Special Notice

We wish to notify the people of Kent County that our FARM and OAKLAND HOTEL and PERSONAL PROPERTY is not for sale, which has been advertised for the past two weeks.

We knew nothing of the affair whatever, until the advertising was done. We were sued on notes which we had indorsed for a builder that I have worked for, when the notes were due he did not pay them. The results were my place was advertised for sale without any notice whatever.

If there is any one in Kent county that we owe money, if they will be kind enough to send a bill to 301 E. North Ave., Baltimore, I will be very glad to send them a check for same.

We expect to be open for business June 10th.

A MUSICAL FEAST

The Chestertown Choral And Dramatic Association Sing Before Fine Audience — Splendid Orchestra Numbers And Varied Program

Those who neglected to attend the Concert given by the Choral and Dramatic Club of Chestertown, last Wednesday evening in the Lyceum Theatre, missed a rare musical treat. Those who did attend went away thoroughly pleased and proud in that their town possessed the talent which could put upon the boards such a highly entertaining and such an artistic musical programme. Rarely is there found in communities the size of this such a wealth of material necessary to the success of entertainments like that of last Wednesday evening; and, rare is it, too, that the community is fortunate enough to produce the leadership required to drill amateurism into such near-professionalism. For it is safe to say that all those present are ready to acknowledge that the performers in the May Concert of the Choral Club bore very few marks of crude beginners, as every piece was given with such perfection as to leave nothing demanding unfavorable criticism.

Under the direction of Prof. M. Ten Hoor, of the Washington College Faculty, the body of over forty vocalists and instrumentalists, had attained such ease and confidence as to make the entire effort a wonderful performance. It is unnecessary to enter into a detailed account of each selection, or to specify any single performer. A notable absence of solos made the execution of each number depend for its impression upon the combined effort of the singers. These manifested rare appreciation of the themes, a delightful mastery of rhythm, tempo and accent, and in every instance when difficult modulation was necessary to reveal the composer's attitude toward his creation, the chorus showed themselves completely en rapport with the author's mood, and the result was a truly wonderful revelation and interpretation of the writer's idea. Of course this success was due largely to the inspiration of the leader. By his thorough mastery of technique and his genuine abandon, he infused into his chorus something of his own aesthetic appreciation, and they, consciously or unconsciously, reproduced his feeling. The result was a delicious harmony, an intelligent reading, a skillful technique, and a successtul ensemble.

This includes the orchestra. They were part of the whole. So insensibly did they accompany the chorus as to make it impossible to separate the instruments from the vocal. The beauty of the orchestra is to aid and follow the singers. This was most effectively done, and the sympathy between the two branches of the musicale was so pronounced as to reveal not a single discord, nor the slightest assumption of undue prominence.

Perhaps it would not be doing an injustice to all concerned to note the beautiful rendering of that pathetic old Southern melody, "Carry me back to Old Virginay," produced as an encore at the end of the programme. The solo parts were taken by Mrs. Fred. G. Usilton and Mr. Chas. H. Monzani, supported by the whole chorus. Those acquainted with the quality of these two voices can imagine the ring they gave to the old time melody, and as the last lines were repeated with the most enchanting pianissimo, the notes faded away into such an entrancing melody as to rivet the audience to their seats, loth to leave the absorbing tones.

This song sent the people home to dream of a most satisfying feast of harmony, and it is the common desire that there will soon be another to satisfy their whetted appetites.

The program, with historical and discriptive notes by the conductor, was a novelty and proved helpful. The selections with names of soloists, orchestra, etc., is here given:

NEW COINS AFTER JULY 1

U. S. Treasury Approves Preparedness Designs for Half Dollars, Quarters And Dimes.

Dimes, quarters and half dollars of new design will be minted after July 1. For the first time since 1891 a change will be effected in these pieces.

The announcement disclosed that the half dollar had fallen almost into disuse. The new design was selected with hope of restoring it to more general circulation. Under the new coinage each piece will be of different design. The half dollar and dime models were made by Adelph A. Weinman and the quarter by Herman A. MacNeil, both sculptors of note.

The face of the new half dollar bears a full length of liberty, with a background of the American flag flying to the breeze. The Goddess is striding toward the dawn of a new day, carrying laurel and oak branches, symbolic of civil and military glory. The reverse side shows an eagle perched high upon a mountain crag, wings unfolded. Growing from a rift in the rock is a sapling of mountain pine, symbolic of America.

The design of the twenty-five cent piece is intenden to typify the awakening of the country to its own protection, Secretary McAdoo's announcement stated. Liberty, a full length figure, is shown stepping toward the country's gateway, bearing upraised a shield from which the covering is being drawn. The right hand bears an olive branch of peace. Above the head is the word "Liberty" and below the feet „1916." The reverse bears a figure of an eagle in full flight, wings extended and the inscriptions "United States of America and E Pluribus Unum."

Both the half dollar and the quarter bear the phrase "In God We Trust." The design of the dime is simple. Liberty, with a winged cap, is snown on the foreside and on the reverse is a design of a bundle of rods, and a battle axe, symbolical of unity, "wherein lies the nation's strength."

The European War

has played havoc with the dyes and woolens of the whole country.

There are more "cotton Mixtures" now and cheap "shoddy" fabrics offered everywhere this season than ever before in clothing history. The market is flooded with this sort of merchandise.

The firm of Bordley & Sons, "taking time by the forelock," realized that unless a stock of clean merchandise was bought early, it would have nothing to offer its patrons.

The result is that we have in our store today the same inimitable values in Serges and Worsteds, that we could not duplicate at any price now, and we are offering them to you at the same regular prices.

The garments we can positively guarantee as "all wool" will start at $13.50.

Does it not mean something to you to have this protection when made-to-measure houses are having no end of trouble in getting satisfactory material for their customers?

We Are Prepared

Our lines are full and complete now, and we will be glad to serve you. Come see us.
