A PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR

To the trained and untrained nurses, doctors and sunshine carriers in Kent, may those whose sufferings you relieve always remember you in their prayers and greater success each year attend your most excellent work.

To the County Home and all connected with it: May your work be crowned with success in adding comfort and cheer to those who in the shadows of life sit in the quiet surroundings fostered by gentle and kind hearts.

To the churches of Kent county, may the year 1922 bring to you all a big harvest of souls redeemed from sin and temptation to be of service to mankind. May your membership grow and the gospel be spread among all humanity.

To the Charitable Societies in town and Churches, may each week of the year bring to your aid the generous outpouring of funds necessary to carry forward your work and widen the scope of your usefulness.

To the factory, cannery and shop workers, may your business grow in volume and interest and may you enjoy greater success than ever before.

To our farmers and families, may you not be discouraged but take heart from the fact that He who makes the sunshine and rain is able to make big crops and feed you. The sun is still shining and God is on the throne. He will make plain the path. May you have bumper crops in 1922 and less expenses.

To our merchants and business men, a great year in cash receipts and a satisfaction of knowing you helped to serve the public with loyalty and honesty.

To the Banks and Financial Institutions of Kent, may the year 1922 continue your great growth and rapid strides made during the past year, and may you grow stronger and bigger every day and always be able to accommodate the growing demands for bigger progress.

To the Fraternal Bodies, may your membership grow and your example in aiding charity and doing good work be copied by the average citizen, so that Kent will always be recognized as the place where the poor and needy can always find relief.

To the Commissioners of Chestertown, may they keep up the garbage system and build more new roads and concrete walks. May the year 1922 see a new fire apparatus and other much-needed improvements.

To the County Commissioners, may the next tax-rate be as low at least as the present one.

To all the laboring people, teachers, preachers, mothers, wives and sweethearts of Kent county, may health, wealth and prosperity shower their blessings upon one and all during 1922 and may we all remember the less fortunate and lend a helping hand to the sick and troubled. May the Great Ruler of the Universe look down and lead us in the paths of peace and righteousness.

NEW YEAR GREETINGS

I take this means of wishing all my friends a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

MAY THE YEAR 1922 BE BRIGHT

Kent county farmers will remember 1921 as the year when the figures totaled "13". Assailed on all sides by low commodity prices and only slightly decreased operating expenses, the average farmer has had a year of one disappointment after another.

But it is a fact that each and every industry either has already suffered in the aftermath of the war, or is destined to experience some of the bitter dregs in the future. The farmer may feel that his trying time has pased and that the future holds something infinitely better.

There is evey indication, now, that next year should be a boom year for the agriculturist. With the resumption of export business, there should be a strong demand for American products next season, and it is a fact that many of the commodities that were piled high in warehouses during the war are rapidly being consumed.

A silver lining is beginning to show in the dark cloud that has obscured the sun of prosperity for the average farmer during the last year. And we may look forward to 1922 with renewed hope and confidence.

HAND OF DEATH

Mrs. Sarah Simmons Watson, widow of the late Edward J. Watson, died at the home of her son, Joseph, in Fairlee, Thursday morning. She had prepared for breakfast when a pain about the heart seized her. She undressed and got back in bed with the help of Mrs. Watson and died within a few minutes. The deceased was one of those gentle, lovable women who assemed to be like a quiet zephyr on a summer's day, going about among her loved ones. She was in her 84th year and yet able to knit, read and do many things about the home. She was a guest at her daughter's home in Chestertown at Christmas and assisted in cake making. She had a large circle of friends. She leaves the following children: Mrs. John E. Morris, Mrs. James W. Crouch and Joseph Watson. The funeral will take place today at one o'clock, at the home of her son, in Fairlee, interment in Chester cemetery, Rev. Avery Donovan, officiating, C. L. Dodd, undertaker. The bearers will be: J. Romie Byron, Geo. V. Hendrickson, Harry Lee, Jas. W. Crouch, Harvey W. and Walter Morris.

Miss Ada L. Lockwood died on Tuesday night, of pneumonia, at the home of George V. Peverley, where she had gone for a brief visit, during which she was taken ill. She was the youngest daughter of the late Edward Wilson and Sarah Alrich Lockwood, of Middletown, and was born at Fredericktown, Md., but spent most of her life in Delaware. Services will be held at St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Middletown, Saturday morning at ten o'clock. Interment at St. Francis Xavier Church, near Warwick.

Marion, infant daughter of Lester and Irene Baldwin, died in Baltimore Thursday night of bronchial pneumonia, after a few hours illness. Interment will take place in Chester cemetery Sunday at 10.30 a. m.

Mrs. D. W. Melvin, aged 69 years, widow of the late Rev. A. D. Melvin, died at the home of her daughter Mrs. John B. Phillips, at Millington, Thursday morning. Services will be held at 1 p. m. at her daughter's home Saturday, interment at Chester cemetery, Chestertown, J. A. Tobin, undertaker.

