KENT NEWS.

CRESCITE ET MULTIPLICAMINI

CHESTER TOWN, MD.

SATURDAY MORNING, DEC. 26, 1857.

A Parting Word.

We have owned and conducted this paper on our own sole responsibility for the last ten years. A portion of the prime of our life has been devoted to it: born and raised in this community, and identified with it, we have, always desired to promote and advance its interests That we have sometimes, perhaps often erred and failed fully to discharge our duty to our patrons, as they may have expected, ale thind very probable,—but while our purpose has been to serve them acceptably, and our efforts have been directed to tha end, they have been forbearing, kind and generous. We have been liberally patronized and now, at the conclusion of our labours, we take pleasure in returning our sincere thanks and most grateful acknowledgements.—Many have stood firmly by us under trying circumstances, and with unfaltering purpose—they must always preserve a kind place in our memory. During the whole period of our Editorship, we have not, intentionally, wronged any one, nor designed to wound the feelings of a single individual,—we have suppressed many communications which we apprehended might grate harshly or unpleasantly upon the feelings of others; our object has been to please and edify—not to annoy or injure. We part with regret from our friends—and shall cherish for them, in after life, the warmest attachment and regard.

We have disposed of the "Kent News" to Mr. JAMES M. VICKERS, who has been raised among you. He has the advantage of youth and education—and with the diligence and abllity which these qualifications should secure, we have no doubt but he will publish a paper that will be satisfactory to you, and commendable to him. He will find it a difficult task to please all—such success cannot be expected, but we doubt not that he will make every reasonable effort to make his sheet both popular and instructive. The position of a new editor is an embarrassing one and it will require sometime to enable him to appear, in his weekly visits, as he may desire, and his subscribers anticipate—but these circumstances will inspire him with an ambition to succeed, and should secure from you that charity and forbearance, which is meet, and for which you are so highly distinguished. He will make his appearance next week, but the usual holliday and festivities of Christmas will prevent a favorable issue of his paper.

Wishing you all a merry Christmas and a happy new year—and many years of uninterrupted health and prosperity, we bid you an affectionate adieu.

EDWARD MANSFIELD.

LARGE HOGS.—Col. Geo. W. Spencer killed a pen of hogs, 37 in number, which weighed in the aggregate 10,648 lbs., averaging 287 lbs. 11 oz. each. Who can beat it?
