A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

May the year 1919 be your best.

Try the plan of saying all the kind things you can of your neighbor in 1919 and leave unspoken the opposite.

Old Kent is the garden spot of the world. Tell your friends of its good qualities in 1919 and leave "Old Grouch" to do the kicking.

Secretary Baker has informed Chairman Dorit, of the House Military Committee, that the War Department has decided that all discharged soldiers may permanently retain the uniform and coat they wear when mustered out. Previously the Department had planned to have the clothing returned to the Government three months after the soldier's discharge.

It was just like President Wilson to do the unusual thing on Xmas Day. He is breaking all precedents in many ways. Just think of it—an American President reviewing his country's victorious soldiers on the soil of a European nation! Christmas Day, 1918, President Wilson stood at Chaumont, France, and received the plaudits of the American soldiers who, under General Pershing, were drawn up there to receive him.

President Wilson had come from Paris, where he had been in constant conference with the leading men of the Allies. He was on his way to London, to be received by the King and the Prime Minister of Britain. The brief interlude in which he found time to visit the American troops could hardly afford him less real pleasure than the reception awarded him and planned for him by the chosen heads of two great Powers.

Far seeing men, who have given much thought to aeronautics, find in the development of aviation a tremendous factor for world progress.

Already our Government is using aircraft successfully in its mail service and such use of this new carrier will be rapidly extended throughout the country and the world.

It has been announced that an aviation section will shortly constitute part of the equipment of the police force of New York City, and the employment of the airplane by municipalities throughout the world for various useful purposes seems imminent. A plane flying above a burning building can render invaluable aid in directing the fire fighters and in protecting adjacent property.

A most unusual educational opportunity for our soldiers in France is being provided by the French Government through Andre Tardieu, High Commissioner of Franco-American Affairs. Due to the length of time it will take to transport our troops home again, and also to the fact that many thousands of our soldiers will remain in Europe for a considerable period, the French Government is opening the schools of France to these men.

The college men in our army who remain in France will be given free access to the French universities where they may continue their studies in art, science, law, etc. The agricultural and technical schools of France, with their complete libraries and splendidly equipped laboratories will also be open to them.

A POLITICAL FORECAST

That ownership of the railways and telegraphs and the socialization of all important industries will be the political issue in 1920 is predicted in a Washington dispatch to the Herald this morning, and it is suggested that the struggle will be more bitter than that over the silver question 20 years ago. Forecasts are notoriously uncertain, but the speculations here indulged in as to the situation and Mr. McAdoo's alleged relations to it are at any rate interesting and entertaining.—The New York Herald.

STILL POND

Among those home for Christmas holidays are Miss Jennie Bowers, of Drexel, Philadelphia, Pa.; Miss Anna Bowers, of Towson, Md., Miss Dorothy Medders, of Philadelphia, Lawrence Krusen, of Annapolis, and Howard Harper, of Newark, Del.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Watson, of Newark, Del., visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. G. R. Rasin, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Crowding are visiting their daughter, Mrs. John Schofield, in Wilmington.

The following spent Christmas at the parsonage: Mr. and Mrs. Andrews, of Hurlock, Md., Mr. and Mrs. Owens and Miss Margaret Goodhand, of Washington.

Miss Edna Wroth spent Thursday of this week with her friend, Mrs. Ernest Horsey.

Miss Helen Winkleman, of Baltimore, is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Charles Jewell.

Miss Lydia Hague and neice, Miss Elizabeth Hague, of Philadelphia, spent Christmas at their home here.

Miss Etta Elliott, of Philadelphia, spent last week end with Mrs. Emma Simpson.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Jarrell have received word that their daughter, Miss [illegible] has arrived over seas, where she will be a Red Cross nurse.

Welcome home, boys.

May the year 1919 bring happiness to all.

Private Stanley Wilson, of Golt's, has been reported severely wounded.

Immediate return of all spyglasses, telescopes, binoculars and other navigation instruments loaned the Government by private individuals was ordered today by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt. Engraved certificates will be presented these people by the Navy Department for their patriotism. There were about a dozen from Kent.

Lieut. "Nick" Denny has been mustered out and was home in time for Christmas.

Lieut. Col. Elmer Jones, of the U. S. Army, has been visiting his sister, Mrs. Ralph Williams, o fWorton. He is now stationed at Camp Upton, New York.

