MILK MEETING

The milk meeting held in the Court House Wednesday night was well attended by 60 milk producers from various parts of the county. An excellent talk on the work of the Inter-State Milk Producers' Association was given by H. D. Allebach, president of the organization. Mr. Allebach said that the price paid to producers for milk in the Inter-State territory was the highest of any other terrieory in the United States except Washington, D. C., and the New England States. It was brought out that the reason Washington paid more to producers for milk, is because all dairy barns in that territory are inspected and must meet with clean, standard requirements, also, only milk from tuberculin tested herds can be shipped into Washington. Mr. Allebach and County Agent Derrick also brought out that the price received by our local milk producers was far more than condensing plants are paying.

A very fine three-reel moving picture, entitled "Fair Acres," was shown.

The fact that the three year term of our Director, in this territory, expires this December was brought out by County Agent Derrick, who cited the value of having the Director from Kent county. Upon motion, it was decided that Edgar Pennington's services, as director, had been sa valuable that his re-election was much and Queen Anne's counties should desired and that the farmers of Kent work for Mr. Pennington's re-election.

At the request of E. Thos. Massey, County Agent Derrick arranged with Mr. Cohee to attend the Massey Milk Local Meeting next Tuesday evening, November 21st, and discuss the problems of the local members of the Inter-State Association. The motion picture, "Fair Acres," will also be shown.

TURKEYS HIGH IN PRICE THIS YEAR

Increasing Scarcity Causes Prices To Soar, Says Prominent Shipper.

Forebodings of high-priced turkeys this year are seen in the announcement this week of a prominent New York commission merchant, who was in the county looking up his regular shippers. He predicts that the war prices of these delectable birds will be exceeded.

During the last six years the price of turkeys has increased to the producer more than 100 per cent, while during the past twenty years the number of turkeys produced has decreased about 50 per cent.

The difficulties of raising turkeys is given as the reason for the production decrease. They are hard to raise, because of wandering propensities and disease known as "blackhead," to which they are easy prey. It is very difficult to ship live turkeys to market, and when shipped dressed there is a large amount of "shrinkage."

However, the raising of turkeys may be a very profitable occupation where there is an abundance of range and ample feed and freedom from predatory animals, the department adds.

Kent county ships thousands of turkeys to New York every year, and a handsome sum is realized by the farmers for them. But during the late summer and early autumn several lots were received in New York from California that showed exceptionally fine quality. While some of the dealers in New York don't think there will be any great amount of foreign turkeys in the city, it is said that the foreign turkeys now are the predominating feature on the market and control prices. One merchant a few days ago, so the report states, had the sidewalks piled with Argentina turkeys, while inside were several cases of young from tom turkeys from South Africa.

Texas ships more turkeys to New York than any other State, and an estimate of this year's shipments is placed at 750 carloads, while that of last year was 645 carloads. All these facts should be carefully studied by the turkey raisers. Maryland turkeys command the top market prices when shipped in good condition and with favorable weather conditions, and no finer birds are to found anywhere than right here in Kent. A ride through the country will soon convince anyone that local turkeys are in splendid shape. Numbers are seen along the roadsides and in the fields, and reports from the county are that the farmers have had fair success in raising them this year.

Cold-storage birds are sold in the cities by the thousands at different prices, but the turkeys shipped from Maryland are, as a general rule, readily sold at fancy prices. The railroad facilities between here and New York are as good as anywhere, and within a few hours' time the birds are transported from here to New York and readily sold.
