The Kent News

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1931

CHESTERTOWN was honored this week by the presence of a number of high dignitaries of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

The Grand Jury for Kent County is to be congratulated upon their labors. They had some knotty problems to solve, but with the help of State's Attorney expedited the business within four days. Foreman Eben F. Perkins, with Secretaries Kreeger and Sutton, did effective work.

In another column is noted the capaure by Kent's 4-H Club Boys of the prize for poultry judging at Frederick. This is a signal honor. For several years our boys have won prizes for cattle judging and now they get into the limelight as poultry judges. The three boys composing the Kent team are Clarence Sutton, Bayard Sutton and William Comella. These Kent boys defeated similar teams from nine other Maryland counties.

Two of the Kent boys, Clarence and Bayard Sutton, will be members of the Maryland team, which will compete at the annual poultry show in Madison Square Garden in January.

QUEEN ANNE'S County joined last Tuesday those counties in the State that have made great advance in health work by deciding to employ a full time health officer. This action was taken by the Board of County Commissioners after having the matter under advisement for some weeks.

THE series of historical pictures being given by several organizations in town each Wednesday afternoon are to be commended. They are teaching thru the eye valuable lessons of the history of our country and in a most impressive way show what a costly heritage we have. They are being well patronized.

GOV. RITCHIE ON TOUR

Governor Albert C. Ritchie is now on a campaign tour of the North. He spoke yesterday in New York and today will speak in Boston as the guest of Gov. Ely, of Massachusetts. He is being most favorably considered as the Democratic nominee for President of the United States.

Delaware Democrats have started a definite movement for his selection as the choice of that State for his nomination.

OFFICIALS DENY REPORT

O;cials of the Ambulance Unit of the Chestertown Volunteer Fire Company emphatically deny the report in the Easton Star-Democrat that the Chestertown ambulance lost a patient out of the machine in Easton last week.

The dispatch in the Easton Star-Democrat said:

"Last Tuesday evening the Chestertown ambulance was bringing a man to Emergency Hospital. As the ambulance reached the corner of Dover and Washington streets the red light came on and the vehicle of course stopped. It then started down Dover Street, when a pedestrian called to the driver to close the rear doors. When the driver looked back he found that his patient had disappeared. A search for about an hour was made around Easton before the man was picked up on Market Space and West Street. For a time the ambulance driver was worried. The siren on the ambulance sounded as it drove around town, and many thought it a fire alarm, rushing to the engine house. The man was eventually placed in the ambulance and carried to the hospital."

The local ambulance was in Easton on Tuesday but the patient was a young girl. The driver and assistant in charge of the ambulance on that date deny any such incident, as reported by the Easton paper.

BANK ROBBERS

As an investigation of Tuesday's bank robbery at White Hall, a Baltimore suburb, was started, it was believed that the two bandits involved in the holdup, which netted them $6,000 were William Gambrill and Frank Campbell, the latter a Negro. The two escaped from the Easton, Md., jail Sunday night.

Gambrill, who is said to be wanted by both State and Federal authorities in Pennsylvania, formerly lived at Elsmere, Del. He had made three previous attempts to escape from the jail where he was being held on a highway robbery charge.

By BILL USILTON

Toledo, Ohio.

MANY, many things have occurred, folks, since the old "Outsider" looked in two weeks ago. But, with the assurance that there are a few idle Kent Countians with time on their hands to waste on such nonsense, he is going to continue this column. You must remember he boasted that it would appear unless rejected by the editors, and the boast was not an idle one.

********

IN the aforementioned two week's interval I have been transported from the sidewalks of New York to the wind-swept shores of Lake Erie for no good reason except the possibility that New York might be getting a little boresome and mundane for a rounder of my experience and stamina. Or maybe they considered the convenience and wanted me near the Canadian border.

There's much to be said for both of these conclusions, but the fact remains that I'm 'way up here in Toledo and facing a long hard winter. (Donations of long underwear and pulse warmers will be greatly appreciated.)