HAND OF DEATH

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Newcomb died at their home, 21 N. Ellwood avenue, Baltimore, Dec. 20th, of pneumonia.

Mrs. Annie Dever Tagg, aged sixty-nine years, wife of Rev. Dr. F. T. Tagg, one of the most prominent ministers of the Maryland Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church, and formerly editor of the Methodist Protestant, died suddenly early Tuesday morning at her home in Baltimore. She had been suffering from heart trouble for some time.

Mrs. Tagg was the daughter of the late William Dever, who was clerk of the Circuit Court for Queen Anne's county, Md., at the time of his demise a number of years ago.

She is survived by her husband (Dr. Tagg) and two children (Miss Edna Tagg and Stanley Tagg; a brother (George Dever, of Denton, Md.) and a sister (Mrs. Addie Mullikin, of Baltimore). Interment was in the cemetery at Centreville, Md.

Mrs. Wm. R. Pippin was called to New York last week by the death of her sister, Mrs. Mary Healey, who died in that city of influenza after an illness of three days.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wiable, widow of the late William Wiable, of Still Pond Neck, died on Sunday after a lingerillness, aged about 75 years. She leaves three sons and two daughters and one brother, John Guiser. Funeral took place from the funeral chapel of Undertaker Wm. H. Krusen, on Wednesday. Interment in Still Pond Cemetery, Rev. A. W. Goodhand officiating.

Mrs. Sadie E. Husfelt, wife of Montgomery Husfelt, of near Earleville, passed away at Mercy Hospital, Baltimore, about one o'clock last Wednesday morning, after several months' illness, death resulting from pneumonia which developed a few days previous to her death.

Besides her husband, four children survive, Clarence, Woodall, Mrs. Annie Haggerty and Miss Elsie Husfelt. Funeral services were held on Sunday at 11 a. m. with interment in St. Paul's M. E. Cemetery, Rev. Edmund Burk officiating.

Miss Hannah Ware, daughter of Rev. Albert Ware, of Massey, died at the home of her father in that town Thursday night from the effects of influenza. Miss Ware was a popular young lady, lovely in character and her sudden demise has cast a gloom over this whole community.

Miss Forbes, one of the courteous salesladies in Jeffersons store, lost her mother by death recently. Miss Forbes has been away from the store for several weeks nursing her mother who lived in Dover.

WHAT GERMANY SHOULD PAY

The most interesting and important question that will come before the World's Peace Conference, soon to assemble in France, is what amount of indemnity Germany will have to pay. Already there are indications of demands that will seem appalling.

In 1871, when Germany, having defeated France in war, imposed an indemnity that amounted to about three billion dollars, the sum seemed stupendous. Yet France quickly paid the bill. But times are different now. There is talk that England alone will demand an indemnity of forty billions from Germany. And we may easily estimate what indemnity outraged Belgium is justly entitled to, to say nothing of the claims of France and others of the Entente Nations.

Premier Lloyd George is quoted as saying that Germany should pay an indemnity of $120,000,000,000 to the Allies, which amount he claims is the approximate total of their actual expenditures for the war together with damages in certain cases. This estimate is apparently based on the following war bills of the six principal allied countries involved:

Great Britain	$40,000,000,000
United States	18,000,000,000
France	27,000,000,000
Russia	20,000,000,000
Italy	8,000,000,000
Belgium	7,000,000,000
Total	$120,000,000,000

While this sum is huge almost beyond comprehension, it apparently represents but little if any more than the actual, direct cost of the war to the nations mentioned and takes no account of the even greater indirect losses and damages to which the allied and neutral nations of the world have been subjected as a result of the recent running amuck of the Central Powers.

Stern justice demands that Germany be compelled to pay the bill of war costs, to the last dollar. She forced the war upon the world, without cause, without reason—the result of an insane belief that she could win the war and exact its money cost from conquered nations. But she failed. Now let her pay.

FOR SALE OR RENT.

The late J. K. Aldridge house located on Water street adjacent to my home.

The property has more recently been occupied by Mr. L. H. Wood and family, who is changing his address to New York City.

This property is reputed to have cost Mr. Aldridge during his life time over $16,000.00. It is one of the most substantial residences in Kent county, has a beautiful outlook on the river, plate glass windows throughout the entire front of the house and the wood work is exceptional, with electric fixtures installed.

Will sell the property at a bargain, but failing to do this would like to have a tenant. [illegible] P. W. HUBBARD.

