Each day sees truckloads of holly wreaths being brought to Delaware towns for shipment to the various cities. The holly is exceptionally beautiful this season. The berries, which for several seasons have been scarce, are very plentiful. Many country families in Delaware are spending the entire day, in making the wreaths, and some of them are earning $100 a week by their labor.

The Adams Floating Theatre closed its summer and autumn season on Saturday in Elkton, where it will tie up for the winter.
