THE UNPARDONABLE SIN

BY M. G. LEWIS.

In Crocket District, Tenn., there lived an electric, 'Sam,' who by the wandering sheep outside the fold, was yclept 'Jonah.' He was a zealous worker in Zion, of a sect known os the 'Iron Jacket and Hard Shelled,' who preached predestination, election, and once in grace, always in grace.

Imagine an individual with a short, wiry body—long and dangling arms—head as round and hard as an eighteen pounder, set deep between the shoulders, and ornamented with short, bristly hair, each one standing like a porcupine's quill—sharp set, pugracious phiz, the muscles there of twitching 'going it b'ind'—and a voice like the variation of a penny whistle—ornaments all told, a cotton shirt and linsey-woolsey pants—sermonizing:

'I say, brethern an' sister, ah!—I goes agin a college manufactory, ah!—whar they make ministers with the greased head ah!—an' thar fo'pence heeled boots an' long tailed coats, ah!—an' thar fippery an' foppery, ah! They come like hungry locusts of egypt, ah!—to preach their fangled doctrines and court the rich gals, ah! Now when Gad calls a man to preach, he'll gin him the education, ah! There was the 'postle Paul, a mighty sinner, ah! he lived in a cabin ov black jack poles, ah!—an' he fenced his patch all 'round mighty nice!—an' he raised a mighty fine chance ov truck, ah! Now, Gad saved his soul as he was riding his horse, ay.—An' he called him to preach, an' he gin him the edication, ah!—an' you never hearn such a preacher in yer born days, ah! So I goes agin it, case it's agin natur' an' the gospel, ah! Brother Gibbins pray for us, ah! Oh, ah,—A-m-e n!' and you both hear and see in the 'mind's eye' the aforementioned.

Ambition reigns in every breast, as well in the minister as the politician. Jonah was ambitious; not of fame, wealth or power—these were mere baubles to him—the highest of his ambition, and only one, was to be father of a camp meeting. At last the much coveted honor was his. Bright was his eye, firm was his step, as he moved about as master of ceremonies.

Be it known unto all, that 'tis the duty of the father to call the assemblage to prayers in the morning. This is done by means of a horn, (a large crooked ox horn) blown before light, to awaken the sleepers, then again for prayers.

The first night of the meeting, a heathen, forgetting that punishment treads upon the heels of transgression, broke into the horn sundry eggs that were unsaleable, and other unsavory matters, 'to numerous to mention.'

Before light in the morning, 'Jonah' grouped his way to the pulpit, and taking the horn placed it to the appendix of his mouth to give a blast that should rival Gabriel. He was not long, however, in discovering the trick; and loud and deep were the imprecations he leaped upon the offender for thus defiling one of the elect.—Mutters he, 'I am an old man—I am a bald-headed man—I am grey-haired man—and I have been a minister this forty years—but if I ever catch that d—d cuss that fixed my horn, by Gad, I'll lick him like h—l.'

How many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip! Yesterday no blushing maiden was ever more happy when hearing for the first time her lover's vows; but now what a fix!

"Othello's occupation's gone."

Seating himself apart, he looked upon the scene of his former glory like

"Patience on a monument smiling at grief."

During the day a great revival took place, many of the most hardened were before the alter, crying, shouting, and groaning. 'Misery likes company'—the scene attracted him—and his aympathy was drawn to a mourner, who seemed much troubled in spirit. 'A fellow feeling makes us wonderous kind,'—he knelt by his side.

"Mourner," said he, "Heaven is a powerful puty place."

"I know it," blubbered the mourner, but I am lost."

"You must come out from among the goats."

"I am a bad sinner."

"Yer'll get to hell if yer don't repent."

"I've committed a grievous sin."

"Yer hain't stole nothing from nobody?"

"Worse—worse."

"Yer haint broke the eleventh commandment?"

"Worse."

"Yer haven't killed nobody—if yer have, repent—it's a mighty bad sin, but the Lord has power on earth through his saints to make the vilest sinner clean.—Yes, brother confess your sins, or the power of the Lord will strike ye perhaps to yearth—yer will feel very happy—see the Spirit descending like Stars, ah, cry out in a loud voice."

"Well, I never done it," interrupted the mourner, "I reckon it's about as bad."

"Let me see, there is only one thing worse—yer haint committed the unpardonable sin, have ye?" cried the excited "Jonah," who began to fear he should lose the precious soul, "ef ye did, that's no hope for ye—the Old Boy will get his grabblers on ye sure and surtain as yer born."

"Well, I reckon I did; if not, it was mighty near it."

A light—not like that which struck St. Paul—but an idea broke in upon 'Jonah's' mind, and he was up and doing.

"Yes, yer dit et—yer must be that d—d cuss that fixed my horn—I'll give yer h—l." Whack—whack. He pitched into him like a dose of salts, and God's power through the agency of one of his saints, struck the mourner to the earth, and repeatedly made him feel very happy (if he could get away)—see stars and cry out with a loud voice "take him off"—and good reason he had for it, for an Old Boy had his grabblers on his optics.

