THE TREATY—THE PRESIDENCY.

Washington, Feb. 28, 1828.

The Senate recommenced operations to-day on the Treaty, in secret session.—What was done remains to be ascertained. I have no doubt the Treaty will be under discussion for a week or more at least, before final action on it will be had. It is a great question, and may not be disposed of for several weeks.

In the House, in committee of the whole, on one of the appropriation bills, (Mr. W. Hunt in the chair,) a discussion of the Presidential question and of the claims of General Taylor for the Presidency, was commenced by Mr. Giddings, of Ohio, and carried on mainly, by Mr. Stewart, of Pa., Mr. Henley, of Indiana, Mr. Duer, of New York, and others, which I must say, although it afforded much amusement and a great deal of laughter, was ill-timed and out of place. It consumed time and could not possibly be productive of the least good, to either of the two great parties of the day, or to the country.

The speech of Mr. Schenck, who opened the debate, was able and eloquent, and showed up to the life the gross profligacy of the matter in the administration in the matter of sundry expenditures to reward p rtisans.

Mr. Schenck had been confined to his room by indisposition, for some time past, and it was pleasant to all Whigs to see him at his post again ready and willing as well as able, to make wicked Locofocoism tremble!

One of the best things in the whole debate was said by Mr. Durer, in reply to sundry interrogatories of Mr. Henry, who among other things, asked him if he would vote for General Taylor, if the nominee of his party, if the old General were to declare himself opposed to the Wilmot Proviso?

Mr. Duer said the Wilmot Proviso might be an abstraction, or it might be a grave principle. But this he would say, he would sooner vote for a Southern advocate of slavery, who honestly avowed his principles yea, he would vote for John C. Calhoun, sooner than for a Northern dough-face'—[Excellent!]

Mr. Henley said he would not trouble the gentleman from New York and further and the House roared!

Letters have been received here from leading Whigs in Kentucky, describing, in glowing terms, the unanimity and enthusiasm for Clay of the Whig State Convention at Frankfort. Nothing of the kind was ever known to surpass the manifestations which were exhibited of the esteem in which Mr. Clay was universally held. And next to him, the enthusiasm was unanimous for General Taylor. They were all Clay men and all Taylor men! This is right!

Mr. Crittenden accepts the nomination for Governor. He will carry all before him, of course.

My late fears, that the Clay men and Taylor men would not unite cordially, are rapidly dying away. I think I see the brightness of the future. Henry Clay for a moment, have I distrusted HIM; it was some of his injudicious friends, as well as some of the injudicious friends of General Taylor, who alarmed me! [We are glad our correspondent is again right in this matter. He and others may rest assured the Whigs will have but one candidate for the Presidency, and on him the party will be united. This skirmishing before the great battle, will only produce healthy action.—Patriot.]

It is asserted by some, that the Treaty makes provision for the payment by the United States, of the sum due from Mexico to our citizens, claimants for spoliations.—The amount is put down, for the most part, at about five millions of dollars, for both adjusted and unadjusted claims!

Now who knows the amount of the just claims of our citizens against Mexico, for spoliations and violations of treaties and laws! About two millions have already been adjudicated and allowed. But who shall say there are of are not just three millions more? Let the treaty have a clause obligating the Government of the United States to pay all the claims of our citizens against Mexico, which a Board of Commissioners shall find to be just. And let the Board be appointed—Why dally in this matter? Why trifle with the claimants? If their claims are just, let the fact be ascertained, and let the United States pay them.—Those that may not be just, should be set aside, separated from the others—and the quicker the better. The matter is of importance to the Government which makes these claims the asbasis for the war, and to the citizens of the United States who hold the claims.—It should he promptly attended to.
