story; and, with the exclamation, she went forth to seek her home and sue for forgiveness, heart-broken as she was.

It was snowing fast, but she did not heed it. She had thrown on a bonnet, and a light shawl; but had forgotten to change her thin shoes, or to assume a cloak.—The melting flakes penetrated her slight attire, but she hurried on, breasting the wild tempest.

She arrived at last in the proud square where her father lived, and stood a few moments after in front of the house. The window shutters were still open, though twilight had set in, and though the curtains the ruddy glow of the fire within shot athwart the stormy night. A sharp pain twitched her in the heart; she felt pain, and and staggering up the steps, just managed to pull tha bell, when conciousness departed from her.

The servant who answered the door, started and cried out when he saw apparently a lifeless corpse lying on the step, with the fast falling snow rapidly covering it, and Mr. and Mrs. Warren, who were sitting by the parlor fire, coming out to learn the cause of the disturbance, staggered to behold in the emancipated form, their disobedient child.

They took her in—they wrapped her in warm clothing—they laid her on her own bed—but it was to no avail. She revived just enough to ask their forgiveness, and received it from them weeping. Then murmering blessings on them, she died.

This may be thought fancy sketch; but it is not. It may be thought an excessive case; it is not that either. Caroline Collins, or Warren, as we would rather call her, was early delivered from her sufferinge; and in that, terrible as death may seem to the young and happy, she was blessed. There are others victims of runaway matches, who drag out an existence so miserable that the grave itself would be a relief.

But as the Scripture impressively says—they that sow the whirlwind shall reap the storm.

DEMOCRATIC WHIG NOMINATION.

FOR GOVERNOR

WILLIAM B. CLARKE,

OF WASHINGTON COUNTY.

Election, Wednesday, the 2nd of October

☞Hon Jas. A. Pearce will accept our thanks for a valuable public Documents.

The Election.

We publish below the returns of the Election in Kent county. It will be seen that the Whigs have succeeded in electing their Ticket. A great many Whigs preferred remaining at home, enjoying their comfort and ease, rather than taking a pleasant ride on a most delightful day to perform one of the highest duties that can devolve upon a citizen. The Whigs of other parts of the State, seem to have been taking a snooze, and will awake when it is too late to remedy the mischief occasioned by their inactivity.

PROF. WEBSTER'S FAMILY.—The family of Prof. Webster were informed of his death on Friday morning, immediately after the execution.

Their informant was the Rev. Dr. Putnam of Roxbury, who has been a firm friend of the family, and spiritual adviser to the Professor. Their lamentations are said to have been heart-rendering—the event, though of course expected, coming upon them rather suddenly. Mrs. Webster gave to her daughters consolation, and an example of firmness under affliction, certainly praiseworthy.

The Rev. gentleman comforted them with the assurance, that though the body had ceased its vitality, the soul would live forever, and by repentance such as had been evinced by the departed, life and happiness eternal were attained.

In the afternoon, the afflicted family were visited by Mrs. Prescott, sister to Mrs. Webster.

CATTLE SHOW AND FAIR.

The Md. Agricultural Society will hold their annual Cattle Show and fair near this city, in the coming month. As these exhibitions and the premiums awarded, cost a considerable sum of money, it is not considered just that the expenses should fall upon the members of the association exclusively. They are for the public benefit; and we understand, that it is the invariable practice in other States, to defray the expenses of such exhibitions by voluntary contributions. We are, therefore, pleased to learn, that the Society has resolved to pursue the same course here; and for that purpose has appointed the following named gentlemen to solicit contributions from the citizens of Baltimore. We have no doubt that they will be entirely successful in raising the required amount of funds. The committee will commence the discharge of their duties in a few days.

John Kettlewell, Charles M. Keyser, Dr. J. O Wharton, J. H. Luckett, Edward Reynolds, R. N. Millburn, Robert Sinclair, Jr. Thomas W. Levering.—Clipper.

DREADFUL TRAGEDY.—In Louisville on Thursday last, a man named John Figg, went to a notorious house in that city, and entered a room occupied by Elizabeth Smkhorn, and, after the interchange of a few words with her drew a pistol and shot her in the side, and shot himself in the side. He died almost immediately.

There is no hope for the recovery of the girl. He was the paramour of the girl who is only 16 or 17 years of age.

MR CLARKE.—We are happy to state to the Whigs of the State that in this region the prospects of Mr. Clarke, the Whig candidate for governor, are not only "bright but brightening." The Whigs are in the finest spirits in this county. Entire harmony prevails, and when the day of election arrives, old Alleghany will do as she has always done in general elections, her duty and nothing but her duty. Mark that!—Cumberland Civilian.

LETTER FROM PROF. WEBSTER TO REV. DR. FRANCIS PARKMAN.

