WALL PAPER REDUCTION.

The Wm. K Grauer Wall Paper Co. had a shipment of wall coverings delayed in transit from their factory until too late for their fall trade. Same shipment has now been delivered to them by the Railroad Company, and hey have placed same in their agents hands to be sold by them at about one half the original price. I, as an agent for these people, have received my share of these goods and will sell same at one-half price. This is truly a good buy even though you don't need the papers until spring. I will be pleased to show the line of samples to any one wishing to see them. I am also giving my annual discount of 10 per cent. on all work done in the months of January and February.

Thanking my many friends for the volume of work given me through the past year and asking for a share of same in 1922, and wishing you all a happy and prosperous New Year.

L. R. VANSANT'S HOME BURNED AT GALENA

Mr. Vansant And Family Escape In Their Night Clothes—He Has His Arm Broken In Two Places—Mrs. Vansant Breaks Rib—Loss $10,000.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Rod. Vansant, his 80-year-old invalid mother, and daughter, Miss Anna, had a narrow escape from being burned Sunday morning. Their elegant home located in Galena took fire from some unknown cause and burned to the ground with contents Miss Anna was home for the week-end from Wilmington and was awakened at 3 a. m. Sunday by smoke. She had gone to bed with bed-room slippers on and went at once to her parents' room and awakened them. Mr. Vansant made an attempt to get to his mother's room but his way was cut off by the smoke. He got out on the porch, broke open a window and rescued his mother carrying her out in his arms to the porch roof. By this time Mrs. Vansant and Miss Anna had reached the porch roof. Mr. Vansant in undertaking to drop to the ground struck a step breaking his arm at the wrist and elbow. Mrs. Vansant, the wife, also let herself down and broke a rib and otherwise was bruised. By this time Walter Hadley arrived and assisted in getting Miss Anna and the aged mother to the ground. She skinned her arm but otherwise was not hurt. Capt. Hadley by this time came and carried the invalid to his home. Mr. and Mrs. Vansant were in their barefeet and with nothing except night clothes on also walked 75 yards over the cold ground to Captain Hadley's.

The whole town was aroused but could do nothing to save the home which fortunately was away from any other property. Middletown Fire Co. arrived within an hour and a-half ready to render any assistance.

The home was built and occupied by the late J. Thomas Pennington up to his death when Mr. Vansant fell heir to it. It contained some elegant and antique furniture which money can not replace.

The loss is estimated at $10,000 with only about $2,100 insurance.

Drs. Scott and Jones attended the injured. Mr. Vansant was carried to Elkton Hospital where his second break at elbow was X-Rayed and set.

Warren Vansant took his mother, who is 80 years old and an invalid, to his home in Greensboro. Mr. and Mrs. Vansant are guests of James D. Davis and family.

BIG LOSS OF CATTLE

Entire Herd, 27 Head, Of Thos. Bryan Of Near Chestertown Condemned —Other Farmers Also Lose.

Thomas Bryan, one of the largest dairy cattle owners in this section, has been informed that every one of his fine herd of dairy cattle, consisting of 27 head, is affected with tuberculosis, and must be sent away or to be killed. He submitted his cows to the inspection by a State veterinarian, who found almost his entire herd to be affected.

Mr. Bryan paid $1,000 for four of these cows and the remainder are valued in proportion. For the high priced cows he will receive only about one-third of their value, while he will lose heavily on the remainder and will be compelled to purshase an entire new herd and begin all over again the fine business which the cows were bringing him.

Many other farmers in the county are likewise hit by the inspection, and it is estimated a great deal of money will be lost before the inspection is completed. The question of money counts but little when the matter of health is at stake and by such eradication the health authorities hope to stamp out tuberculosis.

DRIVERLESS AUTO CAUSES A PANIC

Patrick Leland, genial traffic policeman stationed at Charles and Lexington streets, hadn't had to "bawl out" a single motrist all morning and he was in a fine humor shortly before 11 a. m. today when a big touring car bore down upon him, the driver paying no attention to his shrill whistle. And this because there was no driver.

Pedestrains leaped aside, so did Patrolman "Pat," and the big car careened and swerved in its flight down the hilly portion of Charles street. Shoppers walking on the east side of the street were thrown into a panic as the car, plowing its way toward the sidewalk, crashed into an electric pole, but not before it had struck Mrs. Belle Chapman, 5908 Falls road.

Mrs. Chapman had been waiting for a car at the corner and did not see the machine until too late. She pushed her 5-year-old niece behind her as the car approached. The little girl was unhurt and Mrs. Chapman refused to go to a hospital, declaring she was only slightly bruised.

Meanwhile Leland was peering into the car with a "piece of his mind" all ready. But there was no driver. The machine had been parked in the middle of the block, the brakes slipped, the car started, and that's all.

J. Waters Russell, of Chestertown, owner of the capering machine, seeing the crowd at the next corner, changed his mind about auto thieves and came in search of his car. Patrolman Pat restored it to him and returned to his post.—Baltimore News, Saturday.
