Kent Farmers to Inspect Soil Plots at Almshouse Farm

A field meeting will be held next Friday, June 4th, beginning at 1 p. m. at the Soils Plots on the Alms House Farm.

The purpose of this field meeting is to inspect wheat after soybeans, wheat after wheat, wheat after corn, and wheat after sod; to determine the effect of the preceeding scrops on the growth of wheat and whether or not any bad effects result from having soy beans preceed wheat. The nine plots in each of these sections have different fertilizer treatments, so that we should be able to determine what fertilizer and cropping combination gives the best results under the conditions at the field.

Here is an opportunity to observe this pertinent question now facing all Kent county farmers. These plots are being conducted under the supervision of the State Soils Department in coperation with the Alms House Board of Directors, and Dr. McCall, in charge of that work, will be present.

Director of the Maryland Experiment Station, Dr. H. J. Patterson, State Agronomist, Professor J. E. Metzer, and Extension Agronomy Specialist, Professor F. W. Oldneburg, are expected to be present to go over the plots with Kent farmers.

Kent county farmers cannot afford to miss this field meeting. Farmers from other counties are cordially invited. Two or three hours will give you this practical information, first hand, on a subject of great importance to all Eastern Shore farmers. Say "I will" and bring your neighbor.

The Board of Directors of the Kent County Alms House, as well as J. B. Sutton, deserve much credit for their cooperation with the State Experiment Station in this subject, making it possible for Kent and Eastern Shore Farmerrs to obtain the above information.