********

IT'S funny, too, how the first act of friendliness that is directed toward you in a strange place will remain constantly on your mind as the days go by, and will always be the first thing you think of in later years when the strange place is mentioned.

There's one man I'll never forget, though I don't even know his name, and for me he's a friend for life. On my first day in Toledo I came out of my hotel, upon a world that was strangely gray and dreary, and walked up the street feeling like the prodigal son must have felt six months before his return home. I turned a corner on the way to my strange and new job, and ran square into an elderly man hustling in my direction. He looked up (most of them have to), greeted me with a cheery smile and said, "Hello there, I'm awfully sorry. Beautiful day, isn't it " Two pounds of lead seemed to dropped out of each of my shoes, I smiled back at him, and went my way marvelling at the rapidity with which the world had changed from gray to grinning.

From now on there's a place in my heart for hustling, elderly men.

THERE seems to be a little discussion as to what really is Kent County's "Big Business." Washington College and Farming are the two businesses that are predominate in the regiou's affairs, but there should be a bigger business in the minds of every inhabitant of that lovely spot bordered by the Chester river, the Chesapeake Bay and the Sassafras. That business should be Kent County and its progress. Progress in industry, comfort, society, health, sport, education, morals, government, unbiased thought that divorces hypocrisy, and charity.

The tools that will build this business of Kent County are cooperation, enthusiasm and faith; and the greatest of these three is enthusiasm.

Everyone must truthfully feel that there's no place in the world half as nice as Kent County. Kent County is the garden spot of the world, and everyone that they come in contact with should be impressed with this feeling.

Every avenue in every line of business should be studied, suggestions made and enthusiastically received. Realize in your hearts that Kent County has the greatest future as a business center of any spot in Maryland. Think it, talk it, convince strangers that it is so, and prove it by cooperating with one another in buying, selling, working and stimulating the outsider to come and live among you.

Don't plant wheat, corn and tomatoes because your father did it. Pick out the products that have a market and do something just a little different.

Don't expect the Chamber of Commerce to bring business to your door without you, yourself, enthusiastically assisting it in all enterprises; and don't feel that the county health and the business of the school is of no concern to you. Make it one of your concerns. Make every county activity one of your concerns.

If you'll forget yourself for awhile and realize that Kent County is YOUR business you'll wake up some morning and wonder what became of the depression.

A DRIVER who neglects precaution at a railway crossing and is struck by a train is not entitled to recover, says a recent court decision. And most of them don't according to hospital statistics.

FLOWERS NEARLY GONE

Heavy frosts in this vicinity for a succession of nights have almost brought to a close the colorful exhibitions of flowers in our gardens, which are most attractive exhibitions of the floral of this county. From the coming of the early arbutus to the passing of the dahlia—with the coming of frost — our outdoors displays include almost all the varieties indigenous to this section, so during the Spring, Summer and early Autumn we are enabled to view the blossoming beauty of our county mingled, as it is, with the products of orchard, vine and truck patch, all in such perfection as is possible in our balmy climate and under the rays of Kent sunshine.

There may be chrysanthemums remaining, but they for most part are grown indoors under shelter that defies cold and frost. But we may depend on a repitition of the splendors next year for nature knows no laxses in her creations.

DRASTIC economies put into effect by Commissioners of Talbot at their meeting Tuesday are expected to result in saving the county over $5,000 annually, and may mean even more. Most of the saving will result from pay cuts decided upon by the Commissioners.

Laborers on county roads had their pay reduced from 25 cents per hour to 20 cents. This will result in a saving for the county of at least $3,000, it is estimated.

The allowance to the sheriff for food for prisoners in the county jail each day was cut from 75 cents to 60 cents per prisoner. Figuring on an average of 20 prisoners daily in the jail, that would mean a saving of at least $1,000.

The salary of the courthouse janitor was cut from $54 a month to $40. Other economies in the operation of the County Commissioners' office will result in a further saving of about $1,000.

These moves to save money for the county are n line with action in other counties of the Eastern Shore.