KENT NEWS.

CHESTERTOWN, Md.

Saturday, December 28 185,

Our Paper.

Owing to the holidays, we can only publish this week, a half sheet.

Our Carrier.

Our Carrier, who is sometimes dubb'd the "Printer's Devil," has requested us to say to our patrons that he will make a special call on them on Wednesday next to tender to them the congratulations of the season, and to receive such tangible evidences of their regard as they, in a generous heart, may be willing to confer on one who in all changes and inclemencies of the weather makes his weekly round among them.

Loss of Jenny Lind.

We learn from passengers who came over in the Cecil, on Thursday, that a Telegraphic despatch had been received in Baltimore, announcing the loss at the Swedish Nightingale, and suite, on her passage from Wilmington, to Charleston; they were no doubt, in the storm of Monday last, but we trust the rumor is without foundation.

Teacher.

The Revd. Dr. C. F. Jones having resigned his professorship in the English Department of Washington College, the Visitors and Governors of the College, have supplied the vacancy by the election of Mr. McClennihan of Baltimore, who comes highly endorsed by Dr. F. Waters, Dr. Wright, and Mess. N. Brooks, and Mr Kerr—the last two, Teachers of high schools in the city.

TRIBUTE TO PRESIDENT TAYLOR—Upon receiving the news of the death of President Taylor, the U. S. Consul at Buenos Ayres, W. A. Harris, issued an address to his countrymen residing there, requesting them to wear crape on the left arm for six months, as a mark of respect to the illustrious deceased. The address concludes with the following tribute:

General Taylor has left a name and fame as unfading as they are glorious. It is chiefly as a gallant and successful military commander; the incorruptible and devoted patriot citizen; the amiable, unassuming, firm, and candid men, that posterity will remember and honor him. In his military career he earned for himself and his country imperishable fame. His name and his deeds are inscribed on one of the brightest and most glorious pages of his country's history, and they will forever stand associated with those of Washington, and Jackson, and Scott. His political career was too short to permit him fully to develope his capacity for civil station, but long enough to assure us of his honest intentions and patriotic purposes. But in the midst of his half developed policy; in the midst of the fiercest and the greatest agitation; in the midst of the stern conflicts of giant minds and of excited passions; and surrounded by the sympathies of a great nation, he is struck from the highest pinnacle of earthly glory, and carried to the mansions of the dead! "He endeavored to do his duty;" let us honor his memory.

FUGITIVE SLAVE CASE.—Great Excitement.—About one o'clock yesterday afternoon a young colored man about 24 years old, named Adam Gibson was arrested at the corner of Second and Lombard streets on a charge of stealing chickens. He resisted, but a pistol was put to his head, and without further trouble he was taken to the U. S. Marshal's office, where he was arraigned before the U. S. Commissioner, E. D. Ingraham, Esq., on a charge of being a fugitive slave from Cecil County, Md., where he is owned by William Knight. Evidence was adduced to support the claim, and arguments offered against it by David Paul Brown and Charles Gibbons, who appeared as counsel for the accused. At a late hour in the day, the Commissioner ordered the fugitive to be restored to his master, and he was accordingly detained in the State House until ten o'clock, P. M. when he was sent back to Baltimore by the cars. A great crowd of colored people gathered about the State House during the day and evening, and the excitement was general, so that fears of a rescue were entertained.—Phila Sunday Ledger.

SUICIDE—Horrible Death.—On Monday morning last, Charles B. Hitchcock, residing near Jarrettsville, in this county, aged about 65 years, committed suicide by horribly lascerating his head with an axe, and cutting his throat from ear to ear.—He had arisen very early in the morning, and given his usual orders about feeding hogs, cattle, &c. to his son, who was in the yard with him. The son had left him but a few moments, when he returned and found his father lying behind an old building bleeding to death with an axe and a bloody penknife lying a few feet from him.—Harford Gazette.

CENSUS NOTE.—To the census returns for Queen Ann's County, Eastern Shore of Maryland, the assistant Marshal, W. I. Gibson, made the following note:

"In Gov. Grason's family averaging for twenty-five year about thirty, only three deaths occurred—one of these was a negro woman who died during that period over one hundred years of age, and a negro man who died of heart disease in 1849

COMMUNICATIONS.

For the Kent News.

MR. EDITOR:

I have noticed in your paper a prospectus for a democratic paper, so called, in which the term "Whiggery" is used in reference to the Whig party in Kent. I have never seen this word in any respectable authority. Webster does not contain it, and it is consequently a "nick name" for the Whigs. To introduce oneself by nicknaming the people among whom you come to settle, apart from its questionable property, will surely prevent, any whig from self respect, from patronising the paper. S.

For the Kent News

The New-Paper.

