Russell Fowler, a young man living on the "White House" farm, near Kennedyville, had a very narrow escape from being killed Sunday night, on his way home from church. He was run into by Merritt Willis with his auto. Young Fowler was thrown to the top of the carriage, broke his horse's leg and smashed the carriage all to pieces. It hurt his horse so badly that it had to be killed.

The Volunteer Fire Company was called out Sunday evening at nine o'clock to put out a fire in a double house occupied by Harriet Robinson and George Washington on Spring avenue. The fire boys did quick work and returned to their homes thinking they had finished their job. But at 11 p. m. another alarm was sent in and it was found the fire had broken out again. The job was finished this time. The loss will be about $100. The house is owned by Mrs. J. R. Byron. The fire started from an overheated stove in Harriet Robinson's and caught in George Washington's side. George and his wife had been away all day and was not home when the fire was discovered. Their furniture and organ made a sorry spectacle Monday morning sitting out in the yard.

News From County Towns

ROCK HALL

Well the 1924 session of the Legislature has been on top about one month and nothing doing except shoveling in tom fool bills, but "nary" one to shorten the future sessions to 60 days. No indeed. The members claim they are not getting anything from their $5 per day, beyond expenses, yet they want the whole 90 days. There's a reason.

Capt. Kerr's letter in the Sunday Sun makes the Conservation Commission and other howlers about the depletion of the oyster bars sit up and take notice. Kerr speaks the truth when he says there are more oysters and catchers are catching more these late years than ever before. Even old Swan Point bar is coming back to its own. Proper handling on the bars and polution of the waters stopped, oysters will take care of themselves.

Harry Skirven, south of town, has put a substantial fence along the south side of his lawn. Our expert fancy fence builder, Charley Smith, did the job. He will do the north side of the lawn likewise.

Norris Colyer, of Philadelphia, was a Sunday visitor at the home of his parents. Norris doesn't mind a little cold snap like Sunday's in making a four-hour motor trip.

Our well beloved brother, Chas. L. Dodd, while here on Monday in his humane capacity, lamented the piling on his frame such avidopois of flesh. He best be glad to have that surplus of meat till the cold blasts of winter gives way to the gentle zephyrs of spring.

Well, we have with us today his hogship. We don't care to have cloudy weather today, if its clear, we hope when the little hog slips out of his den his eyes will be so full of dirt that will not see his shadow.
