Local Notes

Tomatoes dropped to 40 cents per basket this week.

L. U. Skirven's sale of pigs takes place next Saturday.

The Democrats in Kent are enthusiastic over the prospect of a great victory November 4th.

J. A. Stauffer, of Locust Grove, claims the championship on big sweet potatoes having ten which fill a peach basket. Can Rock Hall beat it?

Democratic Political Meetings next week at Galena, Millington, Kennedyville, Betterton and Rock Hall. All voters invited to be present.

William T. Duyer and Eli Elliott, who recently purchased eligible building lots on Chester river, are preparing to erect modern homes thereon.

If every Democrat votes his sentiments old Kent will roll up a majority of over 600. Be a man and vote as you ask to be classed viz., Democrat.

The Marvil Package Co.'s plant in Chestertown has been closed for several weeks. This, together with the absence of the strawboard mills, throws a great many persons out of employment.

Kent county will be well represented at the National Farmers' Congress in Hagerstown next week. Among the exhibits will be fruit by W. B. Harris and B. F. Rash; corn by Joseph Massey and son, Eugene Bonwill, Earle Nicholson; potatoes by Julian Jones.

When will wonders cease? It was thought that Kent farmers were slow finishing, but Talbot is still slower. A farmer in that county finished last week threshing wheat which had remained in the field 4½ months. In the adjoining field wheat, recently sown, was looking green.

The chryanthemum season is now on and as usual Chestertown has some expert growers. Among the number are Mrs. Fannie Usilton, Mrs. Belle Smith, Mrs. Thomas Holdson, Mrs. Edgar Pyle, Miss Fannie Baker, Wm. H. Elliott, Mrs. T. D. Bowers, Mrs. Washington Woodall, Mrs. Harry Coleman, Miss Flora Wheatley, R. S. Thomas, Miss Fannie Decorse, Miss Emma Davis.

Grangers are now looking with interest to the annual State Grange meeting at Chestertown in December. Delegates to the meeting from Frederick county will be Master and Past Master, Albert Holter and Mr. Morsell, and the newly appointed delegates, E. C. Renn and D. G. Zentz. The delegates will urge the State organizations to meet in Frederick the following year.

Galena is quite an enterprising town at present, and still not places enough for the people to live. Alvin McCauley is having a residence put up beside the house belonging to Miss Jennie Stevens and Edward Morgan is building a handsome home beside the home of Dr. and Mrs. Latimer. Besides a number of others are having changes made and additions built to their homes, and this is not counting the new "automobile homes." Everyone is pleased with the new school house there.

Two of Kent's State banks appear on the Eighth Annual Roll of Honor, issued by the Banking Department of the State of Maryland. To be on the Roll of Honor a bank must have a sum of money in the surplus and undivided profit column in excess of its capital stock. The Kent County Savings Bank comes eighth in the list of 65 while the Chestertown Bank of Maryland ranks 15th. All the other State banks in Kent are rapidly forging ahead, and within the next few years will easily be on the Honor Roll.

Sunday the sun, which has been running an hour behind time since last April, will catch up with itself, so to speak, and the daylight saving plan, which has been in vogue during the summer, will be a thing of the past. Sunday the clock time will go back to the solar time. Whether the daylight-saving plan will be revived next year or not in the city depends on the success of failure of an ordinance which will be submitted this fall. Many people, including the farmers, do not want the clocks set ahead. One man bemoaned the fact that the clock has been set ahead because he didn't know what to do with himself between supper and sundown. He hadn't anything to do and couldn't decently go to bed while the sun was still shining, so he passed the time bemoaning the fact that while it appeared to be 9 o'clock it actually was only 8 o'clck.

Edward Miller, a highly respected colored citizen and a Grand Army veteran died at his home in Chestertown on Saturday last 80 years old. Funeral was held in Janes M. E. Church Wednesday morning.

Henry Stewart, residing on the Stokes farm in Queen Anne's county, has discontinued farming and will sell all his farm personalty at public sale on Thursday, October 30th. See adv. in this issue.

The Western Maryland eleven came to Chestertown Saturday and barely conquored the home team. The Washington team showed much improvement from the last game. Ballard, Washington's mainstay, was injured during the game but was able to practice Monday. The score was 20 to 0.

