STATE appropriation to any change in the three inch cull law for oystermen in Maryland waters, with the exception of headwaters of the Chesapeake Bay, was expressed by Conservation Commissioner Swepson Earle.

Earle said the inflow of fresh water in the waters of the bay near the Susquehanna river had a deterrant effect on the growth of the Bivalves of the legal three-inch size For this reason, he said he would propose a change in the law regarding those waters when the 1933 session of the General Assembly meets.

Such an amendment, empowering the Conservation Department to regulate the taking of oysters in specified sections of the bay was placed before the legislature of 1931, but was not enacted into law.

Oyster tongers in the Kent Island area have been reported rebelling against the three-inch law, which provides a penalty for those oystermen whose eatch shows more than five per cent. of bivalves measuring less than three inches from hinge to mouth. According to Eastern Shore advices, a campaign is being planned to lesson the legal size in 1933.

OUR BROTHER'S KEEPER

This period through which the world is struggling is more than an economic crisis. It involves more than a study of strategic plans to ambuscade the dollars which fled.

Humanity itself in on trial. The civilization which we have evolved is undergoing the supreme test.

If there is such a thing as brotherhood among men, now is the time to show it.

Drunk with wealth, we have strayed a long way from the fundamental and eternal truth. We have been living in a house stuck upon golden stilts. And it has crashed.

In our agony and suffering we have discovered that Jesus Christ meant what he said. The Golden Rule was not a pleasant homily intended for reward-of-merit cards with silk fringe on the edges and diamond dust shining on the show scenes. It was a simple statement of the eternal law, the same law that keeps the stars in the skies and the world turning on its axes.

Ye speak of breaking the law and commandments. You can break them; but they break you. "Love one another" was more than an admonition to light the path of virtue. It was the statement of an eternal principle upon which all law, all philosophy, all business, all ethics, all civilization rests. Like all the doctrines left by the Christ, this was the sublimity of common sense—the finality of practicality—the only sure foundation upon which civilization can rest.

During these money-glutted years we have tried each to go our own way alone. Years of greed and money lust have ended with this terrible lession. That wealth evaporates and leaves men stark and with naked hearts.

It is for us to see that this terrible rebuke has not been in vain. For us to see that we rebuild the fallen structure on the rock of brotherhood.

This winter will be a period that calls for all men to have fortitude, strength and sympathy. It is, for once, clear to the dullest mind that we can only help ourselves by helping others.

Out of this period of re-adjustment we can regain our souls. It can be a better world because of this period of hunger and sorrow; a stronger America and a sounder civilization if it brings to us a realization we are given the privilege of being our brother's keeper.

The remedy for our financial crisis lies not in laws. federal commissions, in panacea or financial errors.

The sound practical answer was told two thousand years ago in a sermon spoken on a mountain in Palestine.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to take from our ranks our sister and co-worker, Mrs. Mary Bottomley,

Whereas, We recognized in Mrs. Bottomley a woman of the highest type of Christian character and feel that her life time spent in this town has made the community better because of her noble and self-sacrificing life, devoted to every organization that pertained to its religious and social uplift.

Whereas, The Asbury M. E. Church and its organizations feel keenly the loss of this faithful member, realizing what her real value has been to us, yet knowing that our loss is her eternal gain; therefore, beit

Resolved, That the heartfelt sympathy of all be extended to the bereaved family, in the great loss they have sustained, committing them to the will of Him who doeth all things well, and chooseth for His own good work such ways as we do not know now, but shall hereafter,

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, that they published in the KENT NEWS and the Chestertown Transcript and a copy filed with the secretaries of the various organizations of the various organizations of the church.

MRS. JOHN E. WOODALL,
MRS. R. J. TAYLOR,
MISS ETHEL JONES.

WANT CULL LAW CHANGED

Oystermen in Talbot county are advocating a lowering of the culi law specifications in certain parts of the Chesapeake Bay, to permit them to take oysters below three inches on bars above Sandy Point and Snake Reef. They claim that oysters in that section of the bay never grow very large, no matter how long they are left on the bottoms. Watermen are urging that the law be amended so as to permit them to take oysters two and one-half inches long.

On oyster grounds below these two places, they say, oysters grow large, but above they do not. This is due they maintain, to the fresh water streams emptying into the bay.

This fresh water, it is claimed, fattens the oysters, but it stunts their growth and prevents them from reaching any great size, and while occasionally a few are picked up that are above three inches, the general run of them above the points named are below the present cull law requirements of three inches.

Dredgers report any quantity of oysters in the bay north of Sandy Point, but they are so small that it does not pay to catch them and then cull nearly all of them. In all sections of the bay and the rivers near Talbot county any quantity of young oysters is seen. Oystermen predict a great quantity of oysters in the next two years. Spat are catching to most everything in the water, and shells planted by the State show a heavy catch of spat in all sections of the immediate waterways.

At present, however, the oysters are very scarce. Dredgers are working elsewhere instead of in the waterways adjecent to Talbot. Choptank river is partially closed to dredging and many dredgers say this is one of the best moves made by the State in recent times for the preservation of the oyster industry.

Up to the past week dredgers have had but two or three favorable days to work. They are not making expenses on account of oysters being scarce. Tongers are doing fair, averaging five or six bushels a day. It is because of the oysters being scarce that the dredgers are seeking to have the upper part of the Chesapeake Bay excluded from the three-inch cull law.

WHEAT A GOOD HOG FEED

Feeding tests at the University of Maryland reveal—Fish meal or Tankage should be added.

The recent field day for farmers interested in economical feeding of hogs shows some clear cut lessons. Wheat was compared with corn—both supplemented with protein rich fish meal. Different lots of pigs—their rate of grain and cost per pound of grain reveals wheat to be a good hog feed when sufficient protein and mineral mixtures are available. The use of legume grazing crops (alfalfa, alsike and rape) was economical and advisable. Some fish meal and mineral matter was found to be desirable. Two-tenths pound of fish meal per pig was O. K. along the grazing crops. In dry lot or where no grazing was available more protein carrier was desirable—nearly fourtenths per pig per day was more economical than a lesser amount.
