Kent News.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 5, 1922

The people must have coal during the winter, in order to keep comfortably warm. This disturbed condition in the mining industry has continued too long, and something must be done at Washington to improve it.

The Democratic State Central Committee met in Baltimore Wednesday and fixed the Primary date as Monday, September 11th.

The P. O. S. of A. in its State Convention Tuesday passed resolutions against race-track gambling, against an open and commercialized Sabbath, against violation of the Volstead law and that the Bible be read every day in the public schools. It is such organizations that are the bulwark of a nation.

The doctors in Chestertown state that it is a most healthful place. It can be aided very much by doing one thing—cleanliness. This may be helped by cutting weeds in vacant lots, in back yards, in fence corners and out-of-the-way places. Let's take more pride in the cleanliness of our town. The Commissioners will, we are confident, do their part in keeping the Park cleared of paper, boxes and peanut shells, if the property owners take the same pride in their home yards.

In the mails ore being sent out what is termed a "Good Luck" letter. Here is what it says: "Good Luck. Copy this and send it to nine people to whom you wish good luck. This chain was started by an American Officer and should go around the world three times.

Do not break this chain. Who does will have bad luck. Send them out in 24 hours, count nine days, and you will have some good fortune."

It costs each one who sends out these nine letters about 25 cents in postage and for stationery. If there is a more nonsensical way of wasting time and money we would like to be shown it. If the party or parties who started it had planned some relief to poor, sick babies in summer or for help to blind and unable to getnecessities of life, or to write a letter of cheer to some shut in or sick person, "luck" would be more apt to follow. Luck comes to the man who works and renders service to his fellowmen and not by wishing: "If wishes were horses all beggers could ride not by wishing."

SEASONS CHANGING

The farmers hardships in getting his grain threshed excites the sympathy of every one. Some farmers have had threshing rigs on their years for two weeks and the uncertainty of preparations to be made by the housewife is nerve wrecking, to say the least.

The record for rain fall has been broken this summer. Most of the rains have been thunder storms, accompanied with severe lightning and heavy downpours, and some part of the county has been visited practically every day during the past month. While little wheat has sprouted as yet, the damage due to long standing in the field, with rust prevalent, the harm done has been very great. Tomatoes and corn have had entirely too much moisture, and both are undoubtedly affected some.

If this was the only season this article would not have been written. But a comparison for three years shows just how damp it has been. In 1920 June showed a precipitation of 5.78 and July 3.78; June, 1921, and July, 4.07, while the present year in June there was 5.42 inches, and July showed 5.08.

With these conditions, doesn't it seem that we must adopt some method of protecting the wheat after it is cut until it can be threshed. That may be by sheds or barracks, with open sides for ventilation, but sufficient roofing to protect. Not one or two lrage sheds, but several smaller ones at convenient locations on the farm; or canvas coverings for the shocks, just to top them and shed the rain. Of course the large barn is not native to this section. In Western Maryland, in Pennsylvania, through the Middle West the large barn is the most prominent building on the farm. It might be better to build protective sheds or barracks and save the grain than lose by rain in the open field. It is worth trying(

Maybe, who knows, the rains this year are anxious to teach us a lesson To protect what we have grown is far better than "taking a chance." Co-operation in the right spirit is the secret of a kindly brotherhood.

With sympathy to the losers and to all farmers we offer these suggestions for serious consideration. Let it be remembered that rains that have been and are now falling will come again in future seasons. Is it not wisdom to guard against similar losses?
