DEMOCRATIC SLOGAN:

One thousand majority, or better in Kent County for Ritchie and the whole Democratic ticket on November Fourth.

DESERVES YOUR SUPPORT

At the head of this column we place the names of every candidate on the Democratic ticket and ask that you support them. It is a splendid ticket and deserves the support of the people. Some of them were unopposed in the primaries for the reason that they had such general support that no one had the nerve to run against them.

It is the duty and should be the pleasure of all affiliated Democrats to vote for the nominees of the Democratic party. What is the use of a primary if we do not abide by it? The Damocratic party has put up good men for office. Several of them are candidates for the office they already fill. The Democracy approved their candidacy at the primary election, and, so far as we know, the Democrats who opposed the successful candidates are living up to the moral obligation they assume in entering a primary and abide by the decision of the Democratic primary. In other words, they promised by so entering if defeated they would give their loyal support to the Democratic ticket.

We have heard all kinds of rumors of faithlessuess, but we hear such reports are false. We take it for granted that every man who claims to be a Democrat will sink his personal dislike to any one candidate, and will remember that the defeat of any candidate on the Democratic ticket is not a personal matter, but will go out as a Democratic party defeat.

Vote the Democratic Ticket!

COOLIDGE VS. RITCHIE

It is not often a Republican endorses a Democrat but such is the case. In Ex-President Coolidge's weekly article last week he wrote that citizens should not vote for any man simply because he was a good fellow. That because a man slaps you on the back, smiles and shakes hands with you he is the best man for the office. "Efficiency," said he, "should be the first consideration." This is the platform on which Gov. Ritchie is standing and on which his friends claim he is deserving support. Why not make it unanimous?

HERE IS HOW TO VOTE

DEMOCRATIC | X

It is becoming more and more difficult for the workingman out of work to believe the old G. O. P. fairly tales that the Republican party is the party of prosperity.

It is to those who are humble, poor in spirit, whether or not they be rich in worldy goods, that the Christ is a friend.—The Christian Science Monitor.

When the tongue of slander stings you, let this be thy comfort—they are not the worst fruits on which the wasps alight.—Burger.

ONLY 299 WHITE REPUBLICANS IN KENT COUNTY

The result of this year's registration shows that the Republican party of Kent county is composed of 2270 colored and 299 white Republicans. The Democratic party in Kent is composed of 4689 white women and men. This is the reason why we say every Democrat should vote the Democratic ticket from top to bottom. We cannot afford to do otherwise.

MAJ. LANE SEEKS ATTORNEY GEN'L.

William Preston Lane, Jr., attorney and publisher, and a native of Washington county, Thursday, received and formally accepted the nomination for Attorney-General on the Democratic ticket.

Mr. Lane was named by a unanimous vote of the Democratic State Central Committee for Maryland, meeting at the Royal Arcanum to fill the vacancy created by the death last Sunday of Thomas H. Robinson, the incumbent and candidate for reelection.

In accepting the nomination Mr. Lane, who is 38 years old, told the members of the central committee that only two weeks remain before the election, and his opponent has been campaigning for months.

"Because of this circumstance," he said, "I must rely more completely upon the efforts you will make for me in your legislative districts and counties, and I do so with confidence.

"I sincerely regret the circumstances that have made this meeting necessary and made it necessary for you to select me or anyone else to take Mr. Robinson's place. He had my admiration, respect and affection, and with you I am grieved at his loss.

"With gratitude, I accept the trust you have placed in me."

THOS. H. ROBINSON DIES SUDDENLY

Thomas H. Robinson, Attorney-General of Maryland since December, 1923, and Democratic candidate for reelection, died suddenly at 6.30 A.M. Sunday after a short attack seven hours previously.

Although Mr. Robinson complained he was not feeling well for several days and had been absent from campaign meetings, his death shocked not only political circles generally but also his running mates. Governor Ritchie expressed himself as completely unnerved by the passing of his colleague.

