CHURCHWORKERS CONTINUE ACTIVE

Teachers and Church workers on the peninsula are very fortunate in having the opportunity for study and training in their work made possible by the Standard Training Schools put on by the Wilmington Conference in cooperation with the local churches. Each year the Conference conducts twelve of these schools in various parts of the peninsula for Sunday school and church leaders. Each school consists of six two-hour class periods. The interest of the Sudlersville Group of Churches in these schools is shown by the registration in the two schools which opened this week. Miss Elizabeth Bottomley, of Millington, and Mrs. W. W. Rambo and The Rev. Claude Clark, of Sudlersville, attended the school at Elkton which opened Monday evening. Mrs. E. P. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Church and Miss Elizabeth Bottomley, all of Millington, attended the school at Middletown which opened Tuesday evening. The Chestertown school to which many from this group of churches go each year, opens November 5th.

Millington Charge

Four of the organizations of the Millington Church met at the home of Mrs. C. S. Churcn Friday to discuss ways of raising money to reach their pledge to the educational work of the church. Instead of four individual drives, they voted all unite in one activity. The cooperating society, The Women's Foreign Missionary Society, The Ladies' Aid and the Adult Bible Class.

Crumpton Charge

The District Meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society held an all day session at Crumpton Church on Friday. The morning session was devoted to business. At noon the ladies of Crumpton served luncheon to over one hundred guests at the hotel. In the afternoon Miss Van Dyne, a returned missionary from Africa, addressed the meeting. Election and installation of officers was also held. The society voted to send its president, Mrs. Harvey Moore, of Betterton, to the sixtieth anniversary meeting of the society to be held in Columbus, Ohio, the last of October.

"How provoking that baby should fall asleep just when we want to take his picture. What shall we do?"

"Put him in the dark room for a few minutes," suggested the father; "he'll think it's bedtime and there's no danger of his sleeping then."

Father—Why, son, it's composed of applesauce and plums.

AMBITION REALIZED

The Baltimore Evening News on Monday contained an interesting sketch with a picture of the B. S. Ford. It said:

"Hope borne in his heart when a boy will soon be realized by Capt. George Curlett, friends revealed today.

When a lad of eight, George's greatest ambition was to wear a blue uniform and be an officer on the B. S. Ford, a steamer then owned by the old Maryland, Delaware and Virginia Railway Company, afterwards absorbed by the Pennsylvania Railroad. His uncle, George Tarbutton, was master of the vessel.

Today Captain Curlett is owner of the famous old ship. He is having it reconditioned for service by the Charles J. Jording Company.

Each morning, when a youth, Captain Curlett watched the steamer swing around the bend and head for Booker's wharf on the Chester river. He was always on hand to greet his uncle as he stepped from the ship.

"I wanted to year a blue uniform and be an officer on my uncle's vessel." Captain Curlett confided. "That was my greatest ambition. Although many years have passed since then, that ambition never burned out."

Resolutions Of Respect

Whereas, God's Will, not our be done. He has called from our midst our esteemed friend and worker in the church, Mrs. Morgan Bennett.

Resolved, That as a member of the church Mrs. Bennett was ever ready with a helping hand and willing heart to do what ever she could.

Resolved, That we extend to the family and bereaved husband, Mr. Morgan Bennett, our Christian love and earnest prayer.

Resolved, That these resolutions be placed upon the minutes of the Ladies' Aid and published in the county papers.

QUEEN ANNE'S TURKEYS

Mrs. E. D. Prince, residing with her father, Luther Leager, of near Bridgetown, is one of the largest producers of pure-bred turkeys in that section of Queen Anne's county. She now has 625 turkeys about ready for market, some weighing as high as 22 ponuds. The stock is Purebred Bronze. To hatch this large amount of stock incubators were used, and 18 turkey hens were necessary to successfully rear the young.

The turkeys are carefully guarded every day and night, being penned in a five-acre tract within a few yards from the house. To feed the birds at this season of the year 600 pounds of butter milk is consumed every three days, besides large quantities of corn, wheat and oats.

If the farmer is the backbone of the nation, as we are told, it's about time Uncle Sam was getting a few spinal adjustments.
