GETTING UP NIGHTS

Tells you there is danger ahead. A healthy bladder does not act at night.

J. H. Dorton, W.Graham, Va., says: "I had to get up seven or eight times at night for forty years. I thought it was my age. After taking Lithated Buchu a short time, I am alright." Lithiated Buchu cleanses the bladder as Epsom Salts do the bowels, thereby relieving irritation, driving out foreign matter and neutralizing excessive acids. These are the causes of unnatural action of the bladder at night. Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula) is not a cheap medicine. The tablets cost 2 cents each. Sold at all leading drug stores or Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio.—For sale by M. A. Toulson.

HAND OF DEATH !

James Hayward Ashley, son of the late James D. and Amanda Ashley, and grandson of the late Isaiah and Mary Dudley Ashley, died at his home at Gratitude Sunday, Feb. 15th, 1925, aged 63 years. He leaves a wife, formerly Miss Agnes Jenkins, of Baltimore, and three children, Mrs. Howard Happersett and Miss Frieda Ashley, of Rock Hall and Romaine Ashley, of Virginia. His brother is Benjamin I. Ashley, and there are the following sisters: Mrs. Mary E. Warner, Mrs. Thomas Hogans, Mrs. George Davis and Mrs. John Casey, the latter of Baltimore.

The deceased joined the Methodist Episcopal Church many years ago and was also a member of the Jr. O. U. A. M. Society. Funeral services were held in Rock Hall M. E. Church, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the pastor, Rev. Wm. H. Revelle, officiating.

The bearers were members of the Junior Order, Charles Kendall, Chas. Smith, Charles Porter, Marion R. Coleman, Frank Mariner and John Joiner and their burial rites were added to the services at the grave in Wesley Chapel cemetery. Many beautiful floral tributes were received. Thomas H. Casey, funeral director.

James W. Brown, known to every resident of Newark and vicinity as "Jimmy," died Tuesday night after an illness of several months. Although crippled to such an extent, as the result of an attack of inflammatory rheumatism many years ago, "Jimmy" was able to hobble around from place to place, selling stockings, clothing, novelties, etc. His cheerful disposition and the pleasant word that he had for everyone made "Jimmy" a great favorite and beloved by all who knew him. He was 61 years of age.

He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Mollie Crow, of Newark, and Miss Sue Brown, of Wilmington, and one brother Joseph Brown, of Lancaster, Pa. The deceased visited Chestertown and other towns on the Shore selling his wares and met with success.

Mrs. M. Cecilia Ker, perhaps the oldest woman in Baltimore city, died at her home, 1211 Linden avenue, Baltimore, Thursday of last week at the age of ninety-nine years.

Mrs. Ker, suffered a fall, that resulted in a broken hip, and had been ill since the accident.

She had been a frequent visitor in Centreville, where she was the guest of her granddaughter, Mrs. Thomas J. Keating.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. E. H. Bash, of Baltimore, four grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

John R. Emory, a native of Queen Anne's county, died in Washington, last Friday, following a lingering illness. He was seventy-five years old.

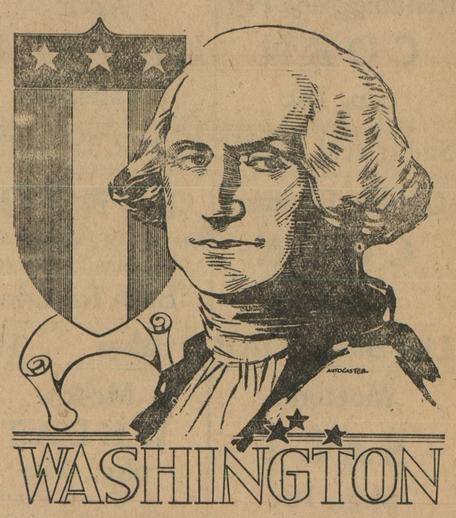
Charles W. Leager, a prominent farmer, died at his home at Price last Sunday afternoon at 5.30, after an illness of a few hours of heart trouble. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Jennie Burgess Leager, daughter of the late William T. Burgess, of Kent county; a daughter, Mrs. C. S. Walls, of Price; and a son, W. Burgess Leager, also of Price; two brothers, Luther R. Leager, of Bridgetown, and Walter Leager, of Price; and two sisters, Mrs. Charles W. Jackson, of Ridgely, and Mrs. J. W. McKnett, of Sudlersville.

