The Great Improved Order Red Men For Chestertown.

Mr. John W. Walker Great Sachem, accompanied by Past Great Sachem, John W. Lowdenslager, representing the Improved Order of Red Men, visited Chestertown recently and were in conversation with Messrs. Olin B. Stafford, Wm. Burk and Enoch Latham who were making strenuous strides in organizing a tribe of said Order in this locality. They have 47 names on the list now and expect to have at least 60 by the time of institution, which was decided by those present and sanctioned by the Great Sachem. Expects to have in attendance one of the crack degree teams of the State to confer the degrees, as also a representation of Sitting Bull tribe at Rock Hall, Osceola tribe at Piney Neck, and Tockwogh tribe at Massey, all of which are in Kent county and are good hustling branches of Order.

This new tribe has started right, as they are in position to give $250 death benefits and all become full beneficial for same at time of institution, they also will arrange to give $4.00 a week for 12 weeks and $2.00 for the next 12 weeks, $1.00 for as long as the brother is sick. The Order has at present 10,000 members in the State and have made a steady increase during this term which ended the 30th of June, and we look for about 400 more by the last of December. The Great Sachem is trying to have a band in attendance but at this time has not met with much success. Information as to the aforesaid tribe can be obtained of either Olin B. Stafford, Enoch Latham, or Wm. Burk who will be pleased to be interviewed on the subject. A preliminary meeting will be called on Monday evening, Aug. 25.

DROWNS AT BETTERTON.

While several hundred passengers on the steamer Annapolis watched, helpless to aid him, Robert Rolling, colored, of Still Pond, was drowned at Betterton shortly after noon Tuesday. Heroic efforts were made to rescue the man after he had fallen in the water, but he was so dazed that he made no effort to assist those who were trying their best to save him. Rollings slipped from the pier as he was catching a rope which had been thrown from the Annapolis preparatory to the berthing of the vessell.

When the Annapolis drew in to the pier at Betterton Rollings was on the edge of the pier. The string line attached to the heavier rope was tossed to him. He attempted to catch it, but lost his balance and fell into the water. Ropes were thrown to him by the crew of the boat and by several men on the wharf. Instead of grabbing the rope Rolling seemed dazed and went under for the second time. Captain Eliason, president of the Tolchester Company, who was on the boat, and Captain Welsh, the commander, shouted to the young men on the wharf to throw off lumber that was lying on the pier. This was done and a number of planks were thrown into the water. A number of young men and women in a rowboat hurried in the direction of the drowning man but before they arrived he had disappeared for the last time beneath the surface of the water. The body was recovered about a half hour after the drowning.
