SUN OIL CO.

"I have often wondered if the modern American motorists has ever realized just how lucky he is," says Mr. Robert J. Weir, local branch manager of the Sun Oil Company.

"While business ethics have undergone a great change in the last quarter century," continued Mr. Weir, "we still find many industries limiting the quality of their products by what they expect the public will be willing to pay.

"But in the automobile world," went on Mr. Weir, "this condition has entirely vanished and instead we find manufacturers deliberately fighting to give the public the most for their money. As an example, take our own company and its product—Blue Sunoco Motor Fuel. Ever since the early days of the automobile, we have realized that our future depended upon the quality of our product.

"Consequently," explained Mr. Weir, "If you had time enough today to sit down and write out the specifications of a perfect motor fuel you would really write the specifications of Blue Sunoco. First, you would probably put down 'quick starting,' then you would write 'extra power' and after that you would follow with 'high knockless rating,' 'pure undoped gasoline' and 'most per dollar.' And here in other words is Blue Sunoco!

"Perhaps," concluded Mr. Weir with a smile, "cautious buyers would even add 'all at the price of regular gas'—and even here Blue Sunoco would match them, for while it is certainly a premium motor fuel it has always sold at the regular gas price."

KENNEDYVILLE M. P. CHURCH

J. McLain Brown, Pastor

Evangelistic services will be held in the above church beginning Oct. 20th and closing November 3rd. The pastor will be assisted by the well known evangelist, John Moses Baker, of Baltimore. MAN INSTANTLY KILLED

Lewis Dukes, 41, an inspector for the State Roads Commission, was instantly killed in an automobile accident on the State road between Millington and Sudlersville Friday afternoon. A car driven by Dukes crashed head-on into an automobile driven by Rigby Stafford, of Sudlersville, when they met on a curve A young boy, John Walker Stant, who was riding with Dukes, was badly hurt, but Stafford escaped serious injury.

After a Sudlersville physician had pronounced Dukes dead, Stafford took the body to Dukes' home. Dukes was a son of former Sheriff Dukes, of Caroline county, and a cousin to the Dukes in this county. Both cars were badly damaged in the collision.

The annual standard training school for Sunday School teachers and church school workers in this district will be held in the local church for five successive Tuesday nights and one Friday night, beginning November 5. It will be the fifth yearly school and the local clergyman will teach a course. The Rev. Claude W. Clark, pastor of Calvary Church, Sudlersville, will be the dean and Clarence Newcomb of this town will be the librarian. The Rev. W. L. Hess, of Galena, is promotion chairman. The school will be interdenominational in character.
