VOL. 80 CHESTERTOWN, MARYLAND, DECEMBER 13, 1919

Life's Tragedies

Conceive that three years have passed and that you are in fact dead. You are buried, you are lying away over there in the cold dark. The funeral is done. Your friends are gone. But your family is just as alive as ever. Disaster has not killed it, nor even diminished its vitality. It wants just as much to eat and drink as it did before sorrow passed over it. Look through the sod. Do you see that child there playing with a razor? It is your eldest son at grips with your business. Do you see that other youngest striving against a wolf with a lead pencil? It is your second boy. Well, they are males, these two, and must manfully expect what you made it possible for them to get. But do you see these four creatures with their hands cut off, thrust out into the infested desert? They are your wife and your daughters. You cut their hands off. You did it so kindly and persuasively. Yes you compelled all these four women to live so that money, luxury and idleness were absolutely essential to them if their existence was to be tolerable. And what is more, you compelled them to live so that, deprived of magic money, they were incapable of existing at all, tolerable or intolerable. Either they must expire in misery—after their splendid career with you, or they must earn existence any way they can. You were the cause of it, for you cut their hands off.

THIS IS A PLAIN MAN AND HIS WIFE

There was but one reason for the above tragedy. The wife had an idea, and the husband had an idea, but they would not swap. You have got to swap ideas to get ideas. Some people have but one idea, and that makes them so narrow, that they hate for people to walk on the same side of the street with them. You know some? FRANK SIMPERS of the Continental Life Insurance Co. of Wilmington, Del, has been selling life insurance twenty years the tenth day of this December. After twenty years in harness he still has some ideas that he would like to swap. In swapping ideas he has had the real pleasure of knowing that he helped to lighten many a heavy burden, also in helping to put sunshine in more than one home, where a tragedy might have been. The Husband had an idea that he didn't need life insurance, Simpers had an idea that he did. After swapping ideas the husband left with insurance and lots of ideas. You know what some of his ideas have lead to? Tragedies? Oh no. A real blessing. You all know what he means.

MR. READER DON'T YOU LEAVE A TRAGEDY IN YOUR HOME.

You have a dollar.
I have a dollar.
We swap.
Now you have my dollar.
And I have yours.
We are no better off.

You have an idea.
I have an idea.
We swap.
Now you have two ideas.
And I have two ideas.
That's the difference.

P. S. An idea with a moral. You could starve with a pocket full of money if you never bought eats.

STATE GRANGE IN SESSION

47th Annual Meeting Held At Washington College, Chestertown — Big Attendance—Interesting Addresses —Enjoyable Music And Fine Time.

A GREAT EXHIBIT OF PRODUCTS IN CHESTERTOWN HIGH SCHOOL.

The 47th Session of the Maryland State Grange was held in Chestertown this week. It will be noted in history as one of the best of the 47. Washington College opened its splendid facilities to the farmers and the sessions have been permeated with an air of dignity and intelligence.

Edgar R. Pennington, Master of Kent County Pomona Grange, opened the Grange Monday evening in his characteristic efficient manner and reflected credit upon his community and fellows by his expeditious and graceful presentation of the speakers. The invocation was made by Dr. Edward J. Clarke followed by Dr. Clarence Gould, President of Washington College, who welcomed the Grange on behalf of the College. He showed that while the countryman had studied nature he had also become enabled by good roads, auto and telephone to rub elbows against his fellowman and to rival his city brethren in the study of human-nature. He stated that the college was the first public school in the world established in 1723, and in 1781 was made a college, the first in the United States. George Washington endowed the college with a small sum and frequently visited the institution being a member of the Board of Visitors and Governors. It is a State institution and as such all Grangers have a part in it. State Master B. John Black replied for the Grange expressing appreciation for the beautiful spirit manifested. Wm. G. Smyth was in his most happy humor in his welcome address. He pictured the glories of Kent and the abundance of good things to eat so easily procured from land and river, He got so eloquent that the crabs were attached to his feet and grabbing hold his toes were tolled ashore, the oysters opened their mouths in laughter while wild ducks caught the flash in his eye and came to be bagged. The Garden of Eden was the name of this place to which the Grangers had been invited and they were bidden to enjoy their stay. State Lecturer D. G. Harry replied to Mr. Smyth in an appropriate manner. Mrs. Hannah Moore had charge of a delightful social hour. Mrs. Arthur L. Harris had charge of the music and entertaining features which included popular songs, solo by Mrs. Ralph Shallcross, duet by Mrs. James Brice and Miss Pinder, of Betterton, "Heavenly Twins" by Misses Coblenz and Woodall, Chestertown, chorus by Miss Fannie Stuart's pupils, solo by Mrs. Harris.

