CHESTERTOWN - MAY 4, 1889.

How to Get to Sleep.

A suggestion recently made in regard to methods of inducing or promoting sleepiness, has been put to a practical test by by one reader of the New York Tribune with most gratifying results. The suggestion was that sleep could be wooed successfully by a method of counting in this fashion: 1, 2; 1, 2, 3; 1, 2, 3, 4; 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, etc., up to 25. The experimenter relates his experience in the following language: "My plan is not to count rapidly, but to call off mentally one figure with every exhalation of the breath. A person in good health counts at the rate of about twenty a minute. Before reaching twenty-five in this scale, he must count for about sixteen minutes, as the series mounts up to three hundred and twenty-five counted straight ahead. I have found one decided advantage over counting in regular order. That can be done mechanically, without any mental activity whatever. The other method is not burdensome to the mind, but furnishes just enough material to keep the thoughts off other subjects. I often find myself forgetting the number at which I ought to stop and return to one, whereupon I at once begin again where I left off and proceed in order. I cannot say this scheme will produce sleep when there is no inclination or impulse in that direction, but when there is even a rudimentary impulse I know it will encourage and increase it. I have tried it a good many times since I first read about it in the Tribune and it has only failed me twice. Often on waking I will remember that I was not able to count beyond seven or eight before losing myself in slumber. I have never yet counted up as far as twenty. I think seventeen or eighteen has been my limit. I believe that the author of this suggestion has conferred a boon on people who are troubled with insomnia, although it cannot be expected to work in every case."

SEVENTEEN MILLION DOLLARS IN LITIGATION.—There is an estate located in St. Clair county, Illinois, just across the river from St. Louis, known as the Hannah Hillman estate, and the estimated value of the same as placed by those who claim heirship to it is $17,000,000. There are in the neighborhood of fifty persons who claim to be heirs to the big fortune, many of whom reside in Pennsylvania. The history of the estate in brief is as follows:

Hannah Hillman, a maiden lady aged forty-nine years, died intestate in the year 1822, leaving an estate valued at $3,000,000. It consisted of about 100 acres of ground located in St. Clair county, Ill., opposite St. Louis. The property has been improved from year to year. The ground is now occupied by railroads, machine shops, blocks of valuable property, etc. The heirs claim that the occupants of the estate have no deeds, but hold possession through tax title, and desire quit-claim deeds. They say that the estate never reverted to the rightful heirs through the action of Mrs. Sallie Vandegrift, one of the heirs, who died March 6. At the time of the death of Hannah Hillman the estate passed into the hands of her father, James Hillman, who died three years afterward, when Mrs. Vandegrift, they say, received power of attorney, and from that until her death she successfully defeated all efforts made by the other heirs to have the estate divided.

LADY KORTRIGHT'S GIFT TO A CHURCH.—The committee of the McKemie Presbyterian Memorial Church, of Snow Hill, Md., has been presented with a check for $5,000, to be expended in completing that structure. The gift was from Lady Kortright, of London, England, who is a daughter of the late John Richardson, formerly of Worcester county, and afterwards a prominent business man of Philadelphia, and a widow of Sir Charles Kortright, whom she married when he was acting as British consul at the port of Philadelphia. Lady Kortright also presented $1,000 to the Buckingham Presbyterian Church at Berlin, Md., while on a recent visit to that place.

ALL the questions which disturb society or the happiness of the individual become reduced to a simple issue—how to obtain a fair and honest ballot. It seems simple, but that is the issue, and every man who has the welfare of his country at heart should bend his energy toward that result.

THE colored Republicans of Palatka have a majority over the white Democrats and Republicans. If they knew how to pull together, the African race could go into the field with a ticket composed of colored men entirely and elect it from the Mayor down.

THE English have begun to bet on elections in true American style. At the late Lambeth election odds were offered ranging from five to one to two to one for the Conservative candidate, afterwards declined, and the betting was heavy.

THE largest tax-payer in Germany is Herr Krupp, the Essex gun maker, who pays $32,400 on an income of $1,095,000; and next comes Baron Willie de Rothschild, of Frankfort-on-Main, with an income of $1,025,000, and a tax of $20,700.
