ATLAS
PORTLAND CEMENT

THE same spirit of progress that replaced the horse with the automobile, has replaced temporary, inflammable buildings with permanent fire-proof structures.

One man has done much toward this change—your building material dealer—by heavy personal investment in slow moving, low profit stock—building materials.

His judgment in favor of permanence is vindicated by its nation wide acceptance. His judgment on individual materials is equally good. He calls Atlas "the Standard by which all other makes are measured."

Resoultions Of Respect

Whereas, God in His All-wise Providence has removed from us our loved chaplain,

Resolved, That Old Kent Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution, has, in the death of Miss Jeanette Gooding, lost one of its most loyal charter members.

Resolved, further, that we wish to bear testimony to her loyalty to her country, her high character, her patience in suffering, her constant endeavor to uplift, and to advance her Master's cause.

Resolved, That her life will ever be an incentive for good to those who were associated with her.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this chapter, published in the county papers and that a copy be sent to the mother of the deceased.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of my dear sister and aunt, Gladys Hessey, who departed this life four years ago, Oct. 27th, 1918.

In memory I often see,
The one we loved so dear;
Her voice grows so celar some times
I feel that she is near.
Often from my heart there comes a cry,
Why, oh! why did sister die.
Then comes the answer so solemn and deep,
That loving sister is only asleep,
Darling sister how we all miss you,
And though each day our hearts grieve more,
We give thanks you're safe with Jesus,
Home upon that distant shore.

Loving sister, Annie Blackiston.

Farewell, dear aunt, you are at rest,
And will forever be,
You can not come to us on earth,
But we can come to thee.

Niece, Florence Blackiston.

In sad but loving remembrance of my dear son, William C. Beck, who died October 19, 1916, six years ago.

This day recalls the memory
Of the loved one I laid to rest,
And those who still remember him
Are the ones who loved him best.
Oh, the vacant chair in the lonely home,
My heart grows sick with pain;
I long for one glimpse of the vanished form
That will never come back again.
Sadly I gaze through the twilight of tears,
With eyes that are anxious and fond
And wait for the Master to summon me home
To the land that lieth beyond.

By his mother, Sarah Beck.

In my heart your memory lingers,
Tenderly, kind and true.
There is not a day, dear brother,
That I do not think of you.

By his brother, Herbert.

When crystal streams through endless years,
Flow over golden sands,
Where we some day expect to meet
And clasp our brother's hand.

By his sisters.

On the hillside softly sleeping,
Far away from care and pain;
May you rest in Jesus' keeping
Till in Heaven we meet again.

By his niece, Etta.

You have gone from us, dear uncle,
To your Saviour, good and true,
You have won the heavenly glory,
Which is for us to do.

By his nephew, Oliver.

THE LURE OF THE DAHLIA

Edgar S. Davis, Kennedyville.

"They have come, the advance guard, the masses of dazzling splendor; the rear guard soon to follow strong, full orbed and stately, there is no resisting tribute of their bewitching beauty.

Myriads of the most gorgeous flowers putting themselves on dress parade, they vie with each other to see which can make the most alluring and winsome appearance.

Whence came all these tints of woven splendor which greet the vision as far as eye can reach, shimmering, flashing, bllazing in the sunshine.

Whence came all this rich coloring—as if the tints had been taken from the sunsets and the mantles from the stars, all woven by deft and unseen fingers into these forms of entrancing loveliness.

Who would live in desolation when he might live in fairyland where nature and all her unseen forces work day and night to lavish around him her choicest treasures? Plant in masses. Watch God's great out-of-doors with abundance.

A small investment will bring so much. Open all the gates and let the waiting beauty of an early Elysium settle around you. Reverently I stand in their imperial presence. Instinctively I say. "How precious are thy thoughts unto me. O God; how great is the sum of them." All of their radiant forms are the revelations of the love of the Father, interpreters of His thoughts, prophets of our own resplendent future."

P. M. C. Cadets Overcome W. C.

In a game largely of the aerial quality and full of thrills, Pennsylvania Military College defeated Washington College, of Chestertown, Saturday 12 to 0.

Standing out above all other features was the all-around brilliant playing of George Worst, P. M. C.'s left half back. With amazing resource and energy, the little half back carried most of the heavy burdens for his team.

Worst was knocked out in the last quarter, and though suffering from a badly wrenched back he refused to leave the field. Coach Si Pauxtis was obliged to send two scrubs on to the gridiron to take the young man off.

Other features of the game were the tackling of Wyman and Schoonberger, the forward pass tossing of Cavanaugh, visiting quarterback; the line bucking of Crow and the all-around work of Keenan, Washington's big right guard.

Cambridge Defeats Chestertown.

Cambridge High defeated Chestertown High, '19 to 0, at Cambridge Friday afternoon. The locals scored in the second quarter, Christopher carrying the ball over after a long run by Sard. They scored again in the second on a neatly executed forward pass, Christopher to Sard, the latter running nearly 50 yards before he was brought to earth. In the third quarter Christopher carried the ball close to the goal line and Taitt carried it over. Taitt then kicked goal. The game ended with the ball in Cambridge's possession near Chestertown's 30 yard line.

Wm. Livingston Gains 10 Pounds And Feels Fit As A Fiddle Since Taking Tanlac.

William Livingston, of 4 Harris Ave., Baltimore, Md., for more than forty years with the Pennsylvania railroad, returns to health and strength by the Tanlac route.

"Indigestion carried me so far down hill in two months time that it alarmed me. What I would eat seemed to lump up in the pit of my stomach like lead, followed by fermentation, gas, nausea, severe pains and shortness of breath. I would have headache so bad I could hardly see and was intensely nervous. Some nights I could not sleep at all, had no appetite for breakfast, and felt all tired out to begin with. In fact, I was almost a physical wreck and just dragging myself around.

"I heard some of the boys at the dock talking about Tanlac. That put me in the notion to try it and the first bottle showed me it was that I needed. I have gained ten pounds now and am feeling as fit as a fiddle. I wouldn't think of being without Tanlac at my house, for I consider it an indispensable family medicine. Nobody can go wrong by taking Tanlac."