John Bell McLaughlin, a well-known and highly respected citizen of Queen Annes county, died at the home of his son, John W. McLaughlin, on High street, Chestertown, Saturday last, of cancer, aged 70 years. The deceased was a member of Price's M. E. Church for sixteen years. He leaves besides his widow, four children: George McLaughlin, of Roberts, Mrs. Joseph Battis, of Prices, Mrs. Della Anderson, of near Prices, John W. McLaughlin, of Chestertown, and six grandchildren. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 1.30 p. m., in Salem M. E. Church, Queen Anne, conducted by Revs. N. O. Gibson, Henry Covington, and Rev. Fray, of Church Hill, interment in cemetery adjoining. The pallbearers were: Wm. J. Stant, A. C. Seney, James Cannon, W. J. Massey, S. C. Wails, Joseph Taylor, Wm. C. Reed. Wm. H. Good, of Church Hill, undertaker.

The funeral of Claude F. Parks was held from his residence at the Queen Anne's end of Chester bridge, Sunday at 1.30 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Omar E. Jones, assisted by Revs. L. E. Barrett, C. L. Atwater and Mr. Sanner, interment in Chester cemetery.

James S. Nowland, a retired Cecil county farmer, died at his home, near Warwick, after a lingering illness, aged 81 years. He was a Democrat, and declared he never voted a "split" ticket in his life. He married Miss Jane McCoy, of First District, and the couple recently celebrated their fifty-sixth wedding anniversary. Besides his wife he is survived by two sons and two daughters, James A. Nowland, Edward S. Nowland, Mrs. Walter Wood and Miss Mary Nowland, all of that county. Interment was in St. Paul's Cemetery, near Earleville.

DAIRY HINTS

MORE MILK NOW BEING USED

Consumption Has Doubled Since 1890, But Is Far Below Amount Used in Europe.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Forty-four gallons of milk is used by each person in the United States annually, according to estimates made by the dairy division of the United States Department of Agriculture. This estimate refers to whole milk and does not include that which is consumed in the form of ice cream, cheese, and butter. The amount is about twice as much as that used in 1890, when the per capita consumption was approximately 22 gallons. The dairy specialists point out that the increase in the use of milk in the last thirty years is as great as that in the preceding 280 years.

The present-day consumption of milk in the United States, they say, is equal to about one pint per day, or as much as two small glasses. That is not a great amount when it is known that it includes not only the milk that is used for drinking, but also that used in cooking. This is a small amount compared to the per capita consumption in some European countries. In Sweden and Switzerland, for example, nearly 70 gallons are used by each person annually.

A high value has always been placed on cows in many European countries, and history records a campaign conducted by Julius Caesar in central Europe where he found German tribes living almost exclusively on milk. In order to provide pastures for their cows they forcibly resisted the settlement of any people near them.

In relating the growth of the dairy industry in this country, the department specialists say that in pioneer days each family kept its own cow. The denser the population became the more important it was to have a well regulated and ample commercial supply of milk. Gradually the number of cows increased, and in time a dairy business grew up in various sections. The development of modern methods in the distribution of milk, with economic sanitary handling, has been closely accompanied by the larger use of this food, they say.

Much of the milk now used in cities comes many miles, and recently improved methods have made it possible to ship it for long distances in refrigerator cars. At the national dairy show in Chicago in 1919, milk shipped from the Pacific coast took first prize in the market-milk competition with the highest score ever given to milk in recent years.

Cities have always used a smaller amount of milk in proportion to the number of people than general farming communities, the statistics show. For example, Philadelphia reached the rate of 23 gallons per capita in 1905, which was fifteen years later than the country at large reached a consumption of 22 gallons. There are, however, many agricultural and nonagricultural rural districts where cows are not kept and where modern methods of milk distribution are not equal to most cities. The people in such places have to depend on canned milk of various kinds, and this, the dairymen say, is an exceedingly valuable means of supplying a need which 20 or 30 years ago could not have been supplied at all.

AIMING FOR PUREBRED SIRES

Western Cow-Testing Association Leaders Making Effort to Have High-Class Bulls.

An effort is being made by the cooperative cow-testing association leaders in the western states to make the bulls of their associations 100 per cent purebred. That there is much interest in this movement is shown by the fact that the report recently received from the western office of the dairy division, United States Department of Agriculture, shows that recently two associations have been added to the 100 per cent list. These are the Sacramento-Yolo and the San Diego, both in California. There are now eight cow-testing associations, in the territory supervised by the western office of the dairy division, having all bulls purebred. Of these, three are in Idaho, two in Colorado, two in California and one in Washington.

IN APPRECIATION

I desire to express to the patrons of the Chestertown postoffice my thanks for their very loyal co-operation in handling the largest Christmas mail in the history of the office. Our patrons loyally observed the slogan, "Mail early, and do it right," and everything was handled in the most satisfactory manner possible. I also desire to express my very great appreciation of the most excellent and efficient service rendered by my entire office force, including clerks, city and rural carriers, as well as substitutes and mail messengers. The largest and heaviest Christmas mail in the history of the office was handled and dispatched in the most painstaking and efficient manner, and I desire that my force shall have full credit for their splendid service to the public.
Respectfully,
T. D. BOWERS, Postmaster.
