Pretty Outfits That Harmonize With The Wearer And Occasion.

New York, November.

Some one who knows has said that any woman can be well dressed for all occasions if she possesses "a smart street suit, a good evening dress and a pretty tea gown." Add to this a long coat of the order that covers the dress and will do for day or evening wear and most women could get along nicely with this outfit provided all the pieces harmonized and the smaller belongings, hats, footwear, gloves and blouses corresponded.

THE ENSEMBLE COATS.

It's the effect made as a whole that counts, for harmony makes for distinction in dress. Everyone knows how surprisingly improved in appearance many people are when they put on mourning, though the sable dress is itself trying to any but a blooming complexion. People who are not sure of their dress instinct would do well to stick to a one-color scheme therefore choosing the quiet tone that is most becoming and varying this with little accessories, in some pretty and fashionable contrasting color which relieves the monotony. Just now pretty contrasting linings are faddish especially for the long coats of cloth or fur that are a necessity if one is to be well turned out for any occasion—in fact with the right sort of coat the suit may be dispensed with, and a tailored style of street dress substituted at less cost, since the latter can be easily made by a home dressmaker.

Velveteen dresses after simple models or those of nice corduroy, last well and go almost anywhere, and dresses of satin or serge can be made after the right styles, equally dressy. French designers show great preference for navy blue serge with black satin sashes, collars and buttons and add just a little striking embroidery to the four inch sash end, giving distinction to the whole garment. Such embroideries can be had at most shops, or are surely to be found where Oriental goods are carried.

THE LATEST HATS.

While the small hat is the leading favorite, large shapes are not by any means. In fact, if a woman cannot find the right hat this year it must be because she is impossible to suit. Puffy styles in velvet are almost sure to be becoming especially in black, and a bit of color can be added in the trimming to harmonize hat and dress, or to increase becomingness. Puffed tam crowns with plainly covered narrow brims are exceedingly popular and the favorite garniture is a bit of paradise feather in its natural yellow tone, or dyed black. A pretty girlish hat of black velvet seen the other day had the crown surrounded by a narrow band of white ostrich that was apparently tied together at the side by a bow of inch-wide white picot-edged ribbon. This ribbon with the looped edge, also all the wider flowered ribbons are decidedly faddish just now both for hat trimmings and for the flat sashes that everyone is wearing.

A TOUCH OF FUR.

A touch of fur is both pretty and exceedingly modish, and when a great variety of pelts are used almost anyone can possess either a pretty fur set, or the cosy long coat that every woman would like to own. Skins are now dressed to soft suppleness and linings are so pretty that there is nothing clumsy about such a garment. C. C. Shayne & Co. are showing many exclusive styles in all sorts of fur garments, and among the special furs for automobile wear, designed for style and service one can often secure exceptionally good looking garments at figures that appeal to clever dressers, and still be sure of quality and unexcelled finish. Marmot, which means dyed squirrel, comes this year in some entirely new effects, one closely resembling chinchilla, and combinations are in greatest vogue not only for furs but all along the line.

NEW FOOTWEAR.

Both slippers and boots emphasize the combination idea. Colored uppers with matching buttons and black foxings are the rule for dress boots. Evening shoes and slippers of black satin are the choice of the conservative woman, though slippers to match the dress are especially modish.

Anty Drudge helps Mrs. Bride dry Her Tears.

Anty Drudge—"What! Tears—so soon Mrs. Bride? Well, well, now tell me all about it. Did you and George quarrel?"

Mrs. Bride—"Oh! No, no, Anty. I am so discouraged. I tried to do the wash this morning and—the hard rubbing and hot water hurt and scalded my hands so I had to stop. I—I know I shall never be able to do it."

Anty Drudge—"There, there, dearie, of course your soft, little hands can't stand scalding water and hard rubbing. But you can do your wash—just as well as anybody—in cool or lukewarm water. Now dry your eyes, while I run over to the grocer and get a cake of Fels-Naptha, and show you how an up-to-date wife does her wash."

Is one soap as good as another?
Is one cook as good as another?
Is one doctor as good as another?

If you have never used Fels-Naptha soap as it should be used—in cool or lukewarm water—it will be a revelation in an easy way of washing.

All you have to do when you wash the Fels-Naptha way is soap the clothes well, soak them for about thirty minutes, rub lightly, rinse thoroughly and hang out on the line.

No soapy, smelly, nauseating steam.

No parboiling of hands and arms or ruining your complexion.

No back-breaking or rubbing.

And you are all through long before the usual hour.

Fels-Naptha saves the clothes—makes them wear longer. Use any time of the year.

Follow the directions on the red and green wrapper.