Born seventy years ago, Mr. Robinson had been a figure in Democratic politics in Maryland for the last forty years. He first served in the State Senate in 1892. In more recent years he always attended Democratic national conventions as a delegate and at these meetings had become well known to party leaders in other States.

Mr. Robinson since 1890 had been the Democratic leader of Harford county, where he lived and practiced law. He was one of the chief lieutenants of the late John Walter Smith when he was the dominant factor in Maryland Democracy. Mr. Robinson played an important part in the nomination by the Democrats of both Isador Rayner for the United States Senate and of Governor Ritchie for his second term in 1923.

Creates Vacancy On Ticket

The death of Mr. Robinson has created a complicated situation for the Democratic party in this campaign. The vacancy on the State-wide ticket must be filled by the State Central Committee. This group will not be called to meet, however, until after Mr. Robinson's funeral.

Already a half dozen names of prominent Democrats from all parts of Maryland have been put forward for the Attorney-General nomination. These included W. Preston Lane, Jr., of Hagerstown; W. Clinton McSherry of Frederick, son of the late Chief Judge James McSherry; Representative Steven W. Gambrill, of Laurel; Willis Jones, of Baltimore, and now Assistant Attorney-General; Randolph Barton, Jr., of Baltimore county, and former president of the Baltimore Bar Association, and Herbert R. O'Connor, State's Attorney of Baltimore.

Some of these candidates may not want the nomination. For instance, Mr. Gambrill is a candidate to succeed himself in Congress and Mr. O'Connor is a candidate for reelection as State's Attorney. Mr. Lane earlier this year rejected offers of support for the Democratic nomination for Congress from the Western Maryland district.

The only way to destroy your enemy is to make him your friend.

T. ALAN GOLDSBOROUGH

The NEWS commends with pleasure the candidacy of T. Alan Goldsborough as the Democratic candidate for Congress. He is one of the ablest lawyers in this State. He has been a great student of jurisprudence, and long before he was elected to Congress, or probably ever dreamed of that honor, he was laying a foundation in that learning of the constitutional law and the political hisory of our country that is always a necessary accomplishment of men who arise to prominence in the affairs of our nation and to that degree of usefulness and ability that spells true statesmanship.

It is such attributes of mind and character that irresistibly commands the admiration and support of one's fellow men. His record speaks highly of him.

In 1920 he was nominated first for Congress. In that disastrous year for the Democratic party he alone in this whole United States was elected to Congress over a Republican opponent who was already seated in Congress; that is, he was the only man who that year defeated a Republican who was already in Congress, and that by nearly 3,000 majority.

In the next election he won by over 5,000 majority, and in his third election by nearly 7,000 majority, and two years ago, when Hoover swept the Shore, Mr. Goldsborough was reelected. The failure to re-elect Mr. Goldsborough would be a serous step backward, regardless of political affiliations.

Now that the Eastern Shore is looking forward to an era of advancing prosperity and development, and when the eyes of the nation are being turned upon us as never before, and the prospect for our future is brightest and best, surely our people will want to have in high places our best men—men of the greatest talents and finest ability. That the Eastern Shore will not be unmindful of its serous duty and will elect T. Alan Goldsborough is our candid belief and earnest hope.

Place an (X) in the box after the word DEMOCRATIC wherever it occurs on the ballot and you are sure to vote right.

Democrats should ponder well the fact that throughout this campaign Republicans have found nothing to condemn in the record or qualifications of any Democrat on the ticket. This certainly means that Democratic candidates are the equals, at least, in every way of their Republican opponents. Why then should Democrats vote against their candidates when even the enemy admits, by its silence, that the Democratic candidates stand clean.

Joshua Marvel, one of Delaware's best citizens, died suddenly at his home near Wilmington Saturday morning, aged 64. He was President of the American Bar Association and a strong contender for the Democratic nomination of United States Senator from Delaware.

