Balto. Sept 15th 1861 –

I have but a moment to devote to you, but as the business is, to me important, I must write – I was very very much surprised at the article in your last, introducing me & all about me into your paper – pretty correct & pretty well appreciated I know what I felt was private or at least domestic talk between us – to say the least, it was in very bad taste & totally unasked for – I have the impression this it must have come directly from me – Oh, it was unfair Brother, & how you could have done it I cannot conceive –

I am exceedingly annoyed, but not offended, indeed, I cannot be with you, bro. I have no heart in protesting against anything of the kind again – although it seems, nothing else miniures meant – I could pull your little ears & hair too, not playfully either – I pray God you have not sent your paper any where that I am known – Ruff cut – Yours truly but weakly Yours Stillman B. Dorsett
