THRIFT, THE NEW IDEA

One of the new items in the instruction given to young people is thrift. It figures in many school programs, and is much dwelt upon in families. Banks and business houses carry on a constant propaganda to this effect, which is having its effect. At the same time that this in given something should be added on the habit of borrowing money, which as carried on by many people is a harmful vice. It takes away their self-respect and destroys their chances for advancement. In business, loans based on adequate finances are legitimate, and the capital of most business concerns is partly made up of borrowed money, which is an essential elemetn of the financial structure of the country. The objectionable thing is the habit of borrowing small sums for personal uses which should save by thrift.

There are many thousands of people who have lost out in their neighbornoods because they have acquired the habit of borrowing small sums from their friends to tide them over some little difficulty. Some of these do not seem to feel the obligation of such debts, and it does no good to dun them. They will never pay. When people acquire that habit the word is quietly passed around to look out never to lend them anytihng.

Of course there are cases of misfortune, where people have to borrow of their friends, and where their friends are glad to lend to them, regarding it as probably a gift. This is different from the many people who borrow as the result of too free-spending, and because they are trying to conform to a scale of experience that is above their means. Young people should be warned against this practice, which is one of the worst habits they can acquire.

Lateness of the local crop and southern competition have combined to undermine prices for the early Delaware tomatoes. Buyers on Monday bid from $2.50 to $3.25 a crate. These prices compare with those of from $5 to $6 a crate paid a year ago. Prospects are very promising for a late crop of tomatoes used in the can houses. A few canneries have contracted for a good supply, but the most of the canning firms have decided to await the prices offered by the open market. The farmers, on the other hand, decided to have only small patches in many instances and claim they will be prepared to supply either the canneries or the open market. Should there be a glut in the early tomato market, some of the canneries will open to pack the surplus product.

The Rev. Dr. G. W. Hadaway, for twenty-six years pastor of Starr M. P. Church, Baltimore, has been elected secretary of the Board of Missions of the M. P. Church. This board consolidates the men and women's home and foreign work of the denomination. Dr. Haddaway will resign his pastorate at the Maryland Annual Conference in September. He succeeds the Rev. Dr. W. S. Rosenberger, of Columbus, Ohio, who was elected at the last general conference to that position, but resigned a month ago. This indicates a number of pastoral changes at the next conference.

Finals For St. James Vacation School

After four weeks of study of the lives, living conditions, and works of the important bible characters, and the proper habits of Christian living, as well in the working out of handwork propositions, the boys and girls of the St. James Daily Vacation Bible Schools will close their sessions on Friday next, July 27th. The final program will be the presentation of certificates to those who have been in regular attendance, the presentation of a program characteristic of the work of the schools, and an exhibit of the products of their handiwork. This final exercise will take place in the auditorium of the St. James Methodist Protestant Church on Friday evening at 8 p. m. All friends of the schools, and of the church are invited to be present.
