Kent News.

TERMS—$1.50 per year; 75 cents for six months; 50 cents for three months, in advance. Single copies 3 cents.

SATURDAY, APRIL 16, 1921

In his first message to Congress, delivered in person Tuesday, President Harding, after recommending a program of domestic legislation sweeping in its extent, definitely rejected the existing League of Nations, urged the adoption of a resolution ending the state of war and announced that he would ask for the ratification of the Treaty of Versailes, with "explicit reservations and modifications."

James H. Sides, C. C. Jones and Clifton L. Jarrell, at the urgent solicitation of numerous citizens, have consented to serve on the Chestertown Water Board, and will no doubt be elected, without opposition at the election to be held April 25th. W. M. Culp and R. Hynson Rogers, present members of the board declined to serve another term. They have given several years service to the town and leave affairs in fine shape. The citizens are to be congratulated in getting such men to serve on these important Boards.

KENT'S WEALTHIEST CITIZEN

Elsewhere in the News today is noted the death of our esteemed friend and fellow citizen, Thomas W. Eliason. He was known as the wealthiest man in Kent county and the general public only saw this outstanding characteristic. But he was more. To those who associated with him in business and social life he appeared in a different light than that of the rich man.

He showed the greatness of his soul in the meekness of his consideration; in condescending to men of low estate, in supporting the distressed and patronizing the neglected. He had the tender feelings of a woman and a heart that could be made to respond to worthy appeals as quickly as the harp strings to the fingers of the skilled player. He was unostentatious in all his beneficent acts and was liberal toward hospitals and educational institutions. He has been the friend to both white and colored churches but his contributions always given in such a manner that his right hand did not know what his left did. He was a man of the finest instincts, the very soul of honor and correctness in his dealings with men.

He was a home-lover—his chief joy seemed to be having about him his loved ones. His home was his castle and here he found that quiet life which characterized him and seemed to harmonize with his whole being.

Chestertown and Kent county will miss Thomas W. Eliason for his judgment in business affairs, for his fund of available intelligence and for the readiness with which he responded to worthy appeals.

CHICAGO MERCHANTS' MONEY DOES NOT BUILD KENT ROADS

Why we should patronize home trade:

First—Home manufacturers, home laborers, home professional men, and home merchants can not exist without each other.

Second—The more money there is in Kent County the less the rate of taxes.

Third—Money sent to Chicago, New York and other cities increases the wealth there with a corresponding decrease here.

Fourth—Schools, churches, streets and all city improvements here are not made and never will be made by the citizens of Chicago or Philadelphia.

Fifth—Out-of-town goods help to build up and improve the place where they are bought, and cripple the business houses here, because we should buy as much as we can in Kent and help in that way to increase the capacity of home industries.

Sixth—The buyer at home sees what he is purchasing and can get the guarantee of his merchant, who should strive to give the best values for the money in return for home patronage.

Seventh—Pride in our town should foster mutual help and encouragement in all lines of worthy endeavor.

Eighth—Disintegration would follow the complete abandonment of home patronage, just as a certain amount of mail order business has a demoralizing effect on our city business today.

Ninth—Identical articles can be bought more cheaply in Chestertown than from mail order houses, and without the possibility of their being crushed and damaged in transit.

Tenth—The interest temporal and religious, the consumption of an ideal, can only be brought about by each individual making himself a patron of home merchants, not for the purpose primarily, of enriching that merchant, but that he in turn may be better able to supply, just as the employment of home labor adds to its purchasing power and ability to aid in public improvements and the employment of home professional men enables them to equip themselves more thoroughly for their work.
