HOSIERY

We are, as we have always been headquarters for hose. We have children's hose, the best that money can buy, for 15c per pair, or 2 pairs for 25c. They are hard to tell from the regular 25c a pair quality. We have a special grade of ladies hose, medium weight and great wearers, at 3 pairs for $1.0

CORSETS

The best advertisement on earth that a man can have is a satisfied customer. A lady whoever puts on a pair of Bon Ton or Royal Worcester Corsets is certainly satisfied and comfortable and she tells her friends and neighbors. That's the cause of our immense sale.

GROCERIES

This is the season of the year for parties and when giving one you always want nice things to eat. We have the best at all times. Why pay a high price for second grade goods when you can get the best here.

We use coffee as our leader. We have a special grade of coffee which are selling at 20c a pound and which cannot be duplicated at any other store for less than 25c a pound. Our 28c quality, our customers say, is as good as they are used to paying 35c a pound for. Try a pound, and if not satisfied no charge will be made for it.

Soliciting a trial to convince you am yours for business.

ATTACKED BY THUGS

Under the bright glare of an arc light J. C. Wallis, 33 years old, of Queenstown, Md., was attacked by a gang of highwaymen, beaten into unconsciousness and robbed of all his valuables early Tuesday morning on Low street, between High and Front streets, Baltimore. He is now at Mercy Hospital suffering with a fractured right jaw and lacerations and bruises on the head and body.

Wallis at first thought that the attempted hold-up was a joke, but suddenly he was dealt a flow from behind with a small iron bar and rendered unconscious. The highwaymen made good their escape after they had robbed their victim of a gold watch, valued at $20; $4 and a ticket on the Maryland, Delaware and Virginia Railroad Company.

MILK PRICES

A Philadelphia paper asks editorially, "why should the price of bread and milk go up while the price of gasoline goes down?" Shades of Mills! What process of economic reasoning enables the versatile editor to couple these two commodities in one question? Has he forgotten that the price of gasoline has doubled in two years with little increase in cost of production, while the price of milk has remained practically stationary for a generation? This in spite of the fact that taxes, labor, feed and all that goes to the production of milk have increased 50 to 100 percent in the past 20 years. The public protest that arises every time the question of raising the price of milk is raised is short-sighted and parsimonious to say the least. Yet the same public continually adds to its number of costly luxuries, and consents to a raise in price of almost everythig else with only a mild protest. The same editorial goes on to say: "Bread and milk are necessaries of life in every household You cannot bring up children without them; and among the poor, where children are many, the procuring of them is already a heavy tax upon the resources." Milk is a household necessity. It is an economical source of food. It is doubtful if the family gets as much real food value for the same cost from anything else, when its digestibility and wide range of uses are considered. In spite of this, the per capita consumption of milk in the large cities is less than a pint of whole milk per day. How insignificant would be the added expense per family if the price to farmers should be increased one cent per quart, an increase that would be fully justified in view of the cost of production.

According to the paid advertisement of one of the largest retailing firms in New York City, the price per quart paid to farmers for the year ending June 30, 1916, was a little less than 3.7 cents. Out of this the farmer had to pay the freight. This company complains because its clear profits have been 2 6 mills, or a little over a quarter of a cent per quart. It distributes in New York City 500,000 quarts daily, or nearly one-fourth of the total amount sold in the city. At the admitted rate, the company's clear profit is $1,300 a day, or $474,000 per year. The company is capitalized at $30,000,000—$7,500,000 preferred and $22,500,000 common stock, paying 6 percent upon the former and 8 and 10 percent upon the latter. The city government prevents the watering of milk. We do not know as to the stock. In spite of all this there is talk of raising the retail price of milk, but no proposition to raise the price to dairymen. Nor will there be so long as farmers leave the setting of the price to the dealers. There has been enough waiting for such a miracle to happen. Complete and rigid organization on the part of producers is the only way to enforce a fair price. So long as they depend upon outside advice, and fail in every proposition looking towards increased production as a means of increasing profits, the problem will become still more involved and the business still more unprofitable.

BECAUSE "Murderous Mary," the big female elephant with Sparks show, killed her eighth man recently, the authorities of Ervin, Tenn., hanged her with an immense derrick operated by steam, last Thursday. She was valued at $9000. Sparks' show has been here several times in past years.
