the consequent abandonment of the undertaking of the cultivation of Cotton. The ignorance and poverty of most of our Emigrants has up to this time prevented any extensive exertions to re-establish the business, & most of the Pecuniary capital of the settlers is now employed in the cultivation of the Sugar cane which, if it shall be found to be as productive as it appears to be, will be a very valuable acquisition to our Colony, & may render it one of the most valuable Colonies of Great Britain. Andrew Hall, from Wilmington, who has been at Mr. Roger Wall's in charge of a large Sugar Plantation in the Sugar Region — is thoroughly versed in the business, & the emigrants to Liberia the coming year, will have the benefit of his experience & skill. Indian Stalks, which are very productive