William C. McDaniels, for many years known throughout America and England as one of the greatest band leaders of his time, and later proprietor of Hotel Alexander, Centreville, died Tuesday in Pleasantville, New Jersey, after an illness of several years. His wife died several years ago, shortly after he left the local hostelry.

The recently-elected directors of the Chestertown Business Men's Association met and elected the following officers: President, Harry F. Jefferson; vice-president, Dr. H. P. Copeland; secretary, Richard H. Collins, Jr.; assistant secretary, George W. French, and treasurer, J. S. Kreeger.

It was decided to hold the annual banquet on March 12th and the following committee to arrange it was appointed: Dr. Paul Emerson Titsworth, P. Medford Brooks and M. Wilbur Thomas.

It was reported to the directors that members of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce will make another tour of the peninsula this spring, during which they will visit towns on the Eastern Shore; including Chestertown. An invitation will be extended the tourists to be guests of the association while in Chestertown.



Not in the possession of unusual genius, but in the remarkable combination of perseverance and ordinary qualities: exalted idealism——honest courage——broad human kindness——and practical common sense——were George Washington's common assets. Let us always remember Washington, whose birthday we this week observe.

When the little voice of discouragement whispers in your ear——think of Washington. He heard it——it fairly screamed at him. He met reverses——he was forced to retreat at times——encountered failures——but they only inspired him on to greater efforts——and in the end, victory and glory were his.

This bank offers a helping hand to all. Courtesy, co-operation and knowledge are offered you here in your struggle for independence and peace.

If Your Tractor Could Talk—

Compare the operating conditions of your tractor with those of a passenger automobile.

Chug—chug—chugging around a field, stopping and starting, pulling and tugging, it stirs up quantities of dust that the passenger car, skimming over smooth concrete roads, does not.

Your tractor breathes air that is filled with particles of gritty dust. These particles are drawn into the carburetor, and with the fuel are sucked into the cylinders. When the dust particles have mixed with the unburned fuel and oil on the cylinder walls they act exactly as emery would—and with the same result—scored and pitted cylinders and pistons. From the cylinders the grit works its way down into the crank case, and if not drawn off will do more harm.

The practical and economical solution of this problem, vital to the life of the tractor, is the frequent change of oil in the crank case.

The tractor lubricants produced by this company have stood severe tests and laboratory experiments successfully. They have proven their worth.

Authorities on tractor lubrication are justified in their recommendation of Hearn Oil Products — because — THEY ARE AS GOOD AS YOU CAN BUY! Ask for HEARN Tractor Oil.

HORATIUS
At the Bridge

The name of Horatius causes us to remember the story of high ideals, heroism, and definiteness of purpose shown by that famous Roman soldier.

You remember how, single-handed, he defended the bridge over the Tiber against the Etrurian hordes who sought to destroy Rome. And how, after his fellow-countrymen had destroyed the bridge behind him, he leaped into the Tiber, and in full armor safely reached the opposite shore.

If we will stop and think for a moment, we will realize that such heroes may be found among our intimate friends. They are to be found in all walks of life where the indomitable "never-say-die" spirit always wins.

The reward of such effort may be the highest peak of success—or it may be a higher plane of ambition deserving of the greatest respect and affection we so much desire from our fellow-men.

This spirit, shown by this Company since its inception, is being rewarded now by the increasing confidence the public is placing in Hearn Products.
