The rose gardens of Chestertown are in their glory. Miss Fannie Decorse's yard on High street, the Misses Knight on Queen street had some rare buds, as has also scores of others.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Within the next few days the Board of County Commissioners of Kent County will be confronted by the task of striking the levy of expenses for another year, and fixing the county tax rate. It may be predicted with absolute certainty that the county tax rate will not be reduced very much if any. Owing to the increased demand of cshools, roads and other interests. Fortunately Kent county's financial condition, with respect to the county government, is in admirable shape. Our bonded indebtedness is being provided for in a business-like way, and in every branch of the county government conditions are most encouraging. It is important, of course, that county improvements be continued in a practical, sensible manner. But when this is assured, the rate should be cut as low as sound business will permit. Taxes are a heavy burden throughout every community in America today, and the County Commissioners will doubtless make every effort to keep the rate as low as is consistent with the county's policy of constructive, practical advancement.

We have written a great deal about Chestertown's possibilities; its natural advantages, etc., but one thing we have failed to mention before, and a very important thing it is too, and that is civic pride.

Civic pride is something everyone should have and develop to the fullest extent. Unless we, ourselves, think Chestertown is the very best place in the United States in which to live and do business, how can we sincerely advocate a stranger locating here?

Let us stop apologizing for our town and begin praising it. Let us think and talk about it's good points rather than it's bad ones. Let us inculcate in our own minds the idea of our city's beauty, advantageous location, college, good schools, churches, and all the things that make it a good place in which to live, so we can present a united front to anyone making inquiries about Chestertown.

If every one of us will boost and boost and then boost some more it will be impossible for Chestertown to stand still.

Larro
GROWING MASH

Makes Husky, Healthy Egg Producers

If you've never raised pullets the Larro way, you have a surprise awaiting you. Feed Larro Growing Mash to your six-weeks-old chicks and growing pullets and you'll see the kind of growth, development and egg-laying capacity that only Larro quality can produce in a pullet. It's different from ordinary rations. You'll see that when you check up the bigger profit over feed cost.
