Cape Palmas January 27. 1835.—

Dear Sir /

The Brig Bourne Capt. Ganteaume arrived in our harbour three days since having on Board Mr. Gould, the Society's special Agent and 58 Emigrants, all in good health, having lost one on the passage. They are now safely landed and well. I have not as yet seen them, not being able to leave the house, and until to day, to sit up since their arrival. I have been confined most of the time for this month past. Have been able to render Mr. Wilson and family some assistance. They are all far recovered except Mrs. W. who was attacked last, and still remains very ill. You will readily see therefore that the arrival of Mr. Gould under existing circumstances was extremely opportune. & I cannot but hope that he will be induced to make this his field of action. I am astonished that the despatches which I sent by the Sarah & Priscilla have not arrived; they were very full of matter suited to the coloured population. I sent my semiannual a/cs made up to Sept. 1st. by the Schr. Edgar, or rather I sent them to Mr. Finney to be put on board her then at Cape Mesurado.— Rest assured I have written every opportunity, I cannot now sit up long enough to write but a few lines. But were I able I would try to convince you that it would not be reasonable for the Gentlemen of the board to expect me to have a freight of Camwood on hand, or that I am over full of funds, I must however desist by affirming that I use all possible economy and I defy any man to do better in this respect than I have. This is saying enough you'll reply, but let any man come on the ground and I'll prove it.—

I fear I shall have to draw on you ere I receive a new supply but not unless unavoidable. You will receive a draft of 100 or so in favor of Rufourim for nails. Should you send out more goods before I write again or rather before you hear further, I wish only the following and in the