Tuesday's session was occupied with routine work closing in the afternoon with exemplification of first degree by Darlington Grange of Harford county and of second degree by Galena Grange. At night exemplification of fifth degree was given by Pomona Grange of Harford and of third degree by Kennedyville Grange. The address of the evening was made by Mr. Waterman, executive secretary of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, on the Railroad Problem and the Farmer. Mrs. Ralph Williams delighted the audience with two of her laughable readings.

Wednesday night the musical features included the college orchestra music, solo by Mr. Ballard and quartette by the State College boys. The session closed Thursday with a big oyster treat at the home of J. T. Anthony on Chester river and it was indeed an enjoyable occasion.

The following new officers were installed:

Master, B. J. Black, Roslyn; overseer, W. H. Day, Rockes; lecturer, Dr. G. Harry Street; steward, Edgar R. Pennington, Kennedyville; assistant steward, Raymond M. Ager, Hyattsville; chaplain, James T. Anthony, Chestertown; treasurer, Guy S.Meloy, Lanham; secretary, Mrs. E. O. Jean, Woodlawn; gatekeeper, John A. Shaffer, Oakland; ceres, Mrs. G. E. Lynch, Roslyn; flora, Mrs. G. Sexton, Salisbury; pomona, Mrs. Harry Williams, Worton; lady assistant, Mrs. A. G. Enson, Forest Hill; executive committee, James T. Anthony, Chestertown, chairman; secretary, R. Bentley Thomas, Ashton; Grant Sexton, Salisbury; Mrs. M. E. Hopkins, Cordova; A. G. Everson, Forest Hill; A. S. Remsberg, Frederick; state grange organizer, James T. Anthony, Chestertown; committee on agricultural college and extension station, William G. Smyth, Chestertown; W. Lee Allen, Salisbury; E. A. Cairnes, Jarrettsville. Dr. F. A. Wood, Thomas B. Symons, of the College, were the speakers night.

There were 22 resolutions passed for and against questions of the day. They strongly voted against race track gambling, against strikes, in favor of woman suffrage, etc., etc.

The attendance was the largest in history of Grange, the hospitality committee finding homes outside the hotels.

The next meeting place will likely be Frederick City.

Beautiful Window Displays.—The exhibits at the High School were fine indeed but the various displays of different Granges in the merchants' show windows were unexcelled. C. C. Jones' window was the home of Fairlee Grange and among the decorations was a quilt made up of prize ribbons won at the Maryland Week Exhibition. Julian Jones and Josiah Massey had special windows at the postoffice. Worton Grange decorated Graham & Thomas' window with good things while Still Pond used Stam's Drug Store for their display. Jefferson Bros.' store was headquarters for Chestertown Grange and the fine exhibit included centre piece by Mrs. Leon Brown and a crocheted spread by Mrs. Wilbur Morris. Sterlings' was the headquarters for Kennedyville and all farm products were to be seen including a hen on nest of eggs. Next came Lofland & Culps' with cabbage from seed sown July 7, corn planted July 12, potatoes planted July 31 and August 1st, all the result of the work of a one-arm man, H. S. Bullis, of Quaker Neck. Bordley & Son's window had Galena Grange's exhibit and it was a beauty. Still Pond Farmers' Club had the big Show window of the Noland-Bennett-Russell Motor Co. The picture of the first President, Hon. James S. Harris, and another former president, the late W. D. Pennington, were greatly admired and brought back sweet memories of other days.

A NEW REGIME

Democrats Divide Offices Equally In Gift Of County Commissioners—Fine Beginning In Carrying Out Pre-Election Promises

The County Commissioners completed their organization Tuesday and in doing so, carried out in spirit and letter the agreement made previous to the election, viz., to divide equally between the factions the minor offices. G. Harry Cannan was chosen President, Ex-Judge John Medders, of Kennedyville, was elected clerk; Dr. Merritt Brice, of Millington, health officer; Dr. Harry G. Simpers, physician to the jail and Herbert E. Perkins, Esq., attorney to the Board. In this connection we think it due State's Attorney Harrison W. Vickers to state that this agreement was brought about by his magnanimous spirit and by his willingness to sacrifice his interest in order that it should be carried out.

Samuel Hicks, who retires as clerk to the Board, has made an exceptionally fine record both in his faithfulness and in his efficiency and has a host of friends who regret his departure. His successor, like Mr. Hicks, has spent most of his life in a blacksmith shop, but is fully equipped to carry on the work of this office. He will likely remove to Chestertown in a short while.