The following letter, communicated for the Boston Transcript, was addressed by Prof. Webster to the Rev. Dr. Parkman, and a copy retained in the possession of the former, which he confided to a friend with permission to make such disposition of it as he might see fit, after his own decease. The Transcript mentions this in order that the gentleman, to whom the letter was addressed, may not be suspected of having disregarded the request which it contains:

BOSTON, August 6, 1850.

Rev. Dr. Parkman. Dear Sir:—I cannot leave this world in the peace of mind for which I pray, without addressing you as the head of the family which I have so deeply injured and afflicted, to make known to you and them the bitter anguish of soul, the sincere contrition and penitence I have felt at having been the cause of the affliction under which you and they have been called to mourn. I can offer no excuse for my wicked and fatal ebullition of passion but what you already know nor would I attempt to palliate it.

I had never until the two or three last interviews with your brother, felt towards him anything but gratitude for his many acts of kindness and friendship. That I should have allowed the feelings excited on those occasions to have overpowered me so as to involve the life of your brother, and my own temporal and eternal welfare, I can, even now, hardly realize.

I may not receive from you forgiveness in this world, yet I cannot but hope and believe you will think of me with compassion, and remember me in your prayers to Him who will not turn away from the humble and repentant. Had I many lives with what joy would I lay them all down could I, in the least, atone for the injury I have done, or alleviate the affliction I have caused; but I can now only pray for forgiveness for myself and for every consolation and blessing upon every member of your family.

In justice to those dearest to me, I beg to assure you, and I entreat you to believe me, no one of my family had the slightest doubt of my entire innocence up to the moment when the contrary was communicated to them by Dr. Putnam. That they have your sincere pity and sympathy I feel assured.

There is no family towards every member of which I have always felt a greater degree of respect and regard than that of which you are now the head. From more than one I have received repeated acts of friendship and kindness, for which I have ever been and am most truly grateful.

Towards yourself particularly have not only my own feelings been those of the most sincere regard and gratitude, but every individual of my family has felt towards you that you were their pastor and friend. Often has my wife recalled the interest you took in her from her first becoming your parishoner, and often has she spoken, with feelings of deep gratitude of the influence of your public ministrations and of your private instructions and conversations, and of your direction of her inquiries and reading in what related to her religious views. These she has often recalled and referred to as having firmly established the religious faith and trust which are now such sources of consolation and support to her and our children, as well as to myself.

Nothing that has occurred has weakened these feelings, and although those I leave behind me, may not meet you without the keenest anguish, I trust you will exhonerate them from any participation in, or knowledge of the father's sin, up to the moment I have mentioned, and may you remember them in your prayers to the Father of the fatherless and the widow's God.

I beg you, my dear sir, to consider this strictly a private letter and by no means to give it publicity; at the same time I will request you to make known to the immediate members of your family the state of my feelings and my contrition.

That every consolation and blessing may be vouchsafed to yourself and to every member of your family, is the heartfelt prayer of

Yours, most respectfully,
(Signed,) J. W. WEBSTER.

POLITICAL DEMONSTRATION.—Last evening about 9 o'clock quite a demonstration was made by the "Young Democracy," opponents of the election of J. M. Turner, Esq., to the Mayoralty. Several hundred from the West End came down Baltimore street with a large pyramedial transparency on wheels, bearing numerous devices, and mottos, such as, "No Forced Mayor," "No District Law" "No Packed Convention," "A Clean Sweep," "Reubenites and Liberty," &c., and smaller transparencies with similar mottoes.—They were accompanied by a band of music. Opposite the Clipper office they were met by a party from the 9th ward, bearing a sheep skin stuffed and labelled "Anti-Turner," and another party from the fourth ward with transparencies bearing ludicrous mottoes. They formed in line and were proceeding quietly down Baltimore street, now and then cheering for Major Watkins and groaning for Col. Turner, when, at the corner of Holliday street, the whole police force and a body of the watch, charged upon the procession, destroying their small transparencies and taking the sheep-skin and large pyramid to the Central Police office. Some nine arrests were also made and the parties locked up. The pyramid was subsequently given up and taken by the "Reubenites" up town again. The demonstration was very orderly under the circumstances—the authorities, however, saw proper to put a stop to it. The right and justice of their action is a matter for the spectators and public to decide.—Clipper.

Jenny Lind at New York.

