SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1913.

THE commissions for Sheriff and two commissioners have been received by Clerk Dixon. These new officials will likely enter upon their duties on Monday.

THE NEWS is glad to state that the officials of the Kent Railroad have ordered three ark lights for the Chestertown depot besides additional lights for the building. The Gas Co. will furnish the outfit.

AM I RIGHT?

EDITORS KENT NEWS:

The writer has an inquiring disposition and is persuaded that nine tenths of the white voters of our good old state are honest inquirers along some of the lines of which I now wish to write.

The Maryland Legislature will convene in the very near future at the State Capitol, and the members that will be expected to act with more than the average intelligence upon many questions, some of which have already their advocates on the stump and others blazing away in the daily papers for recognition. Please do not understand me as being desirous to appear as overdrawing or unkind. My purpose is to learn how certain things can be expected at the hands of the legislators and to the absolute exclusion of other interests.

It has been my great pleasure to observe the manifested interest of some of our public men (notably John Walter Smith) in the fostering and maintenance of the school for the education of our boys and girls. I have tried, too, to keep pace with the hard worked and hard working school masters and mistresses. Most of whom are the learned and really scholarly men and women in our midst. After leaving the public schools, these men and women have spent years in colleges and other institutions of learning, and there equipped themselves for a life's work. Who under the heavens can relate the various and sometimes the severest sacrifices that have been made by parents and guardians that the ambition of the son or daughter might be realized? Thus equipped, they enter our schools, take our little and big children by the hand, by the heart and by the head thereby succeeding in instilling within them the foundation principles of learning—and, too, give unquestionable insight to those things that go to make them patriotic and law-abiding citizens. This has been going on since I was a little boy, and is being done even more successfully in the schools of today. I venture the assertion that (with very few exceptions) every man and woman who has reached middle life, having spent the most of their school days in our public schools, are glad of an opportunity to shake the hand of an old teacher and call them blessed.

I have been doing some figuring, too, relative to the compensation of these worthy and beloved friends of the public. I figure that the average salary, taking the state as a whole, is about $450 00. Is it enough? I do not think so, since they are required to be equal to a very severe examination. The state authorities are entirely in the right when the applicant is expected to measure up to this test, as that has insured the competency we have enjoyed these many years, and yet we see them going down on the other side of the hill with broken-health and bowed form, and not a legislator in sight preparing a compensation bill for their declining years. Many of these teachers have taught three generations with a compensation that was hardly sufficient to keep soul and body together. Mr. Legislator, think of it, and bend your energies to increase the salary and my word for it, they will not ask for a pension.

I find some strong articles in the papers which are asking the Legislature to increase the salary of Judges. Let's see, he gets now $5,000 a year, ten times as much as the teacher; and when he has spent fifteen years or less, he is placed on the pension list at $2500 a year. What does all this mean? Are the friends of the Judges' salaries contemplating an increase in salary and later increase the pension? Does the Judge on the bench for a period of fifteen or even thirty years spend his energies in moulding character and educate the populace as the teacher? We think not. Then what makes the difference in the salaries? Could it be possible that such difference may be found within the lids of two volumes of "Blackstone?" Now, Messrs Editors, I am not endeavoring to expend a stream of sarcasm toward the bench and bar of this State. Marylanders are proud of their Judiciary, for we regard them as the equal of the very best in any State in the Union. But what I have said and what can be said with regard to the public school teacher, the compensation they receive, and the let alone they are going to get when their work is done, leads me to ask with all the honesty of a citizen. Am I not right?

Town. JUSTICE.

ENCOURAGING LETTER.

November 10, 1913.

MR. USILTON:

I see by your paper of Saturday that the ladies of the Town Relief Association are trying to start an Old Peoples Home in Chestertown. I think it is a spendid undertaking. Why can't you boom the enterprise by giving a small space in your valuable paper for the people to ask questions, offer suggestions or contributions or otherwise turn on the light. Such a home would be a credit to the town and a blessing to poor, and I suggest that of the eleven persons in town who have to pay the new income tax that one or more or maybe all of them donate enough to the home to bring their income to the taxless limit. It would be grand for the home and just as well for them as they have to give it anyway and the Government will spend it in battleships and ammunition of war that only makes more widows and orphans. Think of it Mr. Usilton and put your pen and paper to work for the cause. It will be a monument to all who help push it through. Respectfully,

AN OLD SUBSCRIBER.

Killed.—Wesley Watson, a highly respected colored man, formerly of Broad Neck, Kent county, was killed while working on the railroad near Media, Pa., Monday. His remains were brought down on the Kent train Wednesday and interred in the cemetery at Broad Neck. About fifty colored residents from Media accompanied the body.
