GALENA ITEMS.

Mrs. Ella Whitaker and daughter, Mrs. G. E. Hicks, who have been visiting Mrs. Maggie Linthicum, of Baltimore, returned home the last of the week.

Mr. Alfred Smith, with his little nephew, William, of Wilmington, has been visiting his father, Rev. Alfred Smith, D. D.

The Ushers Union held their regular meeting on Monday evening of last week and planned to hold a Box Social evening of December 6th.

Agitation There is Pros... and Because of the signa... liet—Importance of the E... Maryland Next Year—Senator.

While, under ordinary condition... passing of the presidential el... would also be the passing of po... for a time at least, no rest is in s... not in Maryland.

At least there are enough causes... work to keep politics moving for anot... year and then will come the legislat... session and that will mean more po... ties.

In the first place the Progressives promise to keep things lively by trying to gain supremacy, to "swallow" the Republican party, as one of the Progressive leaders explains the purpose of the new party.

Then, to keep up the interest, the Republicans will naturally object to being "swallowed." This means fight and a political battle is always interesting.

Still again there is unrest in the Democratic party. One of the contributing causes to this unrest is the election of Woodrow Wilson as president, the election to be followed by contests between regular and independent Democrats for the important federal officers. This contest means constant agitation for a year and a half.

If the Republicans, Progressives and Democrats let agitation lapse into a state of "innocuous desuetude," Mr Anderson, the Antisaloon League superintendent, will keep things a-going. It will be the next legislature or never for Mr. Anderson.

Already the big political van for next year is beginning to move in Maryland, for important offices are then to be filled, including a United States senatorship.

ACTIVITY OF PROGRESSIVES.

The activity of the Progressives is venting itself in several directions.

They are trying to keep their organization alive and to extend it. With this object in view they are arranging a conference in the near future. Col. E. C. Carrington, Jr., the leader of the Progressive party in Maryland, after a conference in New York with national Progressive leaders, will call together the local party leaders to discuss their future. At this conference it is proposed to take steps to have the courts decide the mooted question of minority representation. The pressing of this question demonstrates that the Progressives are not unmindful of the loaves and fishes of politics. It will be an interesting legal battle to determine which is really the minority party in Maryland with a Republican as governor, the Republican, the Democratic or the Progressive party. If the Progressive party is the majority party, then what is the position of the Republican party? If the Republican party is not the majority, then what is the Democratic party? If the Democratic party is not the minority party, then it must be the majority party. If the Progressive party is the majority and the Democratic party the minority party, then Governor Goldsborough, who is a Republican, must ignore his own party.

Lawyers differ on the construction of the law. The state law, which provides for minority representation, uses the words "general election," which is generally accepted in Maryland as meaning a state election. The chief point in the controversy is to determine whether the Republicans or Progressives shall participate in the next primaries. Hence the necessity of a court decision. Whichever party is ruled out can secure nominations to offices by the petition plan, which plan the Progressives employed prior to the recent election to secure the presence of the names of their candidates for electors on the official ballot.

The Progressives propose to enkindle more enthusiasm and to fortify their organization by forming a city club, of which A. A. Moreland will be the head. The city committee of the Progressive party will meet this evening in headquarters in the Equitable Building. At this meeting plans will be discussed for organization of a club. The German-American Lincoln Club, which lined up with the Progressives during the recent campaign, will keep up the fight, and it is proposed to increase the membership of the club to 1,000.

The Republicans have a surfeit of politics for the time being. They propose to let conditions drift for a time. They declare that they can well afford to adopt this course, as no campaign is just now in sight.

DEMOCRATS RESTLESS.

Maryland Democrats are restless. They have won a big victory, but they can see no fruits of that victory within their grasp. And, what is more, the regulars are apprehensive that the independents will bear off all the honors and emoluments that go with the victory. The independents are so conducting themselves that they are laying the foundation for the belief that the offices are due to them and that the best way to get them is to discredit the organization and its work during the campaign and at the election.

Because of the divisions among the Republicans and because of the permanence of those divisions, if the Progressives hold their present plans, the regular Democrats are not apprehensive of a serious fight against them next pear by the independents. Hence, they are looking forward with complacency to a record-breaking majority in the Senate and House of Delegates, a majority sufficiently large to enable them to pass all bills of their devising over Governor Goldsborough's vetoes, including if they so decree, bills which will transfer all the important nonconstitutional offices from the Governor to the Democratic Board of Public Works, or a Democratic commission the appointing power now wielded by the Governor. They can also pass a charter for Baltimore that best suits their needs. They can retake possession of road construction in the state. They can again assume control of the police force of this city. They can seize the Liquor License Board.

There is not much prospect of a quarrel among the Democrats for the federal offices until after the next election, as those offices will not be filled until a year shall have elapsed, with the exception of the Postoffice of Baltimore. Mr Harris' successor may be appointed by President Taft in February, a month before the inauguration of President Wilson.
