Any Freight?

It used to be that when a farmer wanted information about shipments, he went to the freight depot. Sometimes, he made three trips for a piece of freight. Now, he goes to his telephone, calls up the freight office---and he knows in a minute. In this way, he saves time---as well as wear and tear on his team and wagon.

TO KENT IN CANOE

Harry C. Davis of Hoboken, N. J. landed on Capt. Jim Middletown's beach Friday July 18th in an 18 ft. canoe carrying a 300 lb. outfit, and 47 sq. feet of sail. He is on his way from New York to Federalsburg, Caroline Co. Md. to visit relatives, and so far traveled 120 miles by water in 13 days.

The outfit consists of a Marquette Canoe tent, a folding chair, a convertable table or duffle box containing grub a kerosene vaporizing stove and waterproof canvas duffle bags. The sailing consists of a latten sail and leeboards and there are also a pair of double paddles for paddling when there is no wind. The tent is made of 8 oz. khaki duck and is inclosed in front by a door of fine mosquito mesh with the neatly drawn dragon fly, "histodom" painted thereon and a neatly cut window in the back.

A heavy waterproof canvas floor hooks inside making in insect and vermin proof.

The Canoe is an 18 ft. Oldtown weighing 90 lbs. and is painted olive drab to match the woods.

The course taken is as follows:-Down the Hudson River across N. Y. Bay threw the Kill von Kull and Staten Island Sound, uy the Raritan River to New Brunswick N. J, through the Del. and Raritan Canal to Brodentown N, J. down the Del. to Del. City through the Del. and Chesapeake Canal to Chesapeake City, Md. than down Back Creek and Elk river into Chesapeake bay. The remaining course is down the Chesapeake to Fishing bay up the Nanticoke river to Marshy hope Creek to Frederalsburg, Md., which he expects to make in a week or more.

Just before the trip was started his partiet who had planned to make the trip with him backed out, so not wishing to be disappointed is making the trip alone, and he surely has received kind treatment by everybody along the line and wants to thank all fore their share in making him feel at home. A true Southerine Spirit of hospitabily.

In landing at Capt. Jim Middletown's flaming shore he found a party of campers comprising the interesting family of Dr. Wm. A. Pillsbury, of Baltimore, Md.
