CHILDREN'S DAY AT CHRIST CHURCH

Children's Day was observed by Christ Methodist Protestant Sunday School, Chestertown, Sunday evening, with a most interesting program. It included the reading of what has been accomplished in the foreign field since the late Dr. F. T. Tagg introduced Children's Day service in the Sunday Schools.

Among the participants aside from the choruses by the school were Harry Hadaway, Harry Bates Nicholson, Jack Newnam, Doris Sappington, Margaret Ann Turner, Billie Russell, Chas. F. Wheatley, Jr. Exercises entitled "God's Free Garden," "A Swarm of Bees" and symbolic exercise entitled "The Builders," were presented. Mrs. Frank Jarrell's impressive solo in the symbol was enjoyed by the large audience.

The collection amounted to $20548. The banner was won by J. Frank Wheatley's class with over $30, Bible Class second and Miss Lucie Frazier's Class a close third. Charles N. Satterfield made the award in an appropriate manner.

The committee on arrangements comprised Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Bowers, Mrs. G. H. Cannan, Mrs. J. Hydie Thompson and Miss Clara Usilton.

An interesting event of the program was the presentation to the church of a large pulpit Bible from the Junior Christian Endeavor Society, Mrs. Ellsworth Newcomb, the leader. T. D. Bowers on behalf of the Juniors presented the gift and it was accepted by Rev. N. O. Gibson on behalf of the church.

The officers of the Missionary Society were President, Walter Allcutt, Secretary, Miss Dorothy Bell Pennington.

UNIQUE ORGANIZATION AT THE COLLEGE

When the basket ball team of Washington College made its Southern trip two years ago, a journey that won for the Eastern Shore quint a succession of notable victories and that was destined to bring athletic fame to the Chestertown school, the Baltimore Sun dubbed this phantom five "The Flying Pentagon."

The enthusiasm with which the exploints of these youthful athletes were greeted by students, alumni and friends of Washington College served to cement the college spirit of all Washington men and to give them a definite point of contact for the display of loyalty and devotion to alma mater.

"The Flying Pentagon" symbolizes the five major virtues of the college; love of tradition, fidelity, loyalty, leadership and education; it also is symbilic of the uplifting qualities of these ideals; virtue, rampant; loyalty with wings; honor, never static, but ever rising to newer and loftier heights—the flying pentagon of college ideals.

The nucleus of the organization is the silver pentagon, a body of nine students, four seniors, three juniors and two sophomores, elected annually by their respective classes. They must all be leaders in college life and they act collectively in an advisory capacity to the faculty, function as a clearing house for information and action in all that pertains to the good of the college and serve generally as a stabilizing influence, not only in college life, but in preserving and augmenting the honor and loyalty of Washington men and women everywhere.

These students, who are privileged to wear the silver pin and insignia of the "Flying Pentagon," are the backbone of the organization. They, in turn, elect annually the gold pentagons, who are friends or alumni of the college who have done outstanding service for it during the year.

One of the feautres of the commencement exercises on Monday was the presentation of the beautiful gold insignia to the five gold pentagons recently elected. They are President Paul E. Titsworth, Dean J. S. William Jones, Athletic Director J. Thomas Kibler, Charles M. Jarman and Elias W. Nuttle.

The silver pentagons are: Charles M. Jarman, president; John C. Bankert, vice-president; Emil Hindenbrand, secretary; T. H. Owen Knight, Luther A. Cooper, Howard T. Rayne, Carl Rankin, Roger Smoot and Frederick W. Dumschott.
