IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of my dear husband, and our father, Charles H. Jones, who departed this life four years ago, Feb. 7, 1914.

Four mournful years have passed away,
I think as the tear drops start,
But the memory of my dear husband
Still is fresh within my heart,

I never can forget you, dear husband,
While in the world I stay.
When the form of death overcomes me,
Meet me dear husband on my way.

BY LOVING WIFE.

I do not know the pain he bore,
As I was not near his side,
But I only know he slipped away
Without bidding me goodbye.

WILLIAM.

Peaceful be thy rest, dear pappa,
It is sweet to breathe thy name.
In life I loved you dearly,
In death I do the same.

DELLA.

Through the pearly gates of Heaven,
Passed the one I loved so dear,
God thought it best to take him from me,
Though it left a vacant chair,

BERTHA.

My nearest and dearest, my father, my guide,
I've missed you ever since you departed from my side;
My way would be happy and friends would be true,
If only life's path would be guarded by you.

FLORENCE.

Death has robbed me of my father,
Whom I loved and cherished dear,
It was father, yes, dear father,
Can I help but shed a tear.

HELEN.

Dearest father how I miss you,
Miss you more than tongue can tell,
Every hour and day that passes,
Brings me nearer with you to dwell.

CHARLIE.

In the graveyard softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one I love so dearly,
In his lone and silent grave.

MAURICE.

Our grandfather is sleeping so free from all pain,
Oh, waken him not, sweet spirit, to suffer again.
He slumbers so soundly, oh let him sleep on,
His sickness is ended, his troubles are gone.

GRANDCHILDREN.

In sad but loving remembrance of my dear husband, James W. Ivens, who died two years ago, February 10, 1918.

He passed away like a gentle breeze,
With scarce a parting sigh,
He passed away from this dark world,
To dwell with Christ on high.

Gone from earth, yes gone forever,
Tear dimmed eyes shall gaze in vain,
I shall never see his face, oh never,
Never more on earth again.

Dear is the grave where my husband is laid,
Sweet is the memory which never shall fade,
Roses may wither, leaves fade and die,
Others may forget you, but never shall I.

WIFE.

TO MY SON

[Written especially for the KENT NEWS by Mrs. Anna Burris, of Millington, Md.]

My son, at last the fateful day has come,
For us to part, The hours have nearly run,
May God return you safe to land and home;
Yet what God wills, so may His will be done.

Draw tight the belt about your slender frame,
Flash blue your eyes! Hold high your proud young head.
Today you march in Liberty's fair name,
To save the line enriched by France's dead.

I would not it were otherwise, and yet
'Tis hard to speed your marching forth, my son,
'Tis doubly hard to live without regret,
For love unsaid, and kindness undone.

But wish the chance were mine with you to stand
Upon those shores and see our flag unfurled
To fight on France's brave, unconquered land,
With Liberty's great sword for all the world.

And then the trench in battle scarred Lorraine;
The town half burned, but held in spite of hell.
The bridge twice taken, lost and won again;
The cratered glacis ripped with mine and shell.

The leafless trees, bare branched in spite of June;
The saddened road, the desolated plain;
The mateless birds, the season out of time;
Fair France, at bay, is calling through her pain.

Oh, son! My son! God keep you safe and free,
Our flag and you; but if the hour must come
To choose at last twixt self and liberty,
We'll close our eyes; so let God's Will be done.