AMERICAN FOOD THRIFT MUST NOT CEASE

Last September, while the war was raging, America pledged herself to ship overseas 17½ million tons of food. Peace at that time was entirely unlooked for and this amount was considered sufficient for the Allied people and our armies. With the armistice, however, conditions were sharply altered. The Hun in his flight had left millions starving in his wake—millions who even though they were at last free still had no food resources, and who could look for sustenance to America alone.

These millions are in dire need and America is going to help alleviate their suffering, and to prevent further starvation wherever possible. Herbert Hoover, just before leaving for Europe, arranged for the shipment of 270,000 tons of food on our new pledge of twenty million tons.

The winning of the war was due in a large measure to the thrift of American housewives. They have performed their task wonderfully well in the past year, but their work of food saving is not yet over. It is they who must continue the good work, for to them Herbert Hoover looks for the major portion of this country's food conservation.

The future task is somewhat difficult, as compared with the previous one, for there are no fixed regulations to be guided by. The best rule to follow, therefore, is the determination to waste nothing. The following outline, which was compiled by the Home Conservation Division of the United States Food Administration, will be of real practical help to every woman who has pledged herself to thrift:

Simpler methods of living
No waste in the use of food
Preservation of surplus food
More careful selection of food
More careful buying of food
More careful preparation of food

1. Simplify your Food Habits
   Eat only three meals a day. Do not eat or serve food between meals.
   Serve very simple meals. Three courses at most. One dish meals are practical.
   Eat only what you need to keep you well and efficient.
2. Select your Food Wisely
   Learn to know the needs of each member of your family.
   Plan your meals to meet these needs. Let your needs and not your whims govern your food habits. Food selection is a science. Study it.
3. Buy Food Thoughtfully
   Learn first what food is needed then buy in such quantities as may safely be stored or used without loss.
   Plan ahead to save delivery. Study the market and buy the seasonably abundant foods. Conserve those which are scarce here or abroad.
   Make a budget and keep accounts.
4. Prepare your Food with Care
   Learn to prepare simple foods well. This means palatable foods with reasonable variations in methods of preparation.
5. Waste no Food
   Watch your garbage pail.
   Serve only in such quantities as may be eaten. Practice the gospel of the clean plate.
   Use all left-overs.
   Waste no food through poor or careless cooking or reckless handling.
6. Save Surplus Foods For Future Use
   Even a small daily surplus of perishable food should be preserved in some simple way. Preserve, dry, can or store any large supplies of surplus foods.

Our past task was to provide food to keep millions of people alive. Our present obligation is to make millions more healthy again and strong. Our duty is doubled.

Finish the Food War full of Fight.

RESULTS.

A glance at past results gives courage for further undertakings. Contrast the countries where American assistance could penetrate with those unhappy, war-stricken lands which had to provide for themselves under the malign supervision of the Hun. Whereas the population of Belgium, although suffering great privations, is still intact, the population of Serbia is estimated to have diminished [illegible] ty per cent. in number a[illegible] of Poland twenty-five pe[illegible]

Notice to Patrons

Owing to war conditions, the County Board of Education was disposed to be very lenient in the application of the Maryland school attendance law. It was recognized that labor requirements demanded the utilization of all the resources available, and, in the absence of adult help, school children were compelled to work as never before. While the cessation of the war has not entirely relieved the situation, still the same necessity for child labor does not exist, and the Board of Education must insist upon more general observance of the attendance law. It is felt that the liberty accorded to children for what were considered legitimate and pressing needs, has been somewhat abused and children are now allowed to remain away from school for various unlawful reasons. The Board would like also to remind parents that outside of educational and legal reasons for keeping their children in school, the financial aspect is worthy of consideration, since State aid is largely dependent upon the general average of attendance. The Board takes this method of calling attention to the existence of the law, impressing upon parents their obligations in the case, warning them against possible prosecution for violations of the statute, and appealing to them from the standpoint of their children's educational welfare.

Those Pictures from Home

A young Belgian soldier writing to a friend in America, says:

"And often I must take in my hand the pictures from home. I look at them all, one after the other, and they speak to me. If they only knew the pleasure they bring us,—these pictures from home—there would not be one remaining in Belgium. * * Even if they had to pass through the electrified wire of the frontier, or if they had to swim through the Yser Canal, I am sure they would come."