I perceive from an advertisement in the last News, that a New and Democratic paper is to be established in Chester Town, for the avowed object of breaking down the Whig party. We presume, that with this object in view, no one who professes to be a Whig will patronise it at the start! To do so, would be, to lend himself to the purpose of the paper, and endeavour to do by his pecuniary aid, what the Locofoco press have long essayed in vain to do—to revolutionize, politically, the good old county of Kent.

As the Whigs have had the benefit of the lights of Clay, Webster and other luminaries of their party, it cannot be reasonably supposed, that they will change their opinions, unless they are furnished with better and greater lights. Whether they are to receive such radiations from the "Herald," is to be seen. If the purpose is to enlighten the Locos, there would be some reason why they should subscribe for the paper, as they have been so long in darkness and will not be enlightened by the Whig press. Possibly they may be benefitted, as they were in Queen Ann's county, which was a Democratic county for many years, but under the enlightining influence of the Democratic paper, has boldly taken her stand in the Whig line.

We hope the true and sterling Whigs of Kent, will come up to the support of the Whig press, and thus, by consistent acts, sustain the principles and policy of the Whigs. A WHIG.

DISGRACEFUL PROCEEDINGS—Riot in Illinois. Two men named Brown and Williams, were to have been hung at Peoria, Ill., on the 18th inst., but at the last moment the Governor granted them a respite until the 15th of January.

This not being generally known large masses of people assembled to witness the execution, and being disappointed in their expectations, a portion of them resolved that the persons should be executed forthwith, and urged on by exciting speeches, they got possession of the scaffold from the jail yard and erected it in the street in front of the jail. They then effected an entrance, and proceeded with crowbars and other implements to the cells where they met with resistance from Brown, who, although shackled, as soon as the cells were opened, stepped into the hall, disarmed a few of the mobbers, by taking from them the crowbars and scantling, barred his cell on the inside, and defied them. He broke the scantling over the mobbers, and gave them other striking illustrations of his entire disapproval of such unlawful proceedings.

Thus resulted, what at first all supposed would be a most tragical and disgraceful affair. The mob fell back, and a few of our citizens dropping in at this conjuncture, prevented further violence.

JENNY LIND has been as successful in Richmond as elsewhere. The papers of that city speak rapturously of her singing, and state that the theatre was crowded on Friday evenining on the occasion of her concert. One of the papers says:

We learned during the concert, that Miss Lind had that evening made a contribution of $1000 to the Female Orphan Asylum, of this city, but we regretted to hear that her noble charity was anticipated by a rather ungraceful solicitation.

The tickets were sold at auction, the first one bringing $105. The aggregate amount of proceeds of the sale was $18,000.

GEN. TWIGG'S HAIR DYE.—As several of our readers have expressed a desire to test the merits of Gen. Twigg's restorative, we publish the receipe:

It does not dye the hair, but seems to operate upon the roots and restore the original color. The recipe is as follows:—one drachm lac sulphur, one half drachm sugar of lead, four ounces rose water.—Mix them, shake phial on using the mixture and bathe the hair twice a day for a week or longer if necessary.

MAMMOTH HOGS.—The Westminister Carrollonian notices six hogs, raised and slaughtered by Lewis Shuey, Esq., and purchased by Mr. Isaac Lambert, weighing together three thousand and twenty-three pounds, and averaging within a fraction of five hundred and four pounds each.

THOMAS GRINNUM.—The Governor has appointed Friday, the 28th day of February next, for the execution of Grinnum, who was convicted at the November term of Talbot county court, of the wilful murder of Capt. Thomas Hemmons, at Vienna, on the 3d of October last.

☞The jury in the case of John Stump, who was tried last week before the Harford county court, for the murder of Henry Hammond, Sunday morning returned a verdict of not guilty.

ANEANY, Dec. 21.

CONFESSION OF DUNBAR THE MURDERER.—Dunbar, convicted of the murder of Stephen and David Lester, at Westerloo, has made a partial confession to the Rev Mr. Beecher, but it will not probable be made public until after his execution, which is to take place on the 31st of January.

PROSPECTUS OF THE WEEKLY HERALD.

THE undersigned intend to commence the publication of a weekly journal at Chester Town, Kent county, Md., on Tuesday, the 14th day of January, 1851, to be devoted to News, Morality, Temperance, and the advocacy of Democratic Measures to be called the Weekly Herald.

The political department of the paper will be conducted in a mild, courteous, yet firm manner, and in such a way, the publishers intend, as will be satisfactory.

The undersigned has no desire to disguise the fact that the establishment of the HERALD is mainly to benefit the Democratic party of Kent county, and to aid in bringing about a political Revolution in that Stronghold of Whiggery—they therefore call upon the members of that party, whose principles they are humble advocates, to countenance and sustain them in their efforts.

The paper will be of medium size, and printed in a neat manner with new type, and every exertion made to make it a welcome visitor to those who may become subscribers.

The low terms at which they propose to issue the HERALD will place it in the reach of all; viz:—One dollar and fifty cents if paid in two months from the issue of the first number, or two dollars any time thereafter during the year.