The New Yorkers are losing their wits about Jenny Lind. Poor creatures!—the Nightingale has turned their brains. Read what the New York Sun of yesterday says of her arrival at that port, on Sunday, in the Atlantic. Her reception excels that of the greatest conqueror or the benefactor of the human race, that has ever visited our shores. The New Yorkers are Lind mad The Sun says:

When the Atlantic reached her wharf the streets in the vicinity, for at least a block, were crowded, and vast accessions were being constantly made, whilst the decks and rigging of our neighboring vessels were black with persons anxious to get the first glimpse of one who, as yet, has been the admired of all admirers. Some preparations had been made to welcome the fair songtress. The long pier was decked with beautiful flowers, flags and evergreens, "Welcome to the Nightingale," and Jenny Lind welcome to America," being very appropriately interwoven among them. A line of matting, from the gang way to a new and very pretty carriage, expressly provided for Miss Lind's use during her stay in the country, had also been laid down, and many other little arrangements made evincing considerable taste. A temporary gate had been erected across the pier to keep back the crowd until after the debarcation was compete.

When all was ready, Capt. West appeared escorting Miss Lind, and, followed by Benedict and Belleti, who accompany her professionally, and also by Mr. Barnum, who had boarded the steamer at Quarantine, proceeded to the carriage, deafeating shouts of welcome and applause, in which the passengers and crew on the steamer joined, and a shower of beautiful bouquets, marking the rapid transit. The carriage was then driven rapidly to the Irving House, attended by an immense concourse of people.

The New York Herald contains about two of its closely printed pages, all about "Jenny," from which we extract the following:—

SCENE AT THE HOTEL.

An immense gathering soon collected at the corner of Chambers street and Broadway, in the hopes of seeing her at one of the windows, and every minute or two, as some of the ladies of the Irving House come to the windows to look out, they were mistaken by some one in the crowd for Jenny, when a cheer was raised, which was as quickly suppressed by the better discernment of the majority, with a laugh at the expense of the deceived. At length she made her appearance at one of the windows, when an unanimous cheer, loud and long, greeted her, and an electric enthusiasm stirred the entire multitude.

HER APARTMENT.

The suite of apartments prepared for the Nightingale are truly magnificient, being furnished in the highest style of art. The gorgeous sitting room is fit for a queen, and next to it is a splendid bed room, to which is attached an elegant bath room with bathing apparatus. The flag of Sweeden and Norway floated from the flag-staff of the Irving House all the evening.

THE HAVRE-DE-GRACE BANK AGAIN.—The news from Havre-de-Grace continues to daily dampen the prospects of the noteholders of this skeleton of a bank, bidding fair to render them only evidences of former existence of one of those grand paper-bubbles that have been so frequently located in our State by foreign money-shavers, and countenanced by our citizens, despite all the warning and cautions that could be given them. The following letter, from our Havre-de-Grace correspondent, will be read with interest, containing, as it does, some description of the assets in hand, as well as of the course adopted by the note-holders in that quarter to obtain their rights:

HAVRE-DE-GRACE, Sept. 2, 1850.

Messrs Editors:—According to promise, I will endeavor to assist your luminary in dispelling the mist which envelops the financial transactions of our paper mersheen. Facts are daily disclosing themselves which give abudant evidence of the most stupendous and barefaced frauds ever practised on a credulous community. Among the assets is a receipt reading thus:

"Rec'd, New York, August, 1850, of E. Collier, twenty-five thousand dollars in notes of the Havre de Grace Bank, to be circulated or returned

Signed, CHAS. HOOD, Att'y.

Also another similarly written, for $20,000, signed by John Jenkins, of Ohio.

Mr. E. Collier, the cashier, has been treated to quarters in Bel-air jail. The excitement against him is very great.

Liabilities of the bank to the amount of $90,000 are known to be in circulation.

I am still of the opinion that the President and Maryland directors were entirely ignorant of the practised fraud.

W. W. L.

P. S. I may as well inform you that I have just learned the president and all the Havre-de-Grace directors have been arrested. What will be done with them I do not know.—Baltimore Sun.

For the News.

MR. EDITOR:—I observed another communication in your valuable paper of last week, from "A part of the Class," in which in the first place he says 'I am deeply interested.' I am certainly interested, Mr. Editor, most deeply in the affairs of my alma mater, and pity the youth that is not. He says I have taken offence—I have taken no offence, at all sir, and dare him to prove that I have. He says I deny nothing—why sir, there is nothing in the whole article to deny. I assert and shall hold good that assertion, (unless I hear something very derogatory that he is dissatisfied. He then says we hear for the first time, &c. I then, sir, have the pleasing gratification of adding to the gentleman's knowledge. Listen, I beseech you sir, to his closing, dying, sentence: 'let him deny it if he can, if he dare to dispute that last year they were given by lot and this year by arrangement. Sir, it has nothing at all to do with the question. But let him dare to deny that he is dissatisfied, he cannot. It is a truth that will stand the wreck of matter, and the crush of worlds and he dare not by his conscience to deny it to

IMPORTANT FROM TEXAS.

A Telegraphic dispatch has reached this city dated New Orleans, Aug. 27, which states:—

The Texas Governor's message was referred to a committee of both houses—13 in the Senate and 21 in the House.