Following speeches by President Hoover and Vice President Curtis in Ohio, the Cleveland News, a Republican newspaper controlled by descendants of the late Mark Hanna came out for the Democratic candidate for United States Senator from that State.

The politicians and candidates are attending the public suppers and are now on the home stretch. If some of them don't die of overeating it will be wonderful.

RITCHIE AND THE PUBLIC SCHOOL SYSTEM

Probably the most outstanding and far reaching achievement of the three adminstrations in which Governor Ritchie has served the people of Maryland is to be found in the reconstruction and upbuilding of the State's Public School System. Within the short space of ten year's, Maryland has been brought from a position among the most backward states to one the best.

Something of what has been accomplished in this field for the people of Maryland may be epitomized in the words of the Superintendent of Public Schools of North Carolina, who, after visiting Maryland to study its public schools, sent back the following message:

"Taken all together, you have a teaching situation which is surpassed by none, so far as my experience goes,--Instruction of the kind that will make of a child so far as instruction can, a clear thinking, self-reliant capable person seemed to be the order of the day, everywhere I went. Your long school term, your system of supervision, and the specific training of the teachers for their particular tasks have all doubtless contributed to this great result."

Professor Fletcher Harper Swift, of the University of California, says that Maryland has perhaps "the most farreaching and scientific method of equalizing revenues of any state in the union." A school official in Nova Scotia, studying the work of supervision in the Maryland counties, explained that she did so because it had been declared "that the best rural school supervision in the United States is to be found in Maryland."

The story behind the amazing progress of Maryland's public school program is a story of men and women of vision, of carefully worked out plans and painstaking effort in putting those plans into effect. It was Governor Ritchie who, in 1920, decided that the big work of his career should be the development of public schools, and it was he who took the lead in the original plan to reorganize and build up in the State a system of public education that would make available to Maryland people the highest type of public instruction.

Governor Ritchie's first effort was to find the man. He instructed a committee to canvass virtually the entire country to get an educator to reorganize the State's program. It was a result of this effort that Dr. Albert S. Cook became head of the State's Public School System and to him, with Governor Ritchie's guarantee of support, was entrusted the then stupendous task of reorganizing and developing education for the children of the State.

What Dr. Cook has accomplished is well known but no man recognizes better than he the value of the aid given him by the Governor. Of this aid Dr. Cook says:

'Without Governor Ritchie's recognition in 1920 of the necessity for vastly improving the public school system, without his vision of the needs of the State in this field and, after that, without his active support, it would have been impossible to give Maryland the highly efficient system it now has."

Governor Ritchie has, throughout his whole public career cheerfully given to heads of the various departments of the state government full credit for their accomplishments. He has kept in the background his own part in many fine achievements but actually it has been the Governor's keen interest and active support that have enabled the administrative heads to make such remarkable strides.

This is true in the public school system as in other branches of the State Government. It also is just as true that probably there is no other branch of the State's work in which the Governor has taken a keener interest, in which he had a greater desire to help, and in which his active support has been more pronounced.

In a recent address in Baltimore, Governor Ritchie said that, while he receives at times almost undue credit for some of the material achievements of his administration, in his own heart he finds greatest satisfaction and takes greatest pride in those things that have done most to advance the spiritual side of life. No doubt he was thinking then, among other things of the part he has played in giving the children of Maryland, now and through the coming years, opportunities to acquire that knowledge which should enable them to live fuller and more contented lives.

Since the initial action in 1920 which required real courage as well as vision, there have been three outstanding achievements in Maryland's System of public education. One, and probably the most important, was the equalization of educational opportunities throughout the State. Another was the inauguration of a system of supervision of teaching which has been declared to be the best in the United States. The other was the establishment by the Legislature of 1927 of a State-wide teacher's retirement system.

Between the stock market and the political campaign, this is a trying year on the average citizens' nerves.
