How mad it is to hope for contentment to our infinite soul from the gifts of this extremely finite world. —Burns.

Prayer is not conquering God's reluctance, but taking hold of God's willingness.—Phillips Brooks.

INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC AFFAIRS

The Third Eastern Shore Institute of Public Affairs will be held at Washington College on Saturday, May 10th. The session will open at 10.30, the morning being devoted to a discussion of a domestic problem and the afternoon to an international problem.

This annual one-day institute is a joint enterprise of the Maryland League of Women Voters and the Young Voters League of Washington College. The Director of the Maryland League, Miss Lavinia Engle, the President of the College Young Voters League, Miss Clara Meredith, Dr. Esther Dole, Prof. of Hiseory, Miss Genevieve Boland, Dean of Women and Dr. William R. Howell, Prof. of Political Economy, all of Washington College, are the committe in charge of the program for this year.

The two previous sessions of the Institute have been attended by a representative group from the Eastern Shore. In 1929 every county on the Shore was represented and a number of delegates came from Harford county and from Baltimore city. This year a special invitation is being extended to the students at the University of Delaware and it is expected that a number of them will be present. Club women, men in public life, business men and a group of senior students from the High Schools of the Shore have made up the roll of those attending. The addresses are made by men and women of outstanding reputation and followed by a general discussion from the floor.

Regional Conferences for the discussion of public affairs have become an accepted factor in the intellectual life of the United States and in some instances have grown to international importance. The Eastern Shore Institute is as yet a small effort, but its policy has been well directed and the interest in its development has grown steadily. Who can tell but that the next few years will see it grow to an importance measured by a wider range than the counties of the Shore.

Those who desire a complete program of the sessions may secure it by writing to Washington College or to the office of the League of Women Voters.

THE BILL OR RIGHTS

Maryland will join with other states on May first in the nation-wide celebration of Child Health Day. The purpose of the observance is to focus the attention of every grown-up on the right of every child in the country to health and happiness and to protection from disease and harmful conditions, not only on May Day but every day and all the year round.

Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., Chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health is Chairman of the Maryland Child Health Day Committee which is composed of representatives of all organizations interested in the health and welfare of the children of the State. "There are two phases of the celebration of Child Health Day," Dr. Knox said, "the children's observance of the day, which is care free and is associated as it always has been with the spring festival and with appropriate health games and exercises and the more serious observance by grown-ups on whom the responsibility fall for securing the rights of children to grownth, development and opportunity.

"The ideal to be striven for was outlined by President Hoover in the Children's Bill of Rights in connection with the first celebration of child Health Day, several years ago. What the Bill of Rights seeks to realize for every child may be summarized as follows:

"To be born well, with a sound mind in a sound body,

"To be adequately nourished and cared for,

"To be brought up in proper surroundings,

"To have regular and adequate medical supervision,

"To be trained physically, mentally and spiritually so that the best that is within the child may have full opportunity for development and expression.

"In connection with the observance of Child Health Day this year, every parent and every community are asked to let the day serve as a starting point for all-the-year-round cooperation for child health and protection.

Germany's new economics minister, Robert Schmidt, should put some harmony in the cabinet, as he is a piano maker by trade.

We Moderns

A governess for a wealthy family died suddenly the other day and the mother couldn't identify her own children.

Offers Blood To Miss Stewart

While Miss Anne Rothwell Stewart, founder and first president of the Women's Eastern Shore Society, lay ill with anemia at her home in Baltimore, Mrs. Harry C. Houck, of Guilford, a member of the society, Monday night offered her blood if a fourth transfusion were found necessary.

The offer was made on an appeal for volunteers at the annual meeting of the society at the Women's City Club, Mrs. Houck asking that her name head the list.

Before other offers could be made, the wife of a physician who was present at the meeting said it was seldom that women's blood could be taken for transfusion, nearly always young men being selected.

She offered the suggestion that in order to prevent delay money be appropriated for the transfusion, the amount to be decided by the executive board. The club decided to adopt the plan.

The society is composed entirely of natives of the Eastern Shore or descendants of natives born to the second generation. There are approximately 350 members.

It was organized four years ago and Miss Stewart served two years. She was succeeded by Mrs. Lowe and the third president, Mrs. Benjamin W. Woolford, was elected last night.

For a number of years Miss Stewart has been a teacher of expression in Baltimore. She is a native of Kent and well-known here.

Since her illness members of the family of Miss Stewart have volunteered their blood. For two transfusions, the offer of a newphew, D. B. Stewart, Jr., was accepted. For the first the blood of John Slaughter, a friend of the family from Caroline county, was accepted.

Other officers elected were: Mrs. Lewis M. Milbourne, formerly of Somerset county, vice-president; Mrs. Eugene W. Dodson, treasurer; Mrs. F. Leif Eareckson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Melvin W. Stewart, recording secretary; Mrs. John W. Lowe, chaplain, and Mrs. Caleb Winslow, historian.

Mr. Edison is the only man who remains famous after his records have been broken.

There is nothing so kingly as kindness and nothing so real as Truth.—Alice Carey.

Years ago, the business slogan in most towns were, "Every man for himself, and the devil take the hindmost." Or as they used to put it in the mining camps. "Every man for himself, and hold your cards close to your belly." The result of that cutthroat policy was that the business men spent their time and energy scrapping with each other. The effort that should have gone into making business better for everybody, was all wasted. Today, we have in wide awake communities, a sentiment among the business men that the best results are obtained where all work harmoniously for the common good. A town where that sentiment prevails will go far ahead of one which runs on the old lines of everyone for himself. While business men have generally been converted to this idea, there remains considerable of the obselete "Everyone for himself" conception among the public generally. A good many people do not realize that their prosperity and welfare depend to a large measure on the prosperity and welware of the community as a whole. One manifestation of the eveyone for himself idea, is shown by the people who buy much of their supplies away from home. It is difficult to see how they gain anything even temporiarily by this practice. And in the long run this policy is harmful to them, since they impoverish their home town by so doing. And when they impoverish their home town, they lessen its ability to give them satisfactory employment, good business opportunities, and an adequate share of those advantages that are necessary to make residence in any town desirable. If we are to have a prosperous community in which it will be profitable for people to live, the people must stand by each other. Support the business of your home town, and it will provide advantages for you in return.
