BAY BRIDGE TO BE CONSTRUCTED

The News is able to state with reasonable certainty that the Chesapeake Bay bridge will be built. Mr. Janney, who is the moving spiirt in the enterprise, made this above statement this week.

The War Department has the permit under advisement. They have asked for a change in the plans which would entail an additional expenditure of $800,000. It is this change that is objected to by Mr. Janney. However, if the War Department insists upon their recommendation and will not yield to the plans as submitted, the bridge company will proceed with the construction as soon as the order is received.

CATTLE SUIT IS DISMISSED

The application by John H. Clendaniel, of Kent county, for a writ of mandamus against the State Board of Agriculture of Maryland was refused Wednesday by Judge Eli Frank, in an opinion filed in the Superior Court. The petition was dismissed

The petition asked that the defendant be required to appoint an independent appraiser to act in conjunction with an appraiser already appointed by Mr. Clendaniel in making an appraisement of thirty-one head of cattle belonging to him and which had been condemned for being infected with tuberculosis.

According to the petition, the petitioner's herd was tested on March 14 and was condemned on March 17. On the latter date he notified the board that he had appointed an appraiser to act on his behalf in conjunction with an appraiser named by the board, but that the board had refused to make such nomination.

The special defense of the board was that while the board had quarantined the cattle of the petitioner as being infected with tuberculosis, it had not yet deemed it necessary to cause the cattle to be slaughtered, and therefore the board was not under any duty to have the cattle appraised or to make any payment for them.

"This plan of operation has worked most satisfactorily to the State, has greatly reduced the prevalence of bovine tuberculosis and has enabled the board in recent years to carry on its important work within the amounts of money that the General Assembly has been willing to appropriate for this purpose. Prior to the exclusive use of this plan the board had greatly exceeded its appropriation and had incurred a large deficit."

"Without reviewing in detail the voluminous evidence on this point," the opinion states, "it conclusively appears that, unless carefully handled, the entire State appropriation to the Board of Agriculture would be greatly inadequate for its purpose. If but a small proportion of the tuberculosis cattle in the State were to be ordered to be slaughtered, the funds available to pay indemnities to owners under the provisions of the law would enable but a very small portion of the owners to be paid.

"The board, from very financial necessity, would be justified in using quarantine only, without any indemnity, where that is safe and ordering killing only where that is necessary and the owner enters into the agreement for limited indemnity under the Federal agreement.

"I am not unmidnful of the hardship imposed upon the petitioner by the quarantining of his cattle," the judge also stated in the opinion, "but he is being treated in the same way as every other cattle owner in the same situation is now being treated. I am unable to find that the State Board of Agriculture has abused the discretion reposed in it by law."

Clarence W. Perkins and Eben F. Perkins were attorneys for the petitioner, and Philip B. Perlman and John Hubner Rice, Assistant Attorney-General for the State Board.

At the regular weekly meeting of the Chestertown Rotary Club Monday evening Dr. N. O. Gibson spoke to the club on the movement being launched by the young people of the church world for a world-wide peace.

Lieut. Hugh Young and Charles Harris were other guests at the meeting.

The auditorium could not hold the crowd who tried to attend the 146th Commencement exercises on Monday morning. Upon two young lady graduates from Vineland, N. J., Misses Diantha Roe and Elizabeth Roe, sisters, was conferred the honor of delivering the salutatory and valedictory addresses. The father of the young ladies, Rev. Robert E. Roe, rector of Trinity Church, Vineland, N. J., delivered the invocation, and Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, delivered the address to the largest class of graduates in the history of the college, numbering 31 young men and women. Declaring that the responsibility for the future of the nation for the next thirty years depends upon the college graduates of today. Daniel Willard advised the graduates that it was their duty to vote.

"Speaking as an employer," Mr. Willard, said, "I would much prefer to have in our business a young man with a well-trained mind or intellect and with a lesser amount of information or learning than one with more learning but with a less thoroughly trained mind. The latter might forget what he had learned while the former, if he did forget, would know how and where to find and use what he needed or desired."

Mr. Willard further told graduates that the development of power is the most desirable fruit of a college education and that their ability to grapple with new and strange problems should be the test of the properly trained mind, whether in or out of college.

"If your college education does not enable you to make more effective use of all your facilities than you probably would have made without it and if it does not enable you to get a keener, broader and more satisfying intellectual enjoyment out of life than you probably would have obtained without it, then your college education, from my point of view, has been a failure. A college education finds its best expression in human values and not in the mere memorizing of words and dates, however desirable that also may be."

President Titsworth conferred the following degrees and awarded prizes:

WASHINGTON COLLEGE
(The Campus Revisited)
Harry Pringle Ford

Serenely, they crown the fair hillside,—
Old Middle, Old East and Old West;
A "fostering mother," enfolding
Her children beloved to her breast.
Below, the old town still is dreaming,
The Chester still yearns for the sea;
Ghost-haunted, the campus is calling,
The trees whisper welcomes to me.
I stand alone in the twilight,—
Old memories mingling with tears,
As I yearn for the smiling faces,
Long hid 'neath the dust of the years.
In dreams, I feel the warm hand-claps,
That drew us together of yore!
In dreams, hear again the brave voices
That shall greet us on earth no more!
They now answer roll-calls in heaven,
While here, still a truant, I rove;
The Master Himself is their Teacher,
In the Graduate School above.

Announcement was also made by President Paul E. Titsworth than Dean J. S. Wm. Jones, of the college, received the honorary degree of doctor of letters from Franklin and Marshall College Monday and it was for this reason Dr. Jones was absent from Commencement for the first time in 36 years.

Monday afternoon a reception to Mr. Willard was held in the gymnasium, attended by the graduates, alumni and friends of the college. A pleasant surprise was given the guests by the presentation to all of George Washington and wife personated by Wm. G. Smyth and wife. Witnesses were customed in colonial dresses and served a fine menu.

Saturday evening the alumni banquet was held with Senator S. Scott Beck as chairman. Music was furnished by the college orchestra and Caterer King engaged the ladies of the Triangle Club to serve the excellent menu.

Officers for the coming academic year were chosen by the alumni association as follows: President, W. Lester Baldwin, Baltimore; vice-president, Dr. Emmitt M. Hitch, Wilmington; secretary-treasurer, Dean J. S. Wm. Jones. Members of the executive committee who will serve with the officers were elected as follows: Mrs. Pearl Griffin Stewart, Gambrill, Md., and Marion deK. Smith, Chestertown.

At the annual alumni dinner, addresses were made by the following class representatives: J. Stanley Long, 1928; Edward A. McGinnis, Philadelphia, 1918; W. Lester Baldwin, Baltimore, 1913; W. R. Huey, Chestertown, 1908; the Rev. Dr. A. S. Walls, Swarthmore, Pa., 1903, and Marion deK. Smith, Chestertown, 1898. Addresses were also made by Dr. Harry V. Holloway, state school superintendent of Delaware; Harry Pringle Ford, Philadelphia; Dr. P. E. Titsworth and Senator S. Scott Beck.

Announcement was made that $5,500 has been raised by the alumni toward the library fund being collected in honor of Dr. James Roy Micuo, professor emeritus of Latin and former vice-president of the college. The sum of $6000 will be raised for this purpose, books in the Micou alcove to be selected by Dr. Micou.
