowal quite in contrast with the servile & civil manners of the white passengers. I believe intelligent Colored men everywhere, except in Liberia, as a general thing, act in such a way as to impress observing & reasonable people, that they are too self important. Being simply a Regret & not a fault that I am altogether blind to many defects in us. Perhaps there will come a well paid proportion to our advancement. It will be an important & all the significant of success in all the ways of the world, as to the Cause in Liberia.

My kind regards to your dear family.

Yours Truly
