LOCAL NOTES

THE B. S. Ford has resumed her trips for the Spring.

THE window of Mrs. Geo. B. McWhorter has been filled this week with blooming hyacinths and lillies.

TRAPPERS and those who hunt on marshes near the rivers and creeks will lose many dollars this season on account of the low prices offered for muskrat fur, caused by the war among European nations.

WHEN in need of a tomb stone try your home dealer, Mr. J. W. Kirby, Chestertown, first. He can give you good service and better prices than a special agent. See him first before ordering.

S. CHESTER COURSEY, of Centreville, this week started the work of surveying the farms of the McKenney estate. He is being assisted by Messrs. William McKenney, Kent Jacobs and Wm. Jacobs, three grandsons of the late General McKenney. It will probably require about three weeks to complete the task.

THE Tri-County Rural Letter Carriers Associatinn, comprising the carriers of Queen Annes, Kent and Cecil counties, met in convention in Centreville Monday morning. Washington's Birthday, being a legal holiday, the date was selected for the annual convention of the rural post-men. The meeting was held in the parlors of the Hotel Straughn on Commerce street, followed by a dinner in the dining parlors of the hotel.

THE ruins of the Jarrell house on the Avenue have been cleared up under the direction of Mr. Albert Rawleigh.

THE Peoples Laundry have received their new delivery wagon. Graham, Clements and Sutton furnished them with the car. Davis & Satterfield made the body. Messrs. William H. Waddell and son, Randolph Waddell, have purchased a new five-passenger Ford car from Mr. J. F. Thompson for use on the Chestertown-Easton route.

AN ADMIRER OF KENT COUNTY

Wolcott, N. Y., Feb. 23, 1915.

THE EDITORS OF THE KENT NEWS,
Chestertown, Maryland:

Gentlemen—For a number of years I have been a reader of your valuable paper and it certainly is a welcome visitor to my home. I have noticed lately that you are giving more space to the interests of agriculture which I consider is truly worthy. The articles which you publish from the Maryland Agriculture are of great value to the tenant and to the owner.

In you paper of last week I noticed that you have asked the farmers to write and tell you what it costs them to produce a bushel of wheat. That is certainly a vital question, ann I am waiting with a great deal of interest for the replies that will come to you. It is a common expression among farmers of my acquaintance "that there is no money in raising wheat." Your question will cause a number of the more progressive farmers to think about this very important crop in Kent county.

I am not a native of Kent county, but my wife is the owner of several farms there, and I have known Kent county for about twenty years, and from my knowledge of Kent county I know of no section of our country that is superior to it from the view point of agriculture. Two years ago some friends of mine made an automobile trip with me from New York to Georgetown. Word could not express their surprise when they traveled with me from Middletown, Del. to Betterton, Md. One of my friends has traveled in the United States a great deal, but he said to me that he had never seen a finer country than that which I have mentioned. Truly Kent county makes a strong appeal to the man from other parts of our country. Just recently I had a letter from a friend of mine in Texas, he was anxious to know more of the possibilities of Kent county as a farming district, he is thinking of coming there to make his home.

I know of no section of our country that has better advantages than Kent, but I feel, however, these do not know of their great opportunities to make it far-famed for its wealth, The soil of Kent county is naturally fertile. It produces year in and year out much more than the average crop per bushel than the whole of our country. Kent county has many decided advantages over other parts of our country. A good soil, a good climate, a long growing season, and nearby markets. It remains for the people to reap the best of results. I do not believe, however, that the present system of farming will bring about the best results. If I am not presumptuous, I would like to see the farmers of Kent county, both tenants and owners, discuss the queston, "Are the present kind of crops bringing the largest returns, and is our present method of conducting our farms the most satisfactory for the tenant and the owner?"

Thanking you in advance for whatever disposition you may make of my letter, I beg to remain your constant reader, and friend of Kent county by adoption.

Respectfully yours,
C. CLARENCE BAKER.