District Wordens Anderson and Tilghman spent several days this week at several points on Chester river investigating some violations of the Federal Duck Laws. They have been instructed to take any one found shooting ducks to Baltimore City to be tried before the United States Court. The fine is $500 or six months in Federal prison given them. They propose to enforce the orders.

Saturday Night A Gala Night.—Fine weather favored and there was another great throng of people—from the farms for many miles around—in Chestertown on Saturday night last. These gatherings on Saturday nights grow larger all the time, and are pleasant events. Perhaps between one and two hundred autos, each bringing from three to five people—sometimes more—can be counted Saturday nights, and quite a number of teams also. Main street, from about eight until eleven, has on such occasion a holiday appearance, and indeed it is a holiday—a respite from hard work for many from the farm who for quite a long time have been very busy.

Automobile Accident. — Ellsworth Leary, Prof. Strang, Herbert Urit and Mr. Hastings while enroute to Chestertown Tuesday night in a big Franklin car collided with a horse and dog cart driven by Jim Henry on the State road near Fairlee. The horse was instantly killed, the negro cut about the head, Mr. Leary's car damaged and the occupants shaken up but not hurt. The colored driver had been to work at Harvey Morris' and was speeding down the road behind his colt when his reins broke and the horse, unguided, started across the road just as the big car came upon him. Dr. F. W. Smith attended Henry and he was carried home. The men with Mr. Leary proceeded to Chestertown in other cars.

WEDDING NOTES

On Saturday, October 18, Aaron L. Baker and Miss Sadie Michael, of Reading, Pa., were married at the M. P. Parsonage in Kennedyville, by Rev. J. F. Wooden.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Cooper, S., at "Buck Neck," was the scene of a very pretty wedding Wednesday, October 15, when their youngest and accomplished daughter, Ethel Elizabeth, became the bride of Jesse O. Beaver, of Baltimore. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. C. Donovan. The bride was tastifully attired in a blue Tailored traveling suit with hat and gloves to match and carried brides roses, while the groom wore the conventional black. The maid of honor, Miss Estella, wore blue crepe medior with hat and gloves to match and carried pink dahlias. Linton O. Tewes, of Baltimore, friend of the groom acted as best man, as both were in U. S. services eighteen months and serving eight months in France. The wedding march was skillfully rendered by Miss Laura V. Hare, of Baltimore, neice of the groom. The home was beautifully decorated with potted plants and ferns, while the presents were useful and numerous including cut glass, table linen, etc. After a reception Mr. and Mrs. Beaver left for Wilmington, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities.

THE FARMER HEARD FROM

Through a statement presented by members of the groups representing the employers and thepublic, the demands of the farmer have been brought to the attention of theWashington Industrial Conference. They include in the preamble a recital that "The net return for labor, management and capital used in farming is today smaller than the return in any other great industry;" and urge the necessity of remuneration which will afford a fair return for invested capital, technical skill, managerial ability and labor, and "equal" social educational and political advantages.

Until a few years ago there was never any doubt that the farmer was underpaid. His hours were from sunrise to long after sunset. The prices he received for his products were inadequate. He had independence in the sense that he was dependent on no employer; but he was entirely dependent on a thousand and one considerations of weather, markets, and so on.

Although the prices he now receives are high, he complains that they do not compensate him for increased costs. The News pointed out some time ago, in calling attention to the possibility of what would amount to a farmer's strike, that when wheat was $1, a bushel would pay a farm hand for a day; but that $2.26 wheat would pay him only half a day. There may be some farmers who are paying off the mortgages and buying automobiles, but there are more who are not bothered by the income tax. Social, political and educational advantages, we believe, are being gained more rapidly than the tone of the report referred to above would indicate; but the return to the farmer certainly is not large enough to indicate the expansion of the business the nation needs.

We may live without pictures, live without books;
But the civilized man cannot live without cooks

runs the couplet. But the cooks that we cannot live without are no use unless they have something to cook; and to assure this it is well for the rest of the country to see that the farmer gets a square deal, not merely under abnormal conditions such as now prevail but continuously.
