GOOD-BYE, LOUISE!

The steamer Louise of the Tolchester Company, which has given thousands of Baltimoreans their first boat ride, has been sold.

The increasing population and the demand for automobile transportation across the Chesapeake, has caused the old steamer to give way to a more modern and spacious boat after a service of 43 years.

Capt. Wm. H. Hudson, president of the Tolchester Company, estimates that 12,900,000 men, women and children have been transported to and from Tolchester Beach by the Louise during her service as an excursion boat.

Capt. Hudson, Thursday, announced the purchase by his company of the steamer Express, at New York, which is to take the place of the Louise on the route to Tolchester. The Louise will leave for that port on arrival of the Express.

The Express was built in Baltimore by the Columbia Iron Works, as the Erastus Wyman which, with the Robert Garrett was built for the Baltimore and Ohia Railroad for service between New York and the Staten Island terminals of the railroad. The change in the service caused the vessels to be sold and the Wyman became the Stapleton and later the Express. She has just been rebuilt. The Express has alleyways for vehicles and an upper deck for 2,000 passengers.

WASHINGTON COLLEGE WINS FROM THE STRONG NAVY FIVE!

SIX STRAIGHT VICTORIES FOR OUR COLLEGE—NAVY HAD WON 11 GAMES BEFORE FALLING BEFORE COACH THOS, KIBLER'S STRONG QUINTET—LOYOLA TO-NIGHT AT HOME.

A SPLENDID VICTORY FOR OUR BOYS!

Washington College of Chestertown, with a veteran and clever basket ball five, achieved the athletic honors Wednesday afternoon of stopping the triumphant march of the Naval Academy team, inflicting a defeat on the midshipmen in a game played on the Annapolis court by 26 to 23.

The Eastern Shore collegians fully deserved their victory, as their system of play was perfected to a higher degree, and their chances at the basket more directly the result of that system. Then, too, its fine forwards, Dumschott and Carroll, took advantage of their chances with more certainty.

While the teams each scored nine times from the foul line, the speed of the Washington players was such that the Navy's defense fell to the temptation to do much blocking and holding, giving the Washington forwards the chance to make up their margin by shooting from the line. Dumschott alone had eight of these tries and made good on five of them.

Day was far and away the best worker for the Navy, getting five field goal and another from the line in two chances. Leggett also played well, getting three of the other four from the floor. Craig, the Navys heaviest scorer early in the season, was entirely off, not ringing the ball at all.

The first half ended 13 to 7 in favor of the visitors, but the Navy staged a fine rally in the second half. The Tars gradually worked the score to a ties at 18 points, but Washington was not to be denied, and clever shooting by Dumschott, Carroll and Fiori secured the small margin which was kept to the end.

All the Washington College team played well and showed what the fine coaching of that basket ball artist Tom Kibler can do when it comes to playing in a systematic manner. He had drilled the Washington team to near perfection.

The crack Navy player Craig, who had done so well this year could not make a basket for the reason that McGran stuck to him so close and prevented him from getting any.

Capt. Bankert, Washington's center, also was a tower of strength both at offense and defense.

Eddie Keenan, the "All-Maryland foot ball guard who saw the game says it was the greatest basket ball game ever played in Maryland.

WEDDING NOTES

Betterton M. E. Church was the scene of a brilliant affair Thursday evening when Miss Ethel S. Wilmer, the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ewell L. Wilmer, and Norman A. Crew, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Crew, and one of Betterton's active business men, were wedded in holy matrimony by Rev. E. M. Shockley. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion and was filled with interested friends.

The bride's maids were Mrs. Madge Wilmer Meeks, Mrs. Frances Owens and Miss Myrtle Pinder who wore blue crepe de chine and carried bouquets of sweet peas. Miss Louise Crew was maid of honor and wore pink crepe de chine and carried pink and white carnations. James Wilmer did the honors as best man while the ushers were Harry Meeks, Wm. E. KENT, THE CENTRE OF THE GARDEN OF EDEN

A few weeks ago The Kent News told of the attractions of Chestertown the county seat of Kent. In this article we hope to prove that there is no fairer land on this globe than that named after the English shire from whence came the most of the early settlers, who saw in its smiling landscape a replica of the fairest county of old England.

With an area of 315 square miles it is located in the northern portion of the Eastern Shore, separated on the East from Delaware by a definite line, the Western boundry being formed by the upper portion of the Chesapeake Bay while the Sassafras River separate it from Cecil and the Chester from Queen Anne's. Its southern shores are washed continually by that majestic body of waters called the Chesapeake Bay.

The towns of Millington, Kennedyville, Galena, Still Pond, Fairlee, Worton, Locust Grove, Lynch and other places offer inviting homes and have rare advantages over city life.

Then there are Rock Hall and Cliff City overlooking the Bay and Rivers, where no scarcity of food ever exists of which George Alfred Townsend wrote "From the mightier empire of the solid land, a pilgrim infrequent I seek thy fertile stand, and with a calm affection would wish my grave to be where falls the Chester to the bay, the bay unto the sea."

Then comes Betterton and Tolchester the playgrounds for thousands. Where the bay stretches out in all its splendor and beauty and where the farmer finds a market for much of his produce.

No place can offer better churches nor schools nor filled with able ministers and better teachers. The Christian religion and education go hand in hand in Kent.

We have improved highways from the Delaware line where the famous duPont road begins clear to the Bay and to the Chester river.

Lateral roads are being built to give better facilities to the farmers to reach the markets while all kinds of transportation — railroad, steamboat, ferry, bus, truck, etc.,—are convenient to all.

They will see for themselves our advantages for country homes, industrial location, farms and prove, as only seeing can do, that we have the grandest section of the country to be found anywhere.

Where is there a better place that a resident can arise in the morning, eat buckwheat and sausage for breakfast, take his gun from the rack and kill a dozen canvas back ducks from his back porch for dinner, wade a few yards from his porch and gather bushels of oysters for his evening meal. Or, go to his barn yard and kill a nice fat turkey, guinea or duck for dinner, go to the branch and get a half dozen partridges and rabbits for supper.

Then come to the Land where the roses grow
In the summer's sun and even winter's snow.
Come to the place where the oyster thrives,
Where the terrapin crawls and the wild duck flies;
Where the shad abounds in Chesapeake waters,
The pride of Kent's sons and daughters.
Come to Kent where skies are bluest;
Church ties strongest; hearts are truest.
To the sweetest land I know
The dear Home Land, the Eastern Sho!

Egg Laying By Electricity

Mayor George E. Hicks, of Galena, has an up-to-date hennery. In order to encourage his hens to put in a full day's work in laying eggs and to make them believe that daylight is still with them, he has placed electric lights in his laying houses and at 4.30 in the afternoon an alarm clock goes off and turns the electric light switch which floods his houses with a fine imitation of daylight. The consequence is that the hens think the day is still on and continue to work laying eggs. Mr. Hicks is now getting 83 eggs from 100 white rock hens.

To prove that the electric light experiment is a good one another gentleman in Galena, not far from Mr. Hicks, has 600 hens and is only getting 84 eggs a day. This latter gentleman does not try to fool his hens by the electric light and they go to roost early without laying.

KILLS EIGHT GEESE

J. R. Dierker one day last week while out goosing saw a flock of 8 geese come to him and he killed them all before they got away. Who can beat this?
