RARE BARGAINS in Men's Clothes and Overcoats are moving rapidly at our stock-reducing sale at

1/4 Off the Price 1/4

This past week thirty men have taken advantage of this opportunity and have purchased goods that allowed them to pocket a $5.00 note in the deal. Does this saving mean anything to you? Stop and ponder and you will see real economy. Of course, all sales must be CASH ABSOLUTELY.

SPECIAL

Every Hat in the House at One-Quarter Off for Cash

Our windows tell the tale of Sweaters, too, that must also take their medicine.

Now, candidly, if a five-mile drive would save you a five dollar note, would you hitch up?

Two hundred suits waiting here for other owners. Better call and claim yours before the other fellow beats you to it. The same varied assortment in Overcoats and Boys' Suits. Our windows will tell it all. See them.

Yours very truly,

LOCAL NOTES

THAT there are honest travelers on the Kent train had ample proof the past few weeks. One day last week one of Kent's school teachers left her purse containing $33 on the seat and it was found by a passenger who occupied the seat on the return trip. Another lady left her purse containing $11 and it was also returned to the owner.

JIM WILSON a negro charged with the murder of Mrs. W. M. Lynch at Wendell, N. C., Tuesday was lynched by a mob near that place. The lynching occured 20 minutes before a company of state militia sent by Gov. Craig to prevent mob violence arrived.

THE Rich Neck Produce Exchange at Chestertown are loading this week the third car of sweet potatoes for Mr. C. L. Jarrell. These cars hold about 625 bushels and sell for around $1. The freight amounts to about $250. Some have been consigned to Chicago, Omaha and other points. To give the reader an idea of the big crop on the Delaware road a shipper says that if 15 cars a day from December to May were shipped it would not carry all of them. The price is somewhat off at present.

BUILDING operations have never stopped in Chestertown. The Cannan Bros. are at work now on a fine new house on Kent Circle. A. M. Culp is rebuilding four of his tenant houses on Lynchburg street. W. T. Pippin is finishing the Perkins bungalow. Duyer Bros. are pushing the Janes M. E. Church structure. Mrs. Geo. B. McWhorter is felling trees and removing shrubbery preparatory to building her new home on the Avenue.

THE Candy Kitchen firm has just installed a handsome marble iceless soda fountain. This is a very expensive fountain, holding soda, ice-cream and everything in that line.

THE next annual All-Educational Day will be held in the spring instead of in the fall, as was the case this year. Superintendent of Public Schools Smyth was notified to this effect by Dr. Stephens, the State Superintendent. The Board of Education of the State, at a recent meeting, decided that each county of the State set apart one day, between the 10th of April and the 25th of May, which hereafter will be known as "Public School Exhibit Day." The State Board further requires that there shall be a parade of school children, an exhibit of school work, especially along agricultural and industrial lines, a demonstration of school games, athletic contests, and addresses by well-known educators. The local authorities may add to the program any events or features which they think desirable.

THE 13th anniversary of the Chestertown Daughters of America was observed Friday evening in Fireman's Hall. The Chestertown Patriotics and Jr. O. U. A. M. and the Rock Hall Daughters of America were present.

THE Baltimore papers report sugar retailing at 4 cents a pound in that city, which is believed to be the lowest price it ever sold for since the product has been imported into this country under tariff regulations.

THROUGH the offices of Pierre C. Dugan, Mrs. Eva Topping, of Chestertown, has purchased from the Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland two ground rents of $65, issuing out of 2202 and 2104 W. Saratoga street, Baltimore.

As stated in NEWS last week, Mr. J. C. Armstrong, of Odessa, Del., fell and fractured his leg. Mr. Armstrong's wife accompanied him to the hospital and was in attendance on him on Saturday, when, Mr. Armstrong desiring a paper, she left the hospital to get it for him. While on the street a sudden puff of wind disarranged her hat, and in reaching for it she lost her balance and fell heavily, breaking her right arm. She was taken back to the hospital suffering great pain. The fracture was reduced by the surgeons at the hospital and she is now recovering.

AN immense caravan, consisting of 30 pairs of mules and wagons, passed through Chestertown Monday enroute for Baltimore. They camped for a couple of hours above the College and resumed their journey. They came from Wye Mills, Queen Anne's, where they have been employed building a state road from Wye Mills to Easton. The entire journey to Baltimore was 103 miles.

JOHN N. BENNETT, of near Still Pond, furnishes Chestertown milk through Mr. Robert Smith's agency. Mr. Bennett has a fine herd of Guernsey and Jersey cattle and reluctantly gives the following figures so as to encourage all dairymen:

Sale of milk and butter	$2,546 73
Sale of Surplus stock	905 00
Heifers saved from herd to stock	690 00
		$4,141 73
Cost of feed purchased	$ 335 00
Labor	230 00
Blacksmithing	30 00
New stock purchaspd	425 00
Veterinary charges for tuberculin inspection, etc.	35 50
		$1,155 50
		$2,986 23

The remaining expense was raised on the farm. This is not all profit by any means and yet to offset a part of the expense of pasturage and feed grown on the farm, this herd produced sufficient manure to cover 65 acres of ground and furnished milk and butter for a family of from 8 to 10 persons. Mr. Bennett's stables are up-to-date, white washed inside and out, with cement gutters and drains. The stables are cleared every day and air-slaked lime and carbolic acid placed in all the gutters and drains so that the stable is kept sweet and sanitary at all times.

