SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1920

Ohio elected a Democratic Governor.

Who said the Eastern Shore was wet? Do you think it, Mr. Butler?

Old Kent gives Bruce 534 and Goldsborough 450 majorities. Isn't that fine!

The Cecil School Bond Issue for $150,000 was approved by 186 majority.

What a majority! T. Alan Goldsborough carried the Shore by over 5,000. Even Somerset gave him 700.

The Drys and Wets have cause for rejoicing. Ohio went dry on a wet and dry issue while New York elected a wet Governor against a dry man.

Delaware is to be congratulated. Frank Davis says he resigned before the storm struck him, as the Senator who was nominated in his place was defeated by over a thousand.

New Hampshire, which returned a Republican majority of 31,000 for governor in 1920, went Democratic by 10,000. The Democrats won control of the lower branch of the legislature while the Republicans retained a reduced lead in the Senate.

According to the election returns at hand the general results of Tuesday's elections were highly encouraging to the Democrats. We gained at least three United States Senators and enough members of the House of Representatives to make the political complexion of that branch of the next Congress exceedingly doubtful, if not clearly Democratic.

Adoption by the people of the constitutional amendments providing for fewer elections and for lengthening the terms of the Comptroller and State Treasurer complete the Ritchie plan for reorganizing the state government, which is expected to save the State, in round figures, about $500,000 a year.

Along with the amendments for greater representation for Baltimore in the State Senate and House of Delegates and for woman's eligibility for office, the Ritchie plan passed easily.

The first part of the reorganization plan was provided for by the last session of the Legislature, when it adopted such parts of the plan as could be put into effect by the law-making body, and without changes in the constitution. These changes now have been made and the whole plan will be effective January 1, as provided by the Legislature.

Wilson M. Tyler, of the Easton Gazette, says "Statistics, savings banks, health and every opportunity for comparison is overwhelmingly in favor of the advantages from the closed saloon. Sporadic ulcers in manufacture of home-brew, creating bootleggers, who in turn inocculate fresh communities, are matters to be dealt with along side of other crimes where law is ignored. The laws against arson and theft are not attacked because some persons violate them. Society rises up in its righteous indignation and decries the violator. Until society does that same thing with violations of the Volstead Act, society must suffer the consequences.

Neither do we say that because stealing is prevalent in most every community, that the Government should take control of the processes of the responsibility of helping to uphold these processes.

"Am I my brother's keeper" is as pertinent and far-reaching today as it ever was. That people or government in its self-righteousness, that takes no cognizance of Cain's question, must suffer the inevitable consequences of responsibility. History education and psychology emphasizes the principle of complete eradication of a dangerous practice, rather than the curtailed cultivation of it. And the people of the Eastern Shore are advanced far enough in the scale of evolution to so understand. All they need is rousing."

THE ELECTION IN KENT

Kent county and the State is to be warmly congratulated over its selection of William Cabell Bruce to succeed Senator France, and of the re-election of T. Alan Goldsborough to Congress, and over the overwhelming majority by which that selection was recorded. The vote in Kent was 2300 short of the registered vote and in Chestertown alone there were about 360 who failed to cast their ballots. Some of the politicians remarked that it was the quietest election in their history. The bond issue caused many voters to come out and the vote shows that this interest was nearly equally divided. It was 1 a. m. before the last returns were tabulated. Rock Hall and Millington were the tail-enders one giving a big majority for Bond and the other a bigger majority against it.

There is no question that Kent's citizens want good roads and efforts will be to inauguurate a plan by which this object may be attained. We are sure the County Commissioners and others will join heartily in trying to devise a plan.

In Mr. Bruce the State will have as its junior Senator and in Mr. Goldsborough the Shore will have men of notable intellectual and critical ability, conscientious and interested students of government; not magnetic personalties but eminently sound thinkers standing, we believe, well up, in the general character of the attainments, in the best half of the United States Senate and House of Representatives' personal. The News wishes them, and is confident that they will disclose, careers of honorable and valuable service to this State, to the Shore, and to this nation.

ARMISTICE DAY

Two legal holidays in the same week and three in the month, with Christmas week not so very far off, show how the calendar is being crowded. In falling so near Election Day, Armistice Day must always be a considerable inconvenience, but the event it celebrates is so important that it cannot be allowed to pass without pronounced recognition. In fact, the probabilities are that its significance will steadily increase. Election Day is an established holiday and so is Thanksgiving Day, and in neither is there likelihood of change. November will have to harbor all three as best it can.

In Maryland Armistice Day, Nov. 11th, was made a legal holiday by the General Assembly of 1920 on proclamation of the Governor. Governor Ritchie's proclamation for the observance this week follows the lines of a thanksgiving paper, and after declaring it a legal holiday throughout the State of Maryland urges the people "to give thanks to Almighty God for His many benefactions and to express their gratitude and love for those who gave their lives that we might continue to enjoy the blessings of freedom." He suggests services in the churches and other places of worship. Doubtless the spirit will be all that it should be, but the fact that Armistice Day this year comes on Saturday will probably interfere with the holding of many special church services.
