A Severe Sickness Leaves The Kidneys Weak

After recovering from a severe spell of sickness some time ago, I was all run down and suffering from poor blood. I would have pains in my back and hips and my kidneys bothered me all the time. I started taking Swamp-Root upon the recommendation of a friend and found it was just what I needed. My blood became all right and after taking a few bottles, I was surprised at the effect it had on my kidneys. They were entirely cured and I have much to be thankful for that your great remedy did for me.

Yours very truly,
W. O. BLACKMON,
Phoenix City, Ala.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this the 14th day of July, 1909.

JONES WILL CASE.

The Queen Anne's Circuit Court, with Judges Hopper and Adkins on the bench, was engaged last week trying the Jones will case, removed there from Kent county.

Mr. Richard Jones died some time during 1912, and left a will by which he devised his property to his grandchildren, sons of Mr. Sterling Jones. He did not leave anything to his daughter, Mrs. Spencer Harris, or to his son Sterling. Mrs. Harris brought the suit for the purpose of having the will set aside, claiming that her father did not have testamentary capacity and also that the will was obtained by undue influence. The case was given to the jury Friday afternoon and they returned that evening with a verdict for the defendant, sustaining the will.

Mason Morfit, of Baltimore, William W. Beck, of Chestertown, and J. H. C. Legg, of Centerville, represent Mrs. Harris, the plaintiff, and S. Scott Beck, Hope H. Barroll, of Kent, and T. J. Keating, of Centreville, represented the defendants.

TOGHWOGH Tribe, No. 169, of the Improved Order of Red Men, of the reservation of Massey, gave a festival for the benefit of the Order on the green at the M. E. Church last Saturday evening. A large crowd was in attendence. Both young and old came out to see the Indians in their war paint and clothes, and they claim that the Toghwogh Indians gave them their money's worth and had the finest festival ever held in the town, and of course this made the Red Men feel happy, and they appreciate the kindness and courtesy the pale faces showd them. May the palefaces and the Red Men be friends forever.

Resolutions of Respect.

Fairlee Grange No. 249 realizing most deeply the loss it has sustained in the death of Bro. Joshua McCleary, wish to place upon record this testimonial of their respect and appreciation of one who was always deeply interested in the progress and prosperity of the Grange, and always faithful and conscientious in the discharge of all the duties it placed upon him.

Resolved, That we recognized in him a man of superior natural ability and call to remembrance his tender pathetic poems so expressive of the sorrows and disappointments of life. He was a kind husband, a faithful, indulgent father, a good friend, and a helpful neighbor. In the calm repose of death, may his troubled soul find rest and "light perpetual shine upon him."

We extend to the bereaved family, the widow, the daughter, the sons and the grand-children, our heartfelt sympathy in this hour of their sorrow, and commend them to the care of "Him who doeth all things well" and direct that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, spread upon the minutes of the Grange and published in the county papers.

WONDERS OF THE TELEPHONE

BY HERBERT N. CASSON.

The telephone business is not like any other business on the face of the earth. It is the most remarkable combination of science and mystery, of human and mechanical, of wire and wits, of highly skilled specialists and the general public.

Any little child can be the engineer of a telephone talk. Any little baby can send its cooings hundreds of miles along the wire to its father at the other end. And yet, at the mystery end of the telephone, not even John J. Carty, master of telephone science, can explain or even comprehend some of the phenomena of a telephone exchange.

I once asked Alexander Graham Bell if he really understood the workings of a telephone receiver, and he replied: "Why, of course not; nobody does." I also asked Mr. Emile Berliner if he could explain exactly what happened in a telephone transmitter, and he replied: "No, I can't. It is as great a mystery today as it was thirty years ago."

Think of the marvel of it! Here is an intricate network of wires and disks and electric currents and electric lights and keys and jacks and bells and cords and cables this mechanism is so delicate that it is actually operated by the very slightest sounds It is not set in motion by steam or gasoline, but by Breath. The slight vibration of the vocal cords is actually the power that puts the vast telephone mechanism in operation.

A telephone system is an immense and wide spread mechanism of voice machinery. There is nothing else like it. It stands by itself as a marvelous thing which anyone can use and which nobody can understand.

So the telephone business is fascinating because there is no end to it. The job is always bigger than the worker. There is always more to learn. No matter how wise we are, we can never be quite wise enough. And no matter how hard we think, the thing will always be a little bigger than the thought.

The telephone business branches out into the great new field of electrical science. It branches into the field of voice study and elocution. It links itself to the metal trade and the rubber business. It is half indoor and half outdoor. It goes everywhere. It concerns everybody Like the rain, it benefits alike the just and the unjust. And it has become so necessary that any family today without a telephone is in the dumb animal class and behind the times.