ENGINEER APPLEGARTH has ordered the strip on Chester bridge removed hoping thereby to facilitate travel. This will enable autos to pass teams and will also allow more room for pedestrians.

THE Kent Building & Loan Co. re-elected its former officers Monday night.

CONNIE MACK, of Philadelphia, went ducking with Frank Baker at Trappe and caught Baker for another year's work at third.

THE Boston Lyrics showed in Chestertown Thursday evening to a splendid audience. The program was intensely interesting, delightfully varied, and gemmed with novel and unique features.

LAST Friday night the drug stores of John M. Toulson, Dr. Levin D. Collier and L. D. Collier Drug Co., in Salisbury, were entered and the money drawers broken open and cigars, cigarettes and a lot of other things taken.

THE climate in this section this week has been more like Florida than Maryland. But Kent gets the best of everything.

THE Chestertown Laundry has been sold by J. W. Russell to H. K. Heller & Co., of Baltimore, who will take charge March 1st. Mr. Heller is an expert laundryman and intends to greatly widen the scope of territory now served by this laundry. He will cater also to house wives to do their family wash.

AN important meeting of the Modern Woodmen will be held in Chestertown, Friday, Feb. 13th. A delegate to the State Camp will be elected. Wm. McCaffrey, State Deputy Head Consul for this District, will be present and explain the agitation for new rates, etc.

DEATHS.

MRS. L. M. COREY.

Mrs. L. M. Corey, aged 87, widow of the late John W. Corey, died at her residence near Melitota Sunday night, January 25. She leaves a son, Mr. Edw. A. Corey, and a daughter, Mrs. Harry P. Jones, both foster children, adopted in early life. The funeral was held from her residence on Wednesday, at 1 p. m., conducted by Rev. S. S. Hepbron, assisted by Rev. Mr. Jester; undertaker, Charles L. Dodd. The pall-bearers were: Messrs. J. P. Nicholson, A. M. Kendall, W. E. Keyser, Samuel G. Lee, Jesse H. Ousilton, H. C. Willis. The floral offerings were quite profuse.

Lydia Maria Gleason was a native of Dublin, N. H., where she was known as a teacher in the public schools until her marriage to John W. Corey, whose early life was spent in the same town. After a few years residence in the State of Delaware, they removed to the farm near Melitota, Kent county, Md., where they lived to celebrate their golden wedding, and which since his death has been her home. Falling a victim to ill health for a number of years, she became a student of nature's laws for the preservation of health and their relation to the obligation for a long and useful life. Thus by practical use of knowledge gained she attained an unusual length of days in remarkable activity.

With her restoration to health she gave herself largely for the welfare of others, freely entering into any good course for their uplift. Two children by adoption filled the places of lost ones in the vacant home and heart. The broad lines of the "Christian" church were her chosen ones for her faith and works, though she was wont to say, "They are all my churches." Those within the scope of her personal influence were made to feel its truth. In the early seventies, at the beginning of a Grange movement, she became a charter member, and proved a valuable part of the foundation for future success. The launching of the first copy of the "Garner" was the outcome of her thought and work. It still survives, a fitting memorial. For many years she was a faithful officer in the State Grange, and until recently maintained an interest in her home Grange, as her familiar face there has often attested.

The possibilities of the Women's Christian Temperance Union appealed most strongly to her for active work of women for humanity. For many years she was its zealous leader in the county, while filling an official position in the State organization. Just how heavy were the burdens in temperance work and how unselfishly she bore them, is best known by the many loyal helpers that rallied to her support and learned to love and trust her. Just what has been or may yet be the harvest can only be known by Him who maketh the scattered seed to sleep in darkness gaining life and strength to bring forth abundant fruit. With the same faith that gave character to her life, it is ours to count many stars in her crown for deeds of love and sacrifice. To recall some of them is to the writer a loving service.

Mrs. Sarah Emmeline Carter died at her home in Denton on Thursday morning last in her 87th year. Mrs. Carter was the widow of Colonel Richard C. Carter, and the mother of Richard T. Carter who died on 28th day of last June. She had spent most of her life in Caroline, county. She was a native of Delaware, the daughter of Thomas and Eunice Slaughter, The Slaughter of descendant of Col. Thos. Slaughter, were relative of Mrs. Carter. A gentle Christian lady of many graces, she was much beloved.

A MEETING of the Federated Club of Chestertown was held at the home of Mrs. W. W. Hubbard on Saturday evening last. Mr. Harris who has charge of the telephone service of Chestertown and Kent county met with the ladies and a very amicable discussion of the service, both from the standpoint of the company and its patrons was held, resulting in a very much better understanding on both sides.

A resolution was passed, requesting the corresponding secretary to communicate with the State Censor of Moving Pictures, denouncing the exhibition of films portraying the Coleman murderers in charge of the Baltimore detectives and protected by the Maryland State troops.

The ladies have arranged with the Antrim Bureau to have Dr. Gray on February 16th to deliver the lecture that he was unable to deliver when Dr. Seasholes took his place. All holders of season tickets can attend this lecture without extra charge. They are requested to show their season ticket at the door. This makes five entertainments that the ladies have given for one dollar, which is a very nominal charge.
